Couldn't Stump Young Pershing; Kept Right on and Crossed Swollen Creek

Elected Teacher of Prairie Mound School Because He Didn't Wear Gloves; Became the Fine Horseman He is Today by Riding to and from School—Emogene Thought Him a Wonderful Teacher.

"John asked my father for a letter of recommendation to Capt. Samuel A. Henley, head of the Prairie Mound School Board. My father gave it to him. In fact, father had already spoken to Captain Henley about John.
"Bright and early next morning John appeared in a buggy. He was ready to drive over. He was dressed in his best clothes and he had on a pair of brand new gloves.
"Better put those under the seat when you get half a mile from the captain's house," father said to John, referring to the new gloves.
"John asked why, and father told him that the captain was an odd man and loathed kid gloves. Father said the captain so abhorred them that he would not take kindly to any young man who wore them.
"All right," said John. And he suited his action to his words.
"Now the funny part of his story is that another young man, a young pleasantly and invited him into the living room and asked him to be seated. The captain seemed to like John from the outset. They had talked only a few minutes when the captain declared he would like to have John come to the school at Prairie Mound.

"Other Man Wore Gloves.
"I'll vote for you," the captain said "and I'll tell the other members of the board how I feel and that I think you will make an admirable teacher. Another young fellow was over here from Brookfield this morning to see me, but all the time he sat talking he kept fondling a pair of kid gloves he carried. I'm glad to see you don't wear them."
"John, as he told me the story, said he thought of the gloves out under the buggy seat and could not help blushing. But he didn't say anything about them, and a few days later he was selected for the position.

we always separated, he would turn east to Turkey Creek, while I went west.
"Turkey creek had to be forded. This Sunday it had overflowed its banks, and John's horse would not take to the water. Along came a man John knew pretty well, and whose horse was not afraid to swim. John got the man to go ahead. Then John threw the bridle of his horse to the man, drew his legs up under him, kneeling on the saddle and steadying himself by holding to his horse's neck. The procession started, the man's horse literally pulling John's horse. So John got across without getting enough water on his shoes to spoil his shine."
"Captain Henley, alas, is dead. But his widow, Mrs. Levina J. Henley, a dear, lovable old woman of 77, is still alive.
"Indeed, I do remember John," she said. "He taught our school in Prairie Mound one winter, and during part of that time he boarded in my house. He made a deep impression upon me. He was such a studious young man, always reading or else discussing in a very serious way different topics with my husband. There was nothing frivolous about John. You knew instinctively that he had a purpose in life."
"Emogene Liked Him.
"I was interested in him because of incidents connected with his coming to Prairie Mound. He had taught the negro school here, as you know. Well, one of the members of the school board in Prairie Mound had objected to his coming to our school because of that fact. My husband settled that board member. That pleased me, and I was interested in John—anticipated his coming.
"I have heard my husband say that John was the best teacher our school ever had. And I have heard many of the pupils say the same thing. I know my oldest daughter, Emogene—she was a teacher later, dead now—was one of his pupils, and she said it. All the pupils, she told me, learned to respect and love John."

Cleaning Up Details for Ak-Sar-Ben Fall Carnival

Three Miles of Automobiles Expected, With 20 Floats in Electric Pageant—$2,000 in Cash Prizes Offered—King Calls for Horsemen.

Omaha people who will have rooms to rent to visitors during the Ak-Sar-Ben fall festivities, September 24th to October 4th, are requested to advise "Samson, Omaha," the number of rooms available, locations and rates per day.
During the carnival season an information bureau will be maintained by the Knights of Ak-Sar-Ben, one of the chief objects of the bureau to be the assignment of visitors to lodgings.
Prepare For Carnival.
Work at the carnival grounds, Fifteenth and Capitol avenue, has 25 shows and rides will hold forth 10 days.
"It will be the largest aggregation of carnival shows we ever have had," averred J. D. Weaver, secretary.
"Many of the shows will be new to Omaha. The new riding device is known as 'The Frolic,' and I'll say that it is a genuine thrill."
Mr. Weaver states that the carnival grounds will be lighted and decorated better than ever. Merchants are requested to co-operate in lending a gala appearance to the city during the Ak-Sar-Ben season.
Call For Horsemen.
King Ak-Sar-Ben, the 25th of his line has issued a call for horsemen to ride in the electric parade, Wednesday night, October 1. Volunteers are expected to furnish their own mounts, as has been the custom for years. Samson will receive the names of the horsemen. Work is progressing at the den on 20 floats for the electrical pageant.
The committee in charge of the floral parade to be held Thursday afternoon, October 2nd, report that there will be three miles of decorated automobiles, and that this spectacle will eclipse all previous efforts in the west. A total of $2,000 in cash prizes will be awarded to the winners.

Philanthropic Woman to Sell Property for Orphans' Home

Mrs. L. Sabro, Coming From Russia, 37 Years Ago, to Share Her Success in Life With Poor and Homeless Children.

Through the sale of Omaha property which she has acquired since emigrating from Russia 37 years ago, Mrs. L. Sabro, real estate holder and philanthropist, 2856 Wayne street, hopes to establish an institution for the education of orphans. Plans are under way and construction will begin as soon as certain property can be disposed of to finance the project.
Fifteen years ago, Mrs. Sabro came to Omaha from New York, where she had first settled upon her arrival from Moscow, Russia, her birthplace.
Satisfied With Success.
She has succeeded, in spite of high taxes and incidental expenditures, in holding to tracts of property which she bought upon her settlement in Omaha, and her life here has been replete with charitable activities.
"Now, I feel content with my success in life," Mrs. Sabro declared. "A home for the education of homeless children has appealed to me. I will finance such an institution. I know conditions in the city and have learned that no better work of charity could be done than for the poor."
Chronicled by the Poor.
Mrs. Sabro's charitable activities are chronicled among the poor of the city, particularly homeless girls who have been stranded here. Some of the first property acquired by her were tracts in the wholesale district, some of which she still holds, though she is now planning an early release of her trackage holdings for the purpose of accomplishing her plans to establish an institution for homeless children.

Hundreds of Blind, Scoring Charity, Live on $2 a Week

London, Sept. 13.—Said Mr. Alfred Short, Laborite, in the House of Commons: "Seven hundred blind persons live in London on less than 10 shillings ($2.50) a week."
With all of these unfortunates the fear of the workhouse is stronger than the pangs of hunger, and they will content themselves with one meal a day, consisting of tea, bread and margarine, rather than report themselves as indigents needing state aid. Nearly all of them are half starved, according to the report of the secretary of the Institute's After Care Committee to Universal Service. Most of these indigent blind are too old to be trained in the crafts for the sightless. Poor helpless chips on this after-war tide of restlessness which catches millions in its backwash—just helpless chips!
Here is a story which is typical of the thing called life these sightless ones lead. It was told by a kind-hearted charity worker who confines her activities to the helpless blind:
"There were two old people we knew about—the husband, 93 and the wife 89. One day we brought them a dozen new-laid eggs. We had to struggle with them to prevent their sharing an egg between them, so precious did they regard eggs. The man is a helpless invalid, bedridden; the wife is a street singer before theater queues. They live on about eight shillings ($2) a week."

Quarantine 6,000 Acres of Alfalfa Because of Weevils

Montrose, Colo., Sept. 13.—Six thousand acres of alfalfa have been quarantined by county commissioners because of the alfalfa weevil, found there June 18 by the state entomologist, who stated that unless such action was taken all of the alfalfa district would have to be quarantined. Under the quarantine restrictions no hay or straw can be shipped from the quarantined acreage.
Alfalfa weevils have alarmed the growers, who are keeping a close watch on their crops.

Toledo Will Lose 12,000 Foreign Population

Toledo, O., Sept. 13.—This city will lose 12,000 of its present population within three months, according to the manager of the foreign department of a local bank. Lifting of the restrictions on foreigners desiring to return to their homelands will cause the exodus. Four thousand Bulgarians will return to their homes, it is said.

Discover Valuable Limestone Deposits

Colorado Springs, Colo., Sept. 13.—Valuable limestone deposits have been discovered on 800 acres of land owned by the city of Colorado Springs. Limestone is valuable in the manufacture of cement, and the land may be leased for that purpose.

Shaveless Wonder Challenged

Rolla, Mo., Sept. 13.—"Uncle" John Welch of this city, who boasts that he is not shaved his upper lip since 1864, and who has worn a beard since 1869, without shaving, has been challenged by a Kentuckian, who claims not to have had a shave since 1861.

Son Incurable; Father Enlists Him In Army

Clinton, Ill., Sept. 13.—John Varvill, aged 17, threatened the life of his father. The boy was incorrigible. Punishment and arrest had no terror for him. But his father thinks he has found a way of taming him. He took his son to a local recruiting station and compelled the boy to enlist in the army, where he expects the discipline will correct his faults.
