Woman's Section

Who Is Vain? Before the Heart Beats Camera Men Prove the Answer

One Famous Doctor Declares That People Should Eat According to the Curve of the Back-Stenographers! Bookkeepers! Wives! Take Notice.

By GABBY DETAYLS.

pearance.

their own attire.

WIVES, stenographers, book-keepers and employers! (VANITY, vanity, all is van-ity." And as usual the Look well to the backs of office help and others. It makes no difference how fat the fact that women are ever vain. you are, or how tall or short, but but-do they stop to consider that what is your back like? If you are perhaps they themselves are just a triffe so? Says Dr. Arnold Genthe, "flat-hipped," and are a stenographer or office worker, you're all wrong! You should be a policeman or an artist's model, or fill any other position that necessitates standing all day, for flat-hipped peo- father fusses and frets because his

If you are narrow backed, you are classed with the lion, and should be his best girl? Yes, and each time fed meat. If broad backed, the type the family is starting to some affair, that catalogues as "flat-hipped," you father and brother both bother evare on a par with the elephant, must feed upon vegetables, and are capable of enduring forever and almost the day after.

These are but two of the things Dr. Clinton E. Achorn of New York is preparing to tell the world through a series of one-reel pic-

'It is just as ridiculous to prescribe a diet for a person without looking at their back as it is to prescribe without knowing the symp-toms," said Dr. Achorn after a private showing of his picturized

Then too, to prescribe a diet according to the idea of the disease is all wrong. When the narrow-backed individual, the carnivorous eater is sick, feed him meat. His anatomy makes meat imperative in making strength. The broad-backed individual or herboferous eater would be poisoned by the same supply of meat the narrow backed person would eat normally.

There is but one thing a man or woman can be made of: a baby. What kind of a man or woman is to be made, depends upon how the baby is cultured. Milk and eggs and strength-giving foods every one realizes the necessity of; but wheth-er he or she will be of the flator the narrow-backed type without great powers of endurance, all depend up-on the posture given the child. This comes from the twist the sacrum does or does not take. At birth the sacrum is pliable and straight. Up to the age of 16 it is forming its line and hardening. From then on it is curved, making the weight of the body hang from a curved line or straight, allowing an inexhaustable supply of endurance according to the training of "The woman who must sit down every time she gets near a chair, or hates to walk or stand at any time, is not lazy. Her sacrum is curved and she is not flat-hipped. The flat-hipped person may weigh 250 pounds, but if their back is flat and straight from the waist down, they'll want to stand and will be able to endure ten times as much as the slight person carrying no excess weight, but with a curved sacrum and a narrow back.

The narrow-backed person can eat meat, lobsters, fish, anything in the meat or fowl line to an amount that it would seem impossible for a single person to consume if you. are viewing the amount from the broad-back viewpoint.
"The one best diet to follow is.

eat what your appetite craves, and get all the flavor possible from it. Do people eat naturally? Yes, ordinarily. A few years ago nine students in one of the well-known colleges followed the 'eat what you please' diet. In three months they gained 50 per cent on endurance tests. They ate non-proteid foods. and in the next three months had made a 97 per cent increase and had cut their meat diet down 60 per

"If your craving is for meat, and your family feeds you vegetables, it only means your build is not constructed like that of the one who does the planning of the meals. Attention should be given the matter, for it is just as serious to feed a family of different persons the same food as it is to feed all the animals in the zoo the same feed. Look at your hips, the spread of your back or curve of the spine, and order your meat and choose your position or select your help."

S IT true that economy must be practiced by those in high posi-tions: Can it be possible that royalty must count the pennies, as it were? When Queen Elizabeth appeared in Omaha, Wednesday morning, she was wearing a tan coat trimmed with fur. One of those unusually curious women was present and inquired eagerly as to the kind of fur which was used on the regal wrap. Elizabeth, ever gracious, replied that it was "war fur." To which answer she was made to give an explanation by the questioner. been understood that although the Belgian royal family is royalty, it has never been at all pretentious. The very fact, however, that the queen used the term "war fur" shows that she is not accustomed to wearing anything so plebian and betrays the fact that her majesty is effect that the trace and held them production.

The centenary of Jenny Lind, Miss Lang did not return to the stage. Even now he is loath to play on Broadway, the mecca of the theatrical world, for it means closing her delightful home on Long Island and living in New York City."

Mr. Louis C. Nash was selected by the board of governors as chair
The centenary of Jenny Lind, The Swedigh Nighting als?"

The swedigh night in the stage. Even now he is loath to play on Broadway, the mecca of the the atrical world, for it means closing the theater who he is loath to play on Broadway, the mecca of the theating and decoration.

The work without a thought of the stage. Even now he is loath to play on Broadway, the mecca of the theating who is affair with its pageant and decorations.

The work without a thought of the stage. Even now he is loath to play on Broadway, the mecca of the theating with its pageant and decorations.

The swedigh Nighting als?

The swedigh trays the fact that her majesty is affected by the H. C. L. just as the stock audiences and held them prisches of us.

The centenary of Jenny Lind, "The Swedish Nightingale," will be celebrated next year.

would not spoil

By A. K.

To let you see Behind the curtain-To lift the mask From human pose Or to disclose Bare honest facts. I'll let you dream And dream and dream Of mighty men I'll smile The while You worship at their shrine. women have to bear the brunt of the remark. Those super-The great wise judge-The generalior males constantly hold up to us A president or two Have stood for all Worth while things And dangerous it is famous New York photographer:
"Woman is really not the vainer sex; in fact, it is the man who is al-

To rob Youth Of its idols Before Experience Brings Wisdom To replace them. The mysteries Of their master minds Stand you in awe And give you thrills-Far goals to reach. This proves they're good For something If but to inspire The younger born. But stay far away From their feet of clay Little hero worshiper-

Gabby, of course, wants to be broadminded and fair in all things Lest their greatness Is dimmed by proximity-Or the pose be transparent and willingly agrees that women are also vain. Could she deny it? It And cheap. is, however, true that although a With my own hand woman has more primping to do, the To show you the smallness— The selfishness men of the household are generally using the mirrors much longer than The cheat that's in them-I haven't the heartthe girls. And why is it that such are the glaring facts of the matter? There is only one explanation that seems to fully clear away all won-Woman is naturally pretty and beautiful and poor man, who was created without these qualities. sadly feels the loss of them. It is not surprising then that these creatures, deprived of that beauty which they hold so dear, should seek endlessly after it. And Gabby would give just a little suggestion to her own sex. Remember man is vain and flattery is one of the surest weapons to be used against him.

Go on dreaming.

ways the more anxious over his ap-

Haven't you often noticed how tie is not at just the right angle, or how brother diligently brushes and brushes his hair before calling on ery one by urging haste and at the last minute they discover at least a dozen imaginary things wrong with ABBY passes along to her U readers. from Esther Newman who is now in New York attending Columbia university. Niss Newman is digging into the heart of Broadway and the theatrical world. From it she draws many conclusions: "As tor my impressions of Broad-

Mrs. Louis C. Nash Was the General Behind and Intelligence Squad Before Gala Ball

pressions—their faces show their is her own gracious self.
suffering so clearly. But one won"Miss Lang was married two years

The result is that the Gabby now Omaha stock stage for more than 10 their honeymoon in China. Until knows that squirrel is the so-called years, made her debut on Broadway the past summer, when she played war fur. Of course, it has always Wednesday night in the Shubert way, you know this isn't the first that no other leading woman who time I've been here. But the thing has played in Omaha has ever attained her popularity. Miss Lang's ber of women, slipping along to mid- work now shows a finer nolish than dle age, and yet clinging tenaciously it did in the old stock days, which to every shred of what remains of is revealed in her grace of gesture youth in order to earn their livings. and the modulations and inflections. They are so grotesque with their of a wonderfully trained voice. She wrinkled, painted faces and their appears to be younger and lovelier dresses made for girls. It is pitiful than she was during her engageto see the hoplessness in their ex- ments in Omaha. Personally, she ders what is to become of them all ago in Denver to John Holliday, after they are just a little older." shortly after closing a stock season "Eva Lang, former idol of the at the Boyd theater. They spent with her husband in stock in Clevethose women who were responsible ner. been understood that although the production of "The Dancer" at the land, Miss Lang did not return to ball of 1919 was a vastly different who went ahead on location. One in each line of endeavor and secured lieutenants and everyone, and she > man of the ball committee. But, ham's fairy story suggestion. She made the pageant a success. They been the tpic of conversation in Mrs. Louis C. Nash was selected by immediately communicated with were so fine to work with!"

Ak-Sar-Ben balls have been au- her husband to do the work-and Miss Lillian Fitch at Chicago, who Others are not so modest in "A man who has fought in the

for its success know full well how Mrs. Nash was the "General" be- sult with Mr. William G. Colling on has been fair and impartial throughmuch real labor, anxiety and sacri- hind the movement and also the the subjects of decorations; she hur- out-not only to newspapers but to nual events for many years and she did it in a most creditable man- came on to instruct the girls in their speaking of the general's work. It artistic work; she hastened to con-is generally conceded that her work When he sees a fool friend start to affair with its pageant and decorations. It was entirely new from to the work without a thought of "But I deserve no credit," blushed and trying position with a smile Is the one who knows danger and

Mrs. Nash, "for I only did the hust- and with friends.

Mr. Louis C. Nash was selected by the board of governors as chairby the board of governors as chair-Mrs. Nash's striking resemmany circles during the past week

Camouflage Tools Are Ribbon

With a Yard or Two of. Ribbon a Gown May be Made or Marred.

By ELEANOR GUNN.

A yard or so of ribbon in the hands of an enthusiastic woman may make or mar a gown. Ribbon counters have a lure all their own. It is sometimes almost impossible to pass by without making a purchase, and often, alas, it is a purchase not hitched to a constructive

Many a thing, particularly ribbon, may be lovely in itself, but very, difficult to use deftly. Some of the cleverest hats of the season have been fashioned of ribbon, also some of the cleverest garnitures for

Three rather original uses for it are shown herewith, and a walk along any thoroughfare, flanked by shop windows, will provide one with ideas enough to use up bolts of

The first girl is pleased at having achieved a double purpose—a triple one, in fact. For her use of ribbon is decorative, provides variety. as the ribbon may be subject to change without notice, and likewise protection in its placing, for as anyone may see, its picot finish makes the ragged edge of extreme decol-

The second figure bespeaks her French origin. It is a ribbon panel you see reaching down her back and her wide ribbon sash has become delightfully entangled with it. Jenny and other French dressmakers have taken a delight in using bows this season. One street dress chez Jenny has a bow nearly as big as this one tied at the front. Jenny's dress is unusual to a degree, but very smart. It is caramel velvet with a high collar of nutria, some two-tone em-broidery and a self-colored taffeta

A Ribbon Harness.

The sketch of the figure at the right explains itself. The ribbon used is velvet with side pleatings of taffeta ribbon. Such a decoration may be added to a gown and change it sufficiently to disguise it from all but the most astute observer.

A foundation of cream, black, flesh color or some neutral tint may serve as an unobtrusive background for several ribbon harnesses and sashes, and provide a change in party frocks for the girl who goes to so many small dances in her own set that she simply could not hope to have a new frock for every one.

The value of a black evening dress that is not extreme in design cannot be told in words. It may be worn until it is almost in shreds, as every woman who has known the joy of possessing such a frock will declare. And the trick of adding a corsage bouquet for color, or a new girdle, or some vibrant new motif on which the eye will focus, is too well known among women who have to struggle to keep up appearance to need emphasis here.

Not Merely An Accessory.

This season ribbons play a really important part in gown making. For they are used not merely as accessories but as a vital part of the garment. One sweep of the wand and a fairy turns her ribbons into panniers, tunics, trains, vestees, neckpieces and hats. The wonderful metallic brocaded ribbons make stunning bodices for lacey skirts and for skirts of sharply-contrasting mate-

Wide ribbon bands are set into skirts of various kinds and wide ribbon is made into camisoles and dainty underthings. Entire evening capes have been made of velvet ribbon and by the most famous designers. Indeed, there are endless possibilities for clever use of all kinds of ribbon today.

In casting about for lovely and effective materials to combine for an evening gown or to contrast with cloth give the ribbon counter a closer inspection, for there you will find lovely pieces of brocades that may be bought in small quantities and be of great decorative value.

(Copyright, 1919, Fairchild.)

Brave Men and Others

"I'm ford of brave people," said Old Cap'n Bill. "I like to hear tell of adventures I take off my hat to the men of the past, Who felt the ship sinkin' an' stuck till the last. But when I see folks that jump in where it's deep.

And laugh as the treacherous waves 'round them creep.
There's one class of humans I say

could be spared—
The people who haven't the sense to be scared.

trenches will run play with a gun.

The stanchest and steadiest seaman fice of pleasure it means. But the leader of the "intelligence squad" ried hither and thither to the best photographers, to directors, to Is afraid of a summer boy rocking a boat.

The man who is the fittest to plan braces his nerve.

-Washington Star