OMAHA WOMEN IMPLICATED IN BLUFFS THEFT

Waive Examination Nonchalantly on Charge of Stealing Two Sealskin Coats.

Mrs. "Hazel Reed," one of the two Omaha women caught in the act of "lifting" two sealskin coats, each worth $500, at the Beno store, Council Bluffs, just before closing time Wednesday evening, was released from the county jail Friday afternoon when friends in Omaha came forward with $1,000 cash bond.

Both women were held to the dis trict court grand jury under $1,000 bonds after a hearing in police court Thursday morning, but the younger, who gave the name of Mrs. "Mabel Miller," had friends at hand who furnished her bond before she left the police station.

Known to Be Omaha Woman. "Mrs. Miller" is only 24 years old, pretty and small in stature. Her companion, "Hazel Reed," is a large regal looking woman, and admitted she is 30 years old. She insisted that her home is in Kansas City, but it was definitely learned yesterday that she lives in Omaha given are believed to be fictitious. It is bel'eved the elder woman deliberately planned the theft. She attended the "style show" given by the women of St. Paul Episcopal church at the Auditorium building in Council Bluffs Tuesday night and greatly admired the two sealskin coats that were part of the Beno exhibit there. It is believed she induced her theft enterprise and that both returned for that purpose. They might have succeeded in getting out of the store with the loot without detection if they had taken the ele-vator instead of walking down the stairway from the second floor.

Edge of Coats Showed. They had provided themselves with lightweight raincoats, which they carried over their arms, and used these coats to conceal the others. Floor Manager Madsen the same time offer happened to be standing near the his club and gun. foot of the stairs as the women descended. The raincoats concealed the tops, but not the undersides of the sealskins, and Madsen was con-siderably astonished to see two women carrying coats in such a manner. They were never out of his sight after he followed them out of the store until they dropped the coats four blocks from the store.

Boy's Threat Brings Out

Squad of Police in Hurry A squad of police reserves left the central station at 6 o'clock last night on the double-quick in response to a report that a boy at Fourteenth and Mason streets was attempting to blow up the neighborhood with that Willie Coamer, 15 years old, liv-ing in the rear of 1313 Mason street, was threatening "death and destruc-tion" to two of his colored playmates, Leslie and Rose Lee Leslie, living next door. Young Coamer had a bundle of sticks similar in size to dynamite sticks in his hands.

Lincoln, Neb., Oct. 3.-Speaking night in opposition to the league of nations, Senator James A. Reed, democrat of Missouri, said the league would breed rather than prevent wars.

For the United States to become party to the league, he asserted, would mean that Americans would "have to pour out their blood in controveries 9,000 miles from our shores." Declaring that President Wilson had said that the assembly of the league was only a "debating society," the Missouri senator described the assembly as a powerful part of the league and declared that t elected four of the nine members of the league's council.

As a member of the league the United States, Senator Reed said, would undertake to respect and preserve against external attack the existing political independence of members of the league.

This, he declared, would be an ab-solute contract, and the United States would have to defend against attack every member of the league whether "they are right or wrong." If the province of Shantung were given to Japan and Shantung rebelled and China went to her aid the United States would be bound by the contract to "use her blood in the quarrels of those yellow men," the speaker said. A crowd which comfortably filled the Lincoln auditorium gave Senator Reed respectful attention during an address which occupied nearly two hours, at times applauding some of his declarations.
