BRINGING UP FATHER—

FARGE ON STAGE; TRAGEDY HOLDS BOARDS OUTSIDE

Omaha Theaters Keep Open, Presenting Plays in Full, While Mob Rages Around Court House.

For the second time in its history the Boyd theater was last night the scene of a play, while an angry, unreasoning mob was storming around the court house and county jail across the street, endeavoring to get a victim for lynch law.

The pretty little farce that was being enacted on the stage had no chance alongside the greater tragedy taking place outside. Speeches by the actors were interrupted by the hoarse cheering of the rioters, and the little ripples of applause inside the theater were amid the crackling of the occasional fusillades outside. The competition was unequal and unfair.

Actors Stick to Work. Those who did stay inside must have come away from the theater with added admiration for the actors, because of their seeming imperturbability. They went right on, playing the roles assigned them, apparently indifferent to the surging menace in the streets.

Intrinsically, "She Walked in Her Sleep," is as light as a dream and under favorable circumstances would be most entertaining. The possibilities for fun arising from the unconscious actions of a pretty girl who wanders around a hotel, clad in the filiciest of robes, and enters rooms from the outside, and adding kleptomaniac to her somnambulism must occur to anyone.

Other Theaters Stay Open. At the Brandeis theater Fiske O'Hara and his splendid company, little farther removed from the scene of action, had to endure much the same sort of interruption. His play, "Down Limerick Way," was given in full, however, and shows every outward and visible sign of being worthy the attention given it.

Carnival of Fun at Orpheum. This week's vaudeville program at the Orpheum is a real carnival of fun in high order, and Ak-Sar-Ben visitors will find it an entertainment of unusual merit.

GOMPERS SAYS STEEL MEN WILL GAIN VICTORY

Sunday Passes Quietly in the Steel Strike Zone of Pittsburgh District—Meeting Held.

New York, Sept. 28.—Victory for the striking steel workers is predicted by Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, who, on the eve of his departure for Washington, asserted that the strike "in all probability will be discussed at President Wilson's industrial conference to begin in Washington on October 6."

"The steel workers will win because their cause is just," said Mr. Gompers. He contended that public opinion leaned toward the strikers in their fight for collective bargaining and said that important developments in the steel situation are looked for in Washington this week. The lowering of labor standards would "precipitate a calamity" he added.

Judge Gary Scored. The labor chieftain decried the attitude taken by Judge Gary, chairman of the board of directors of the United States steel corporation, and characterized the charges that the strike was inspired by radicalism as "a lie." He said that the highest personal regard for Judge Gary, he said, "the time has passed when a corporation can regard its employees as wards."

Defending John Fitzpatrick, chairman of the strikers' national committee, and William Z. Foster, secretary of the steel workers union, from charges of radicalism, he said: "You have not heard of them making revolutionary speeches in this strike," and added that both of them had renounced radical theories years ago.

Judge Gary's refusal to meet the two men on the ground that they did not represent a majority of the employes on strike, was censured by Mr. Gompers, who said that Judge Gary would have been in a better position to know if Fitzpatrick and Foster represented the men had he conferred with them.

Sunday Passes Quietly. Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 28.—Sunday passed quietly in the steel strike zone of the Pittsburgh district. Mass meetings, called by union organizers, were held in several parts of Allegheny county under the supervision of the sheriff and the authorities had no trouble in handling them.

The crowds gathered and dispersed without disorder. Steel companies expect that to-morrow will show a radical change in their favor. Operating officials of the corporation have been bending all their efforts toward making a good showing when the plants in this city resume operation for the week.
