

TREASURE PARTY SEEKING GOLD ON A WOMAN'S TALE

Mutiny Breaks Out, Just as in Stevenson's Famous Story —Have Dead Man's Chart.

(By International News Service.)
San Francisco, Sept. 13.—In the Behring Sea today the search for treasure is being conducted by the Casco, manned by a crew as diversified as any which boarded it for the search for gold.

Words come here in a letter from one of the party members that the cloud of mutiny has more than once darkened the midnight sun; hidden between the lines treads the figure of Old Silver and even a Squire Trelawney may yet be developed among those who tread her creaky decks.

Hunt for Gold Dust.
Pointing her bow for the Siberian coast, the Casco slipped out the Golden Gate with the tide the night of June 1 last. Near Point Romanoff, in the Behring Sea, the party has anchored to search for buried gold dust valued at $120,000.

On Woman's Tale.
On a woman's tale hangs the success of the party. It was she who told of four men, musing their way over the Alaskan snows and ice, each with an equal share in $20,000 gold they carried with them. Two died from hardship and exposure. One died at sea. The last remaining survivor reached here, confided his secret to the woman, gave her a chart of its burial place and died of influenza.

A letter from Johnson indicates the troubles brewing among the outfit early in their search. "There is no real head to this outfit," he says. "It's just a clique here and there and no unit. The president and captain and four or five more just think they are raising hell right now because we all take the captain's orders. In matters regarding the ship I am upholding him, but the president wants us all to be bootblacks for him. You know what will happen to him when this bunch of hard rock miners get through. I'm afraid they'll kick him from the Siberian coast back to the ship."

Trelawney's Ghost.
And in like vein Johnson writes. Just enough for one to sense the feeling smoldering in the breasts of some 30 men, all seeking a pot of gold in the sands of the Siberian coast.

And at night, mayhap, as the Casco rises and drops in the gentle swell of Behring sea, and the dull twilight of the midnight sun plays through her rigging, one might lie on a sandy beach and, eyes half closed, watch the ghost of Squire Trelawney pace fore and aft.

Home-Made Flowmeter Used On Altitude as Well as Speed Flights

Dayton, O., Sept. 13.—A home-made flowmeter.
That is what Maj. R. W. Schroeder of the McCook Flying field, near here, made. The major is making efforts to break altitude and speed records.

The need arose for an instrument for indicating the flow of gasoline. No such instrument having made its appearance on the market, Major Schroeder decided to make one. He found a section of an old gas pipe, a broken boiler gauge glass and a bean. Putting them together he found he had a flowmeter superior by far to anything hitherto developed either in this country or in Europe.

Thought Dead, Returns After Sixteen Years

Altoona, Pa., Sept. 13.—The war has parted many sons from their parents, but Charles C. Knepper, after five years of it in the Canadian army, has come back from the dead to greet his father and sisters after an absence of 16 years. The story of Knepper's career began when the orphanage school at Buffalo, in which he was placed as a child, was destroyed by fire in 1903. All records were lost, and as no trace of the child could be found, his father, Alexander Knepper, and his sisters, gave him up for dead. The war veteran, on his return, told how he had been taken from the school before the fire occurred and raised as Charles Nicholson by a man of that name who resided near Toronto, Canada. At the age of 18 the young man enlisted in the Canadian army as a machine gunner at the outbreak of the war. He was gassed and wounded twice.

Is There Still Liquor For Sale In Chicago?

Chicago, Sept. 13.—The old-fashioned physician's phaeton, drawn by a patient horse which knows the patients, will be the only private conveyance available for Dr. Guy G. Gowen for three months. Dr. Gowen, of 3228 Park avenue, has been convicted twice of operating his automobile while under the influence of liquor.

When the physician was arraigned before Judge Steik for the second time, Secretary of State Emmerson was notified, with the recommendation that Dr. Gowen be given a long rest from the burden of confused steering. The motor-ing vacation was then assured.

Kiss In Lieu of Sale Gets Salesman In Jail

Lancaster, Pa., Sept. 13.—Charles Asper, a Baltimore book agent, is one of the nerviest in his profession, according to statements made in a suit brought against him by Thomas Ruth. Asper entered the Ruth store and attempted to sell Mrs. Ruth a magazine. Failing to make a sale, according to Ruth, Asper grabbed and kissed Mrs. Ruth. Asper was arrested, charged with felonious assault and committed to jail to await a hearing.

Soldiers Camped In South Develop Taste For Sweet Potatoes

Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 13.—Stating that he could dispose of at least 50 cars of Georgia sweet potatoes, Arthur D. Lowe, a Sioux City, Ia., commission merchant, has written the Georgia market bureau asking information regarding the shipping of sweet potatoes. The demand comes, states Mr. Lowe, from soldiers who learned to like these tubers while in encampments in Georgia.

Persian ladies ornament their faces by painting on them figures of insects and small animals.

Street Car Smashup Ends In Family Reunion

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 13.—This is a story about a streetcar conductor who ran his street car into an automobile, smashing the machine and then having his hand shook by the occupants. You see, it was this way: Leonard Taylor was the street car man. An automobile tried to dash in front of his car when, bang, the two vehicles collided. After bystanders helped pick up parts of the automobile and the occupants recovered from their fright enough to make inquiries, they found Leonard Taylor was the brother of the driver of the machine—Ollie Taylor—who, with other relatives, drove to Springfield from Gibson City to partake in a family reunion at Washington Park. They shook hands all around then and appeared happy despite the accident. The Taylors in the machine were on their way to Washington Park when the smashup occurred.

Queer Nature Freaks.
San Francisco, Sept. 13.—One chicken with one-half a bill and one eye over its exact center, and another chicken with three half-ills and three eyes, one over each incomplete bill, is a freak nature played with the eggs of Paul Kroll's setting hens. One of the chicks was born with one of the eyes and one of the half-bills that should have been the lot of the other, and before the shells had been completely shed from their backs both prospective hens died.

"If they had been twin chicks hatched out of the same egg, I could understand it," said Kroll. "The two whites and the two yolks might have been sort of scrambled if they had been in one shell, and anything could have happened. But this is beyond me, and I am unable to account for the freak of nature."

For an appetizing picnic sandwich mix cream cheese with cream or fresh butter and add chopped olives.
