

NURSES TO HOLD MEET TO DISCUSS UNIFORM PRICES

Wage Scale Will Provide Different Pay for Graduate and Practical Nurses in the City.

Practically every registered and graduate nurse in Omaha is expected to attend the meeting Wednesday afternoon at Kelpin's hall, 2424 Farnam street, to discuss proposed uniform prices to be charged by professional nurses.

Miss Margaret M. McGreevy, secretary of the state association of nurses, is expected to attend the meeting and will speak on the standards of the registered and graduate nurses and their difference from nonprofessional, practical nurses. Dr. Jennie Callas, member of the board of the Visiting Nurse association, will speak on standards of nurses and the work of the visiting nurse. Mrs. H. C. Sumney, wife of Dr. Sumney, will also be one of the speakers.

According to Mrs. Walter E. Child, 412 South Forty-eighth street, a member of the State Association of Nurses, who has called the meeting, the general public does not know the difference between a graduate nurse and a practical nurse. Many people were overcharged last winter during the influenza epidemic, and for this reason it is proposed to have uniform prices, so that the people will know when they are being overcharged, it was said.

Jitney Ice Stations

Close for the Season After Record Year

Jitney ice stations throughout the city closed yesterday for the season. Approximately 24,000 tons of ice were sold by them during the summer, beginning June 15, a record-breaking business. Ice still may be bought at the plant, Twentieth and Poppleton avenue. The stored supply is exhausted, but throughout the winter this will be replenished so there will be a large reserve to draw on next summer. Additional jitney stations will be established before the next season opens up.

WILL NOT ACCEPT THOSE UNDER WEIGHT

Do you realize that unless your weight is up to normal you are actually in danger of serious illness?

No insurance company will insure those who are underweight.

Many thin people find that they gain weight steadily while taking Father John's Medicine.

The pure food tonic elements, which are contained in this old-fashioned prescription strengthen and build up those who are thin, weak and run down. It is real food and in a form which even the weakest system can easily take up.

Father John's Medicine has been in use over 60 years. Contains no alcohol or dangerous drugs.

Burglar's Paper Made Young Pershing a West Point Cadet

(From an old album at West Point.)
Gen. John Pershing as he appeared when a cadet at West Point in the class of 1886.

Accidentally Dropped It and Johnny, Picking It Up, Saw Congressman Burrow's Announcement—Started in to Clean Up Kirksville Baggage Man Before He Left College.

An anecdote of John is told by Dr. James L. Holloway of Dallas, Tex., a student at Kirksville with John.

"When I arrived at Kirksville, I was a green country boy," says Dr. Holloway.

"I carried my belongings in a small trunk. The baggage man handled his trunk very roughly. When I remonstrated, he looked me over, he laughed. He pitched the trunk into a wagon and pitched it so clumsily that it fell to the ground, broke open and spilled its contents on the street.

"I told the man I would report him, and he laughed. But I did report him, then forgot the matter. Meantime I struck up an acquaintance with John Pershing. Two weeks later we were walking near the station. The baggage man saw me. 'Reported me, did you?' he growled, approaching menacingly. I was a little frightened.

"What's the matter, Holloway?" asked John. I told him the story. "Well, well, we'll clean him up," said John. And he started for the baggage man.

"You know," Dr. Holloway concludes, "John didn't have a chance to touch the man. The man turned and ran away."

Pershing Gets His Degree.

Studies for John continued until 1880, when, having successfully completed the course at the State Normal school, he was graduated with the degree of B. A.

About this time, or soon afterwards—stories of folks regarding this matter vary—while John was away he received a summons from his mother to return home. During Mr. Pershing's absence from home a burglar had broken into the Pershing house or store. John returned, and it was while at home on this occasion that he picked up a newspaper and read in it a notice, buried obscurely in the paper's columns.

The simple announcement was to prove the biggest thing that ever entered John Pershing's life. It was a notice from Congressman Burrows that he could recommend an appointment to West Point.

What the Burglar Did.

Congressman Burrow's announcement in a newspaper, read by chance by John Pershing, marked the big epoch of his life.

John Pershing had been recalled back to his home because a burglar had broken into the Pershing home, or store, during the absence of Mr. Pershing, and because Mrs. Pershing was alarmed. She had sent for John.

The Day of Decision.

Back but a day, his mother's fears allayed, John had seated himself in the cozy living room of his home. There was a table close by his chair, and, looking up, he noticed a newspaper lying where someone had tossed it on top of a pile of books. He picked it up and started casually to read it.

His eyes were arrested by Congressman Burrow's announcement. He read and re-read that announcement.

Then and there, John Pershing made his decision.

He would be a soldier. And as he made that decision, the biggest decision of all his life, so all his life has he made decisions.

True, he talked the matter over with his mother and with his sister, Bessie. So today he talks over with his staff the strategic plans and stupendous operations of the war. But he never hesitates. His mind made up, his purpose clear, he acts.

Might Have Been Lawyer.

That was John Pershing of Laclede days.

That is General Pershing on the battlefields of France.

Mrs. Butler, his sister, Bessie, told me something of his "biggest decision" when I talked with her at her home in Lincoln, Neb.

Before he read the announcement, so some Laclede folks say, John had been considering that life work for him meant either teaching or engaging in the legal profession. Clay C. Biggers, John's schoolmate or boyhood, now a lawyer in Laclede, declares John had even considered becoming his law partner.

Influence of Home Life.

Much was told me when I was in Laclede of the influence which John's "Christian home" had upon his life. In that connection it is interesting to talk with another of the Lomax brothers, William M. Lomax, the oldest of the brothers. He is 77, a veteran of the Civil war, and adjutant of the Phil Kearney Post No. 19, G. A. R., the Laclede Grand Army post.

Mr. Lomax was present in the old First Methodist church of Laclede in May of 1872, when John, then 12, and his brother, Jim, then 10, were taken into the church.

G. A. R. Honors Him.

Mr. Lomax will insist upon showing one the records of a resolution passed by his G. A. R. post on May 4, 1918, concerning the general, and the letter he received from the general in reply.

The resolution reads: "This being the birthplace of General John J. Pershing, the post is pleased to pay high honor to so brave and illustrious a soldier, and

"Whereas he is now leading all the armies of the United States in France and Europe, we feel that the G. A. R. should share with the citizens of Laclede, Mo., in the high honors that have come to the country of Linn and especially to Laclede."

The resolution is signed by Mr. Lomax and John Duckworth acting post commander.

The letter in reply illustrates (by its postscript in the general's own handwriting), his courtesy and his love for his old home never forgotten even in these most vital moments of today.

(Personal.)

Mr. William M. Lomax, Laclede, Mo.

"My dear Mr. Lomax: I have your letter of May 21 telling me of the resolution passed by the Phil Kearney post No. 19. Coming as it does from my old boyhood home the confidence thus expressed is a source of much inspiration to me.

"With very best wishes, believe me always,

"Very sincerely yours,

(Signed)

"JOHN J. PERSHING.

"P. S.—Hope to get back to Laclede some of these days—when the war shall be won."

Father and Son Arrested

For Violation of Game Laws

Joe George, barber, 2644 Dodge street, and his son, Clyde, had just bagged half a dozen teal on Carter lake early yesterday when they were arrested by Deputy Game Warden Kendall for violating the state game laws. Both were taken to central police station. They were later released under $100 bonds. According to the game laws, both men were hunting ducks out of season. The season opens October 16.

For violating of any of the game laws, hunters run the risk of a heavy fine and the confiscation of their guns.

BELIEVE BELGIAN RULERS WILL BE HERE NEXT MONTH

King Albert and His Queen to Arrive in U. S. October 2.

Omaha will in all probability have an opportunity to extend its justly famed welcome to real European aristocracy during the month of October, if the present plans of the king and queen of the Belgians to tour the United States are carried out.

It was learned yesterday that the royal party is to arrive in America on October 2, spend four days in Washington, and then leave for an extended tour of the country.

Immediately after the arrival in this country, the Omaha Chamber of Commerce will telegraph an invitation to King Albert, asking that he include Omaha in his itinerary.

Telegram From Ambassador.

A telegram was received yesterday by Miss May Mahoney, chairman of the Belgian relief work here, from Baron De Cartier, Belgian ambassador to the United States, in reply to an invitation to visit Omaha extended the king and queen through the ambassador.

"Accept my heartfelt thanks and those of the Baroness De Cartier for your kind telegram," says the baron. "I shall communicate to the king's secretary your wish that their majesties visit Omaha, but the program of their journey in America will be arranged by American authorities. I shall advise the secretary of Cardinal Mercier of your desire to have him come to Omaha."

Miss Mahoney is a close acquaintance of the Baron and Baroness de Cartier. A recent letter received from the baron expressed hope that Omaha's wish for a visit from the king might be fulfilled.

The king of the Belgians, one of the few remaining kings who have survived the world war, is one of the most picturesque figures of the age. His heroic fight to free his country from the clutches of the Germans has evoked spontaneous admiration from writers and statesmen, and the esteem in which he is held by his subjects is without precedent.

As a young man, then the count of Flanders, King Albert worked in St. Paul for the Great Northern railroad. He also lived in Seattle, Wash., for a time, and has many friends in both cities. It is thought that the king will desire to visit both cities during the tour of this country, and such a route will lead him through Omaha.

Field Marshal Interned

Washington, Sept. 15.—Former Field Marshal Mackensen now is reported interned at Saloniki. State department dispatches say he arrived in the Greek city last Wednesday.
