

Sleep! O gentle sleep!
Nature's soft nurse, how have I frightened thee,
That thou no more wilt weigh my eyelids down,
And sleep my senses in forgetfulness?
—Shakespeare.

Still in thy right hand carry gentle peace,
To silence envious tongues; be just, and fear not.

WOMAN'S SECTION OF THE BEE

Cardinals Hold the Center of Washington's Social Set

Bee Bureau, Washington, Sept. 27.

Washington has been rejoicing in a real ecclesiastical atmosphere in this week's social affairs. The war's stalwart, spiritual figure, Cardinal Mercier of Belgium, who did so much towards saving what is left of Belgium arrived here on Tuesday. He came primarily to assist in the dedication of the Sulpician seminary of the Catholic university, at which Cardinal Gibbons officiated. They were entertained at luncheon on that day by the president of the seminary, Dr. Edward R. Dyer, and at dinner by the Catholic university dignitaries.

In between the two entertainments the greatest social function since the departure of President and Mrs. Wilson on their swing around the circle, was given.

It was a great reception to the cardinal, with the Belgian minister to be ambassador as soon as the president returns, and Baroness de Cartier a bride of little more than two months, as hosts. The minister has leased temporarily the home of Mrs. W. J. Boardman and Miss Mabel Boardman where they will remain until after the visit of King Albert and Queen Elizabeth of Belgium.

Some members of their suite will be guests there. The reception served to introduce to diplomatic, official and smart social circles not only the distinguished prelate, but the bride of the minister who had returned to Washington but a week before.

Six hundred invitations were issued, to the vice president and Mrs. Marshall, the members of the cabinet, the diplomatic corps, scores of senators and representatives, and their wives, and the prominent members of Washington's smart resident circles. Of course, many people of the 600 were absent from the city. The vice president and Mrs. Marshall were not present. They had just returned from their disappointing trip, of not getting where they had planned to go, their home in Indianapolis.

Receiving Line.

The French ambassador and Mme. Jusserand stood in the receiving line with the Belgian minister, the baroness and the cardinal, the last named standing between the hosts. The baroness was very lovely in a gown of dark chiffon and charmeuse, made on rather Oriental lines, with dull gold embroidery. She had on her famous string of pearls, perfectly matched gems wound about her throat several times. The dark, rich tint of her draped and graceful gown formed a sharp contrast and a charming setting for the bright scarlet of the cardinal's robe and cap. They were of the brightest scarlet, and his tall, thin, towering figure was most striking. More so, even, is his head and face.

It is one of those wonderful faces, impossible to properly describe, but from which emanates a great light and magnetism.

He met on this occasion many whom he had known in Belgium before the awful calamity of 1914. It was a very happy occasion. Cardinal Gibbons was the guest of honor next to Cardinal Mercier, and Cardinal Gibbons has a wide circle of real friends in Washington, where he is entertained at dinners and other functions every season by a few of the elect, except war seasons. He held a little levee of his very own in the drawing room and was a stately figure in his superb flowing circular, or cassock, of the richest red moire silk, the kind which stands alone, worn over a robe, and a short jacket of the most exquisite rare old point lace, almost priceless in value. His cap is of a richer and darker red than Cardinal Mercier's, but those red touches were lovely bits of color in Mrs. Boardman's lovely home which has been the scene of so many official parties with the most distinguished guests possible. Miss Boardman was a guest on this occasion and enjoyed the rather novel situation of being welcomed in her own home.

Nebraskans.

Mrs. Hitchcock and Miss Ruth Hitchcock have returned to their Washington home and joined the senator after nearly four months' absence.

Representative and Mrs. M. O. McLaughlin of York, Neb., who have been nursing a very sick daughter for a couple of weeks, are much encouraged now that she will soon be out again. They have given up all their time to the care of her lately.

The Ak-Sar-Ben club held its first meeting since last spring on Thursday evening in the Wilson Normal school, Miss Viola Wetherill, president, presiding. They made their plans for the forthcoming season. It is quite wonderful that the club has grown so successfully from the little circle of knitters, of war working girls from Nebraska, who met every week with Mrs. Norris, wife of the senator from Nebraska, and with Mrs. Reavis, wife of the representative from Falls City, alternately, to the big club which has to seek a large and roomy meeting place. Of course the girls are doing any war relief work which may be called for and they do much in a social way to relieve the home-sickness of fellow war workers and soldiers from their state. Their dances are given at least once each month. Mrs. Norris and Mrs. Reavis are chaperones. Mr. and Mrs. Walter Penfield, nee Bacon, of Omaha, have returned and opened their pretty home on California street, after a summer on the north shore of Massachusetts.

Fall Fashions

By GERTRUDE BERESFORD.

Paris, Sept. 27.—Criticism of the extreme modes as worn at French watering places are heard on all sides, and while there seems to be small likelihood of the masses aping the ultra modes, the influence of such a coterie of smart women is bound to be felt. A continuance of the richness and luxury of materials and jewels is expected, but after the effect of the first flush of exhilaration over victory has subsided the French couturiers themselves look for a modification of the present mode. The Byzantine and Oriental influences generally are very strong and show no decrease in favors.

To clean a plaster cast rub it all over with a mixture of turpentine, ammonia and beeswax in equal proportions. Remove this with a brush and wipe with a soft cloth and the cast will be thoroughly cleansed.

Put a small bag of unlacquened lime inside the piano just underneath the cover and the wires will never rust. The lime will absorb all moisture and prevent dampness.

Choose Straight Haired Girl for Wife

Everybody knows that a woman's crowning glory is her hair, but there are not many people who realize that a woman's character can be told by her hair as well as by her face and hands.

Coarse, straight hair shows evenness of character, and when light or dark denotes physical strength. When the hair is dark and straight its owner has, in addition to physical strength, an intense and passionate disposition. When coarse, dark hair accompanies development of jaw and full lips it indicates sensuality and a lack of fine feeling.

A woman with fine, straight hair, especially if it is dark in color, is usually of a firm and high-spirited nature, rather inclined toward obstinacy, but loyal and dependable. She makes an excellent wife.

A very sensitive people have very fine hair, fine eyebrows and lashes. Fine hair also denotes love of refinement, great love of beauty and interest in art.

Golden hair, varying in tint, shows its possessor to be capricious in affections, nervous, sensitive and rather inclined to be touchy in regard to matters of a trivial nature, says the Pittsburg "Dispatch." She is rather inclined to sulk when her wishes are opposed, and sometimes makes herself extremely miserable without any real cause.

Pale hair and that shade usually called mouse color are signs of colorless natures. A pale-tressed woman's temperament does not show variation; she will act in a certain way under given conditions and there is no uncertainty as to her behavior.

The most common color of hair in England and America is mid-brown. It shows a happy blending of traits, with a predominance of intellect over heart.

Red-haired people are generally supposed to be hot tempered. They are inclined to be hasty, but are never vindictive. This quickness of temper is due to impulsiveness and a love of speaking out what they have in mind. They are usually of a sunny disposition and are honest and truthful, but rather vain and eager for admiration.

Now Big Car Owners

In It They Find Wanted Large Car Qualities, With Advantages Exclusive to Small Cars

Turn to Essex

Consider how many, who formerly bought only large, high-priced cars, now own an Essex.

It proves that size was not what they sought. They paid big premiums for qualities that small cars did not offer.

These are people with wide motor experience. They prize such light car advantages as economy and nimbleness.

But heretofore, only large, costly cars met their other requirements of performance, riding ease and appearance.

Such Is the Car You Want

And they are chief among Essex enthusiasts. It meets their demands for a complete car. Accustomed to fine car qualities, they appreciate the way in which Essex matches the best standards of cars in higher price range.

The Essex was designed to embody the wanted qualities of the finest cars, in a size it would be possible to build at a moderate price.

Examine the Essex Rid in It

Everywhere you hear how Essex meets those exactions. Consider just what all this comment and praise of Essex means. Surely no other car ever excited such unrestrained enthusiasm.

And note this fact. Except in size and economy you have probably never heard the Essex compared to another small car. Men inevitably seek comparison for Essex qualities among high-priced cars. There only, do they find parallels by which to describe it.

They match its acceleration against certain makes noted for that quality. Its speed they compare to the swiftest. Every community has its story of how the Essex, "in high," tops some local "bogie" hill.

And now that it has become so well known, men are making it the performance standard. It is not unusual to hear some say of a high-priced car they admire: "Why it climbs like an Essex," or "It gets away at crossings with the Essex cars."

Now They Buy the Essex

Your first glance will note the distinctive finish, the materials and workmanship. See the care even in the smallest details.

Its solid, compact assembly, that has been proved in every trying test, will satisfy you of endurance powers.

Then take a ride in the Essex. It will reveal qualities that charm you as they have nearly a million others.

You will agree that only big production permits the sale of such a car at the Essex price. Though they are being built at the rate of 20,000 a year, the demand exceeds supply.

You can be sure of an Essex when you want it only by placing your order now.

When Speed Is Required

Answering an emergency call, two Reo Speed Wagons carried 2,500-lb. loads of newspapers from Los Angeles to El Centro, a distance of 287 miles, in 12 hours and 50 minutes elapsed time.

This trip of itself is not remarkable for a Reo, but we mention it as confirmation of what we have previously said about the time saving and efficiency of Reo Speed Wagons when a transportation task must be accomplished quickly and economically.

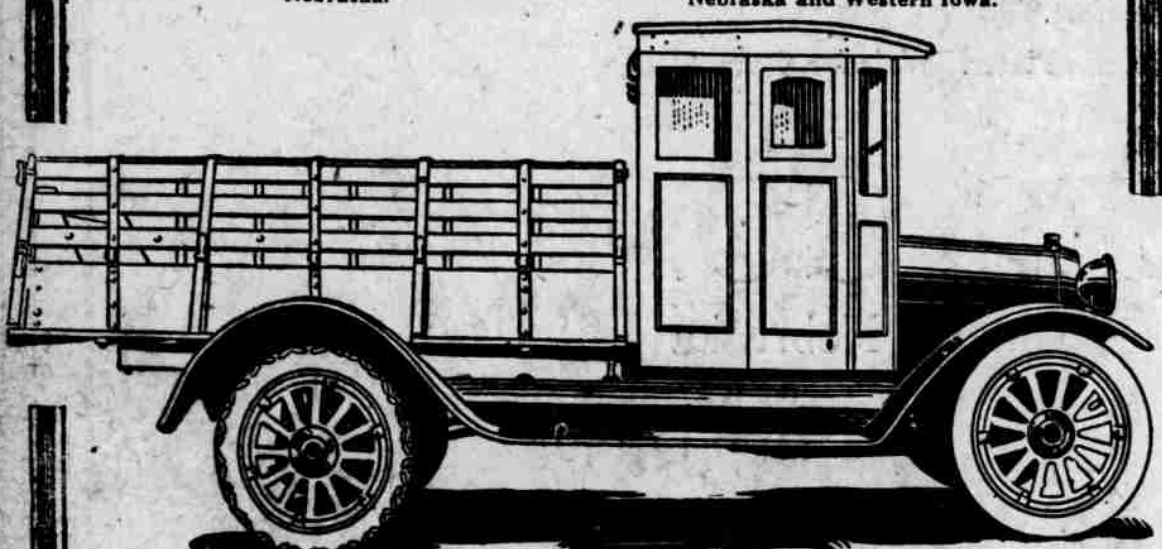

Reo Speed Wagons have made many records of continuous operation for periods of 200,000 miles or more without having lost any one period of 24 hours for overhaul or repairs.
