

Private Automobile Parking Spaces to Be Revoked Tuesday

All private automobile parking spaces in the downtown district will be revoked by city council at the regular meeting today. This was decided on yesterday at the meeting of the committee of the whole. "Various firms have put up 'No Parking' signs without any authority," said Police Commissioner Ringer. "Nobody has a right to exclusive use of the streets in that manner without the authority of the council. Therefore we will revoke them all and only grant permits where such are absolutely necessary." The parking ordinances have been changed so often recently that even the commissioners don't know the rules. "I would like to have someone tell me where I can park my automobile and for how long," said Commissioner Ure. Partly intended as an advertising novelty, a mechanical calculator has been invented for figuring the cost of any ordinary quantity of gasoline at any price.

Big Sugar Beet Crop Expected to Minimize Shortage In Country

With the exception of the Lincoln and Omaha divisions, the soil in all parts of Nebraska has become too dry for vegetation and cannot be cultivated to the best advantage, the Burlington railroad's weekly crop report issued yesterday, states. The sugar beet crop, however, is reported to be in a satisfactory condition. An abnormally large acreage will be harvested this year in Nebraska, and the crop will at least be normal, according to the report. The large sugar beet crop is expected to minimize the big sugar shortage now prevailing throughout the central states. Not more than half a crop of potatoes will be realized by Nebraska farmers, or approximately 6,500,000 bushels, the report estimates. The Peruvian government will link scattered communities on the eastern slopes of the Andes by an aeroplane service carrying passengers, mail and freight.

TIRED OF GIVING?

"You Don't Know What Feeling Tired Means"

"In Warsaw, which had not been destroyed, a city of one million inhabitants, one of the most prosperous cities of Europe before the war, the streets were lined with people in the pangs of starvation. Famished and rain-soaked, they squatted there, with their elbows on their knees or leaning against the buildings, too feeble to lift a hand for a bit of money or a morsel of bread if one offered it, perishing of hunger and cold. Charity did what it could. The rich gave all that they had, the poor shared their last crust. Hundreds of thousands were perishing. Day and night, the picture is before my eyes—a people starving, a nation dying."—(From a report by the U. S. Food Administration.)

Straw Hat Season Now Officially Closed To Classy Dressers

The straw hat season closed yesterday—absolutely. In fact, among those of the ultra-ultra fashionable men's set like John Lee Webster, C. T. Kountze, C. W. Hull, Joe Barker and Sam Burns, the season closed September 1 and they put their hay lids down in the well-known moth balls until next June. The almanac gives most of the other important dates, but for some reason it omits this important one. It tells us that summer begins on June 21 and that fall on September 22 and such like important calendar events. But not a word about the end of the straw hat season. Still it's pretty generally known when it ends—a sort of an unwritten law, you know. And all us classy dressers buy new winter hats or have the Greek down at the corner revamp our old one for another season on Farnam street and the fashionable boulevards of the city. Oh, what would we men do if it weren't for our fashions. How we dote upon them and how we love to be always up to the minute! Oh, indeed, we must have always the "dernier cri" in fashions, as they say in that dear Paris. So, off with the hay mat and on with the soft one, fellers. The time has come. And besides you can buy a new felt hat for only about twice as much as it cost you last fall. Parents of Youthful Hunters Believe They Were Drowned Police are searching for two 12-year-old boys, Joe Bruno, Fifteenth and Ohio streets, and Harry Tabor, 2623 North Sixteenth street, who disappeared from their homes Sunday. The boys have with them a 22-calibre rifle which they took from the Tabor home. According to friends of the two boys, they were on their way to "shoot big game" at Carter lake. The parents fear they were drowned. Frederick Eggers Dies Frederick Eggers, 66 years old, 1819 Miami street, died Sunday afternoon in a hospital. Death was due to paralysis, from which he suffered a stroke two weeks ago. He is survived by his widow and six children. Funeral services will be held at 2 Tuesday afternoon at Crosby's undertaking parlors. Burial will be in Forest Lawn cemetery.
