Representative of Ringer Makes Desperate Effort to Influence Two Reporters

Police Commissioner's Private Investigator Approaches Daily News and World-Herald Men as Last Resort to Obstruct Justice in Eugene Scott Case—Chief Eberstein Also Tried to Bribe Bee Reporter in Mrs. Thomas Brown Case.

Not satisfied with his desperate effort to whitewash George Armstrong and George Brigham, city detectives, for the part they played in the murder last week of Eugene Scott, the Plaza hotel bellboy, Police Commissioner Ringer now is accused of covering up other guilty offenses of the two officers, in behalf of whom the police department head is said to have gone to the extreme of attempting even to obstruct justice in the courts.

As further evidence that Commissioner Ringer is determined to whitewash Armstrong and Brigham in total disregard of the facts in the case, Charles Whalen, the police commissioner's private investigator, approached two newspaper reporters, who witnessed the shooting down in the world.

Francis J. Boyle, reporter for the Daily News, was asked to sign a statement repudiating the facts to which he testified at the inquest. Detective Whalen approached the reporter in the police court room Wednesday just before the preliminary hearing was called.

Thos. J. MacMahon, World-Herald reporter, was questioned by Mr. Ringer's personal representative. The newspaper man told him that he was positive of every detail of his testimony and would not change a single word of it.

Whalen was unable to prevail on either of the reporters to misrepresent the facts in the case. Additional proof of the questionable tactics employed by Ringer and Eberstein, and further evidence of the fact that the present heads of the police department do not hesitate to attempt to induce witnesses to violate their oaths on the witness stand, is shown in a proposition made several months ago by Chief Eberstein to a reporter for The Bee.

PRIZES GIVEN TO MERCHANTS AT FIELD CLUB

Eighth Annual Market Week Closes With Dinner Dances; Most Successful Ever Held.

The eighth annual merchants' market week, pronounced the most successful ever held in Omaha, closed last night with the presentation of prizes and a dinner dance at the Omaha field club.

Nearly 1,000 visiting merchants and their families were present, the largest number ever assembled since the market week was inaugurated. Although a majority of the visitors were residents of Nebraska, many were from neighboring states, and the distant states of Oregon, California and Minnesota were represented.

The visitors were unanimous in their praise of the entertainment furnished them by the market week committee of the Omaha manufacturers and jobbers during the last four days. A number of merchants who had never been present at the fall market week before expressed surprise at the extensive preparations which had been made for their entertainment.

Plans for Next Year. Jobbers and manufacturers are also jubilant over the success of the week, so jubilant, in fact, that they are already making extensive plans for the next market week. The increase in the number of visitors has made it necessary to formulate new plans for their future entertainment.

Winners of Prizes. The prize drawing contest resulted as follows: Mrs. J. H. Carter of Carter, Wyo., won a pair of Australian wool blankets; Hilda Mester, Portsmouth, It., a 100-piece dinner set; Mrs. E. H. Luxford, Oakland, Ia., a raincoat; Mr. J. H. Grilly, Danbury, Ia., a refrigerator; Mrs. E. Wheeler, Stella, Neb., a half dozen pairs of silk hose; Mrs. L. E. Mischief-maker, but never with the opportunities that Millie Martin finds. Her escapade at the May party, her course in beauty culture and the railway trip she takes with her father are only a prelude to the situation which confronts her at a sanitarium. When the girl and her medical attendant make their escape, the head of the institution is sure that a gang of robbers has invaded his place. Unraveling this complication brings "When Doctors Disagree" to a screaming climax.

Sketch of Omaha Home of Packard Auto

The above picture is an architect's drawing of the new building which is to be erected for the Packard-Omaha company. This building will front on Harney street, Twenty-seventh street and Dewey avenue. The dimensions of the building will be 108 feet, 6 inches, by 183 feet, 9 inches. It will be three stories high and embrace 60,000 square feet of floor space.

The deal was closed by Conrad Young and Selwin Doherty of the Nebraska and Wyoming Investment company, acting for the Sir Horace Plunkett interests and William A. Hurst, president of the Packard-Omaha company, and Edgar A. Baird, attorney, representing the Packard interests. Charles W. Steinbaugh is the architect and the building will be erected by the John E. Wakefield company of Omaha. The entire project represents an expenditure of approximately $250,000.

The exterior of the building will be finished in tapestry brick and Bedford stone trimming. Among the main features of the interior are inclined drives to all floors, eliminating elevators. The main show room will measure 45 feet by 67 feet and will be two stories in height. The show rooms will front on Harney and Twenty-seventh street. Back of this will be private offices, sales room, accounting room, etc. The interior of the main show and sales room will be finished in quarter-sawn wood, tile floors and appropriate decorations. The second floor will be used for repair shop, stock and oil storage as well as for men's lockers and showers. The third floor is to be used for refinishing and storage.

WINDLE WARNS OF DANGERS IN ONE BIG UNION. Bolshevik Chief Tells of Misleading Propaganda Spread by Irresponsible Publications. The only remedy for bolshevism is to make every workingman a capitalist by creating and fostering in him self-interest, in the opinion of C. A. Windle, editor of Brann's Iconoclast, who spoke last night at the Auditorium on "Bolshevism, Its Cause and Its Cure."

Windle warned his audience against the crimson conspiracy to crush state, home, church and civilization. Holding a copy of "The Messenger" in his hand, he said it was one of 150 radical publications now wringing their way through the country spreading their doctrine of bolshevism. "This paper and others like it are urging the negroes of the south to arm," he said. "If Omaha knew of the menace that threatens the vitality of our republic this hall would be filled tonight."

The little clique of bolsheviks broke out in applause. "I am glad we have some bolsheviks here," said Windle. "They have been hearing partial truths in socialist and bolshevik meetings. Here they will hear the whole truth. When bolsheviks would destroy capital they would destroy church, home and state, they are conspiring against the flag under which they get their bread. Ratification of the peace treaty will not be an antidote for the poison of bolshevism."

Nonpartisan Leader Files Libel Charge. Lincoln Star Sued for $50,000 Damages by Minneapolis Man; League Attorney to Appear. From a Staff Correspondent. Lincoln, Sept. 11.—(Special.)—Herbert E. Gaston, president of the Northwestern Publishing company of Minneapolis, brought suit in the federal district court here against the Star Publishing company, charging libel. Gaston asks $50,000 damages.

C. A. Sorenson, attorney for the Nonpartisan league in Nebraska, filed the suit. The story on which the suit is based was a purported record of 50 Nonpartisan league leaders, prepared by Assistant Attorney General Packard of North Dakota, and which was published in a number of North Dakota papers.

In the paragraph relating to Gaston, explaining his connection with the league, the line appears, "convicted on three counts." Gaston charges that the article states he was convicted of a crime.
