

COUNCIL TIES ON SUSPENSION OF TWO OFFICERS

Commissioner Zimman, Who Introduced Ordinance, Supported by Butler and Falconer—Towl Away.

A resolution offered by Commissioner Zimman, in city council meeting yesterday, calling for the suspension of policemen George W. Brigham and George Armstrong, resulted in a vote of three to three. Commissioner Towl being absent.

Commissioner Towl is out of the city. As a rule he has been voting with Mr. Zimman on propositions of this kind.

Mr. Zimman was supported by Commissioners Butler and Falconer, Mayor Smith and Commissioners Ringer and Ure voted against the resolution.

Ringer Makes Protest.

When the resolution was read by the city clerk, directing the police commissioner to suspend the officers who were bound from police to district court on charges of manslaughter in connection with the murder of Eugene Scott, Plaza hotel bellboy, Commissioner Ringer, visibly affected, arose and said:

"I believe it would be the part of wisdom for the commissioners to read the evidence of the coroner's inquest before they vote on this resolution."

Falconer Makes Statement.

After the meeting Commissioner Falconer said:

"I voted for the resolution because I believe that in view of the charges filed by the county attorney against these officers, this council is not justified in keeping them on the police force. Whether they are guilty or innocent is not the question. They have been charged with a crime and should not be retained on the department until the cases have been disposed of."

Commenting on his resolution, in an interview, Mr. Zimman said: "It is not only a matter of discipline in the police department, but I believe these officers should be suspended on account of the public criticism that is heard on every hand. I am convinced that the general public demands the suspension of these men."

"I believe all of the men who participated in the Plaza hotel raid should be suspended."

Ure Explains Vote.

Explaining his vote against the resolution and in support of Commissioner Ringer, Commissioner Ure said:

"Armstrong and Brigham were not involved in the shooting at the Plaza hotel. The county attorney filed charges against these men to discredit Mr. Ringer, but he will not discredit him with me."

The Zimman resolution read as follows:

"Resolved by the city council, That in the interest of fair play and justice, as well as for the need of discipline and good order throughout the police department, Commissioner Ringer is directed to suspend Officers George W. Brigham and George Armstrong, and detach said officers from the police force until criminal charges filed by the state of Nebraska against the accused officers have been tried before a court and jury."

Armstrong and Brigham were members of the Paul Sutton-Elmer Thomas-Ringer raiding squad at the time of the shooting at the Plaza hotel. Since that tragedy Armstrong has been reduced to rank of chauffeur and Brigham assigned to a beat. In this connection the morals squad has been disbanded.

Ringer Asks New Law for Soft Drink Parlors

An ordinance introduced Tuesday in the city council by Commissioner Ringer, provides that when a soft drink permit is revoked, the location shall thereafter be denied a similar permit. The ordinance further provides that when owners of soft drink places are convicted in police court on charges of violating the prohibitory law, the clerk of the court shall immediately send a transcript to the council, which shall forthwith revoke the permit.

My Heart and My Husband

ADELE GARRISON'S New Phase of "Revelations of a Wife"

The News that Alice Holcombe Told to Madge.

The news of Kenneth Stockbridge's arrest, which Alice Holcombe brought me, was a surprise only in the quickness with which the law had acted. I had feared from the first that there could be no other ending to the sordid train of circumstances surrounding Milly Stockbridge's death. And while my sympathies were strongly with my school principal—whose long provocation to anything short of murder no person familiar with the history of the family could deny—yet I could not blind myself to the fact that there were a number of circumstances which needed explanation.

With a little thrill of fright I remembered that one of those circumstances, the most damning of all, was known only to myself. The fact that Milly Stockbridge's call to me had been interrupted by some one who had hurt her and disconnected the telephone at the same time, was, as far as I knew, a secret shared only by myself, the dead woman and the unknown intruder.

Had the telephone operator been listening, after all? Was this the thing which had pointed the finger of suspicion at the principal? If so, I foresaw painful publicity, humiliating involvement in the case for myself.

No time, now, though, for thinking of self. Before me lay a woman whose need of all my ministering strength was written upon her tortured face. To her had come that worst of all tragedies, disgrace for the man she loved, made more poignant by her inability either publicly to share his suffering or to alleviate it in any way. I must not only rally all my faculties to aid her, but I must let no word or look escape me which would lead her to suspect that I did not share her absolute belief in Kenneth Stockbridge's innocence.

Not that I had actually a conviction of his guilt in my own mind. But I by no means shared Alice Holcombe's blind belief, although I knew that I must feign acquiescence in her views.

To this end I put a startled note into my voice as I answered her.

Madge is Worried.

"No! Why, how in the world could they do that? What is the charge?" I saw that in the overstrung condition of her nerves it was far better to let her talk all her horror out.

"I believe they call it being held for the grand jury," she said wearily, "but it simply means that they think they think—he killed Milly."

"What nonsense!" I exclaimed, with as much heartiness as I could infuse into my voice. "Why, there is no proof at all! On what are they basing their charge?"

I awaited her answer breathlessly. Had that secret telephone conversation been rehearsed at the coroner's inquest? But her answer reassured me.

"Oh, on those marks on her wrists!" she replied contemptuously. "And the rage her people say he was in when he came to their house. Oh, the way they turned against him today was something horrible! You would think he had been a fiend incarnate all these years instead of being gentleness and tenderness itself to Milly. He ought to have killed her long ago"—Alice Holcombe's face twisted itself into a grimace unpleasant to see—"it ever anybody deserved a violent end it was she, but Kenneth Stockbridge never did it."

"Of course not," I soothed, "but tell me just what did her people say?"

"What didn't they say, you mean," she retorted. "But the vital part of their testimony was the fact that Kenneth had come to them in a rage demanding that they aid him in divorcing Milly, and that when they refused he left the house muttering threats. Of course, that testimony, combined with the fresh marks upon her wrists, and the fact that the poison in her stomach has been proved to be the same kind Kenneth had in his photographic studio, was enough for that set of crooks in charge of the farce today. But I don't believe even they would have dared to arrest him if it hadn't been for Kenneth himself. I don't understand him at all. I think the shock of Milly's going in so terrible a way must have turned his brain."

She stopped short and began to twist her hands together in her lap. I prodded her back to speech with a sharp question.

"What did he do?"

"That's the trouble, he didn't do anything," she returned. "He simply sat like a graven image all through the proceedings, and whenever he was asked a question his invariable answer was: 'I have nothing to say.' Even when the coroner turned to him and directly asked him: 'Did you or did you not make those marks upon your wife's wrists?' he made the same stereotyped answer: 'I have nothing to say.' The coroner put it an-

Arrangements Made to Secure Doctor's Return

Washington, Sept. 16.—Definite arrangements have been made with the leader of the bandits who kidnapped Dr. J. M. Smith, an American physician near Chihuahua City, Mexico, for his release on payment of $6,000 ransom today, according to a Chihuahua City dispatch to the State department.

Other way: "Do you deny it?" and Kenneth returned: "I neither deny nor affirm it."

"Oh, it hurt him terribly with the people there. I could see that! And now he is in jail—think of it—in jail, the kindest, truest man who ever breathed."

Automobile Crashes Into Canvas Topped "Prairie Schooner"

A smashup occurred late Monday night between an ancient and a modern type of vehicle, when an automobile crashed into a canvas topped "prairie schooner," near Fifty-fourth and Center streets.

The accident was reported to the police by William Jensen, 2320 North Twenty-fourth street, who saw it. When the police arrived on the scene both the automobile and the prairie schooner had disappeared. A quantity of broken glass on the ground showed what had happened to the windshield of the automobile and several pools of blood indicated the injuries to the horses that were drawing the "prairie schooner." Mr. Jensen said two of the four horses were badly injured in the crash.

Yes it is harmless and never irritates.

To Quickly Remove Ugly Hairs From Face

(Beauty Notes)

Beauty-destroying hairs are soon banished from the skin with the aid of a delatone paste, made by mixing some water with a little plain powdered delatone. This is spread upon the hairy surface for 2 or 3 minutes, then rubbed off and the skin washed to remove the remaining delatone. This simple treatment banishes every trace of hair and leaves the skin without a blemish. Caution should be used to be certain that it is delatone you buy.
