

TO WEAR DRESS OF OLDEN TIME AT CENTENNIAL

Daughters of '76 and '12 Arrange Unique Parade for Event at Fort Calhoun Saturday.

Women of Nebraska are to play an important part in the Fort Atkinson centennial Saturday at Fort Calhoun, 12 miles north of Omaha, and hundreds of them will be present.

Mrs. Edgar H. Allen, regent of the Omaha chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, has been in communication with most of the 185 members of the organization and has assurances that at least 100 of them will be in Calhoun to join in the parade to start at 10:30 in the morning.

Wear Old Time Dress. Most of these women will wear the costumes of 50 to 60 years ago. To get these they have dug deep into attics and trunks and have resurrected the gowns and bonnets that were in style long before members of the youngest set were born.

Mrs. O. A. Scott, president of the Daughters of the War of 1812, is in close touch with the members of this organization and is advised that 75 to 85 will be in the parade. They like the Daughters of the American Revolution, as far as possible, will be garbed in clothing that was fashionable in the days of long ago.

A feature of the women's section of the parade will be the Logan Fontenelle flag, now in the possession of Mrs. Harriet McMurphy. This flag, it will be remembered, was presented to Chief Fontenelle, an Omaha Indian, who was always a warm friend of the whites and by him passed down to his ancestors. It is said to be the oldest flag in Nebraska. It carries the usual stripes of red and white, but in the field of blue there are but 31 stars, indicating that at the time when it was made there were but this number of states in the union.

Arrangements for a special train to run from Omaha to Fort Calhoun have been completed. It will leave the Webster street depot at 9 Saturday morning, carrying the soldiers and all others who desire to go to the centennial celebration. The fare will be 52 cents for the round trip. It is expected that by Saturday the auto road between Omaha and Fort Calhoun will be in splendid condition.

Divorce Courts

Two dollars a week is the sum which Frank Miller gave his wife, Mary, during their married life of more than 11 years, she alleges in a petition for divorce from him filed in district court. She says she was forced to buy her clothing and other things from this sum.

Marguerite Conolley married Thomas Conolley in 1917 shortly before he went into the army. While he was away she worked as a stenographer. When he was discharged last May he refused to support her, she says in a petition for divorce filed in district court. She asks for the restoration of her maiden name, Cahill.

Carl Adams charges Helen Adams with extreme cruelty in a petition for divorce filed in district court.

Elizabeth Armstrong, on testimony that her husband, William, has abandoned her, was granted a divorce and restoration to her maiden name, Lindsay, by Judge Day in divorce court.
