

BRIGHAM, MORALS SQUAD OFFICER, AGAIN ACCUSED

Boy Says Policeman Abused Him Because of Complaint Filed With Commissioner Ringer.

Charging threatening to kill, a warrant was sworn out yesterday in Justice of the Peace George S. Collins' court for the arrest of George Brigham, the city policeman, who with Officer George Armstrong is under indictment for manslaughter in connection with the murder of Eugene Scott, the Plaza hotel bell boy.

Policeman Brigham will be arrested this afternoon for the second time in the past week, Mr. Collins declared.

Now Walking Beat.

Encouraged by Mr. Ringer in the use of his lawless tactics, which has led to the operations of the morals squad during the past six months, Officer Brigham, demoted to walking a beat following a brief experience on the now extinct Thomas-Sutton "clean up" contingent of the force, again Thursday night struck terror into the hearts of guests at the Her Grand hotel.

Infuriated because Harry Hershman, 21 years old, driver for the Blue Taxicab company, filed a complaint against him several days ago after, he says, the policeman threatened his life, Thursday night Brigham called on the boy again to "kill him."

After abusing Hershman for 30 minutes, begging him to fight and offering him every possible insult, the policeman placed the taxi driver under arrest on the charge of soliciting taxi fares on the street. Hershman was released on a $15 bond and fined $1 in police court Thursday night at Fourteenth and Ordered out of Office.

Hershman went to the office of Chief Eberstein to file another complaint against the policeman, and was ordered out.

Brigham was in the chief's office at the time. "Get out of here, you drunken bum," Eberstein is said to have ordered. "If you come back here with any more complaints against Officer Brigham, I will throw you in jail."

Hershman went directly to the office of Justice of the Peace Collins and swore out a warrant for the policeman's arrest.

Would Whitewash Him. Brigham just had finished reading in The Bee the account of Hershman's having filed formal charges against him for threatening to kill him several days ago, and of Ringer's unsuccessful attempt to withhold from the public the information against the man the heads of the department are making desperate efforts to whitewash for his part in the killing of the next bell boy.

"You dirty little rat," the officer is said to have hurled at Hershman as he approached him in front of the hotel. "You think you can get away with this," he continued. "I will beat your face into a jelly."

According to the boy, Brigham offered to take off his badge and resign if he would stop complaining against Hershman. He would fight him. The boy, who is half the size of the policeman, refused and begged Brigham to leave the taxi stand.

Many Witness Scene. "I am the man who was mixed up in the shooting of the nigger bell boy," the officer raved while a dozen persons stood by and looked on, according to witnesses. You are not going to knock me and get away with it. I am going to run you out of Sixteenth street. The people are back of me and will stay back of me.

"I know you will tell Ringer and the chief about this in the morning. See how far you get with that stuff. They won't listen to you at the city hall. You will get kicked out of the office."

Just as Brigham predicted, Eberstein refused to hear the complaint and threatened to jail the boy if he did not stop complaining against Brigham.

Brigham now is at liberty on a $2,000 bond on a charge of manslaughter.

Faces Federal Charges. Brigham also is the policeman, who emptied his revolver a short while ago at a supposedly bootlegger who eluded the officer at Seventh and Jackson streets. The same policeman was charged with assaulting the proprietor of a hotel in South Thirteenth street several weeks ago, when the hotel man refused to let the officer arbitrate a difference which had arisen between himself and one of his guests.

Despite numerous other careless threats with his revolver, Brigham was promoted by Commissioner Ringer to work under Paul Sutton on the morals squad. The officer worked just one week in one of the most responsible positions on the department, and his career ended as a member of the "clean-up" contingent with the murder of Eugene Scott.

Both Commissioner Ringer and Chief Eberstein have given their endorsement to every offense of the policeman was charged with, and they have gone to every possible extreme to defend him. The heads of the department, however, were forced by public opinion to demote Brigham when the charge of manslaughter was placed against him by County Attorney Shotwell. This action was reluctantly taken against the officer, and the police commissioner has refused to yield to the demand for Brigham's suspension pending the outcome of his cases in district court.

Woman Says She Was Robbed By Girl Pickpocket Here. Mrs. Fred Clarke of Creston, Ia., reported to the police yesterday that she fell victim to a girl pickpocket, with whom she conversed Thursday night while waiting for a train at the Burlington station. Mrs. Clarke suspects the girl of having taken $15 from her pocketbook.

to make any statement and had gone fishing. Bullitt, formerly a newspaper correspondent, went to Paris with President Wilson's party and was attached to the mission. He was summoned to testify before the committee, but was in the Maine woods on a camping trip, and the notice did not reach him until a few days ago. This was explained by Chairman Lodge to show why the hearing apparently had been reopened.

Confidential Information. A wealth of information regarded as more or less confidential was given by the witness during his three hours statement. In February last, he was sent by Secretary Lansing to Petrograd to bring back from the soviet leaders a statement showing the exact terms on which they would agree to peace. This report which told among other things of "good order" established by the bolsheviks, Lenin's desire for peace, his readiness to compromise at many points in order to obtain it, and his promise that all foreign debts of the soviet government should be paid, never was made public, Bullitt said, because the president would not agree. Lloyd George wanted it printed, he said, yet later the premier denied all knowledge of it when questioned in parliament.

Bullitt described himself as a clearing house of information for the delegation and worked generally under Col. E. M. House.

Shows Original League. He showed the committee the president's original league proposal, written on the president's own typewriter and bearing an inscription by Colonel House attesting the latter's high regard for the witness. Bullitt quoted Colonel House freely and when asked why he had resigned produced from a great stack of papers a letter he had written the president expressing his lack of satisfaction with the peace negotiations were proceeding and particularly voicing disapproval of the league of nations. About the only part of the president's league proposal incorporated in the covenant, he said, was the widely debated article 10, which remained intact. Once in Paris, Bullitt had an engagement with the president, which he said the president called off because of a headache. He laid before the committee his letter telling the president why he had quit the mission, but the committee did not question him about it.

Along with his report of conditions in Russia Bullitt gave the committee the soviet peace proposal, which never went to the peace conference and which was dropped, he said, because the people in Paris became lukewarm when they read that Admiral Kolchak was heading for Moscow, after a 100, mile advance, and was due there in two weeks.

Lansing Refuses Comment. Watertown, N. Y., Sept. 12.—Secretary of State Robert Lansing at his summer home in Henderson Harbor this afternoon would make absolutely no comment on the testimony of William Bullitt before the senate foreign relations committee, that the secretary of state had said that if the American people knew what the treaty meant they would defeat it.

A meeting of all the graduate and registered nurses on private duty in Omaha and vicinity will be held at the Kelpine hall, 2424 Farnam street, next Wednesday to discuss proposed uniform prices to be charged by professional nurses.

The meeting has been called by Mrs. Walter E. Child, a member of the state association of nurses. Short talks will be given by members of the nursing profession and others identified with city welfare work.

Profiteering by nurses is one of the important subjects to be discussed. According to Mrs. Child, nurses demanded and were paid as high as $350 a week last winter during the influenza epidemic. Nurses who demanded such salaries during this sickness were not graduate or professional nurses, however, Mrs. Child says, but nonprofessional, practical nurses.

One of the objects of the meeting is to inform the public that such prices were not charged by professional nurses, and to fix a standard salary to be paid nurses, thus enabling the public to know when it is being overcharged.

Society Women Use New Wrinkle Remover. Since the discovery that a solution of ordinary saxolite and witch hazel has a peculiar effect upon wrinkled skins, it has been learned that many prominent society women all over the country have great success. The formula is: powdered saxolite, one ounce, dissolved in witch hazel, one-half pint. Use daily as a wash lotion.

The beneficial action of this wash is felt at once. There is an agreeable refreshing sensation and no irritation. Flabbiness and all wrinkles are immediately affected, and the skin soon becomes firmer and more youthful looking. No woman need hesitate to get the ingredients at the drug store and make the remedy herself, for there are no harmful effects whatever.—Ady.

PERSHING GIVEN WARM WELCOME AT WASHINGTON

Commander-in-Chief Reports His Work Successfully Ended—Is Received by Vice President.

Washington, Sept. 12.—With the plaudits of New York and Philadelphia still ringing in his ears Gen. John J. Pershing arrived in Washington today and received a foretaste of the more formal greeting he will receive next week when he leads the First division up historic Pennsylvania avenue in the nation's victory parade.

As he stepped from his special train at the station, the man who led the American army to victory in France heard a shrill cry of greeting rise from the hundreds of women and girls who lined his pathway. As he stood later with bare head before Vice President Marshall in the president's waiting room to receive the welcome of the president and of the nation, again it was women and girls, armed with flags and flowers who surrounded him. There was little of pomp of war about this conqueror's return.

Greeted by Baker. Secretary Baker and General March, chief of staff, greeted General Pershing at the train and escorted him to the room where the vice president awaited him.

The arched roof of the big building roared with the shouting of the crowd jammed close along his path. A military band pounded out its formal greeting of "Hail to the Chief" almost unheard. The crash of saluting artillery, posted far away by the quiet Potomac, went unnoticed.

In greeting General Pershing Vice President Marshall said: "You are not only welcome to the capital city of your own republic, but you are welcome back to the land of your nativity. Your commander in chief bids me in his behalf and in behalf of the American people, to greet you. To you it has been vouchsafed to lead the greatest expeditionary force of all time through perils at sea, perils of land and perils of air to the ultimate accomplishment of your country's purpose and your heart's desire.

"In the name of my countrymen and my president, I salute you, conqueror, and yet again, hail." Possibly it was the great pre-

WILSON SPEAKS IN HOME STATE OF POINDEXTER

Replying to Obejections on Great Britain's Votes, President Says Decisions Must Be Unanimous.

Spokane, Wash., Sept. 12.—Replying to objections that Great Britain would have a preponderance of voting power in the league of nations assembly, President Wilson said any possible danger on that score was removed by the fact that decisions must be unanimous.

The speech here was the second the president made during the day. He spoke this morning at Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, making an invasion of the state represented by United States Senator Borah in the senate. At Coeur d'Alene the tent in which he spoke was not entirely filled. Here in the army every seat was taken.

The league of nations assembly, the president declared, was "largely a debating body," and seldom would act on important questions and when it did the United States with its one vote would have an "absolute veto" under the rule requiring a unanimous vote.

Hold Veto Power. There was only one case in which the assembly could decide an important question he said, and that when such a question was unanimously referred to by the council. The assembly must act unanimously, he added, so that in either council or assembly the one vote of the United States would constitute a veto power.

The unanimous rule, added the president, seemed to him the only weakness of the league, but it was a weakness in the direction of throwponderance of women in the crowd about him that led General Pershing to pay high tribute to the women of America in his haltingly delivered reply to the vice president. In the ungrudging confidence the president had reposed in him, he said, he had found constant strength for the tasks that had fallen to him, but he added that it was the high courage of the women of America that had made possible victory complete and final.

Tomorrow General Pershing will re-establish in the war department headquarters of the American expeditionary force, of which he still is the commander. There he will close up the affairs of the A. E. F.

Wilson Denounced By Senator Reed in Speech at Buffalo

Buffalo, Sept. 12.—Speaking at a nonpartisan mass meeting last night, James A. Reed, United States senator from Missouri, denounced the league of nations, the present form of the peace treaty and President Wilson's attitude toward the senate.

"This is not a political issue," said Senator Reed, "but an American issue. I venture to say that if Theodore Roosevelt brought back this identical treaty that President Wilson brought back—and Roosevelt never would—he would not get a vote from the democratic party. I am a democrat because of the principles for which the party used to stand, but I would part company with any man on earth who told me that we must ratify this treaty as it stands."

The senator accused President Wilson of making use of the democratic national committee to start a propaganda for immediate ratification of the league.

Requiring United States Vote. Taking up the proposed reservations to Article X, the president said the vote of the United States would be required to insure any decision of the league council.

"Yet I hear gentlemen say," he continued, "that this is a violation of our sovereignty. If it is anything, it is an exaggeration of our sovereignty to saying whether other nations shall go to war or not."

Digressing to say, there was an element of bitterness in the league controversy, the president said. "Some people seemed to think that a 'man named Wilson' had originated the league." Adding that he had wished he had done so, the president asserted that, on the contrary, the idea had grown out of years of discussion, largely on the part of the republican statesmen.

Constructive Legislation. Many men had said to him, continued the president, "I am a republican, but I am in favor of the league of nations." Continuing the republican party had always prided itself in being a party of construction, Mr. Wilson said if he were a republican he would say, "I am a republican and therefore I am for the league of nations."

It had been proposed at Paris, said the president, that the covenant automatically be at war with a covenant breaker. But he added that he had opposed the suggestion because it would take away from congress the power to declare war.

"I fought that fight," said Mr. Wilson, while the crowd cheered.

Daniels Congratulates General John J. Pershing

Aboard U. S. S. Arkansas, Sept. 12.—(By the Associated Press.)—Secretary of the Navy Daniels sent this radiogram to General Pershing at Washington:

"I regret that my absence from Washington denies me the pleasure of joining with your countrymen in welcoming you to the national capital. The whole country is richer because of the achievement of your magnificent army under your victorious leadership."

"and I won it. They don't have to fight it over again."

Going on to the proposed Monroe doctrine reservation, the president said the peace conference tried to define the doctrine as clearly as possible.

Most Extraordinary Sentence. "That is the most extraordinary sentence in the document," he continued, "because up to that time there wasn't a great power in the world that was willing to admit the validity of the Monroe doctrine."

It was "absolutely irrational," said Mr. Wilson, to ask for anything more.

Domestic questions, too, the president said, were fully reserved to national decision, if only to make it clearer, he said, to list those questions.

He added: "The danger of making a list is that the mention of the things you mention constitutes the exclusion of the things you don't mention."
