My business is not to remake myself, but to make the absolute best of what God made.

The woman is so hard upon the woman!

Belgian Ruler Held the Center of Washington Society Last Week

Belgium Bureau. Washington, Oct. 11. The president's official family remaining very quiet during the past fortnight, because of the anxiety very generally felt over his illness. Especially was Washington alarmed when his two daughters, Mrs. McAdoo and Mrs. Sayre came to the White House, and his brother, Joseph R. Wilson of Baltimore, and his cousins, Mr. and Mrs. William C. Wilson, and Miss Wilson of Franklin, Pa., came early in the week. The anxiety was lifted considerably when they all returned to their homes. It seemed quite unnatural that Miss Bones, the president's cousin, who has been so closely linked with the White House family ever since their arrival in Washington should remain absent, and there seems to be much mystery about her whereabouts. No one appears to know just where Miss Bones is, but she was for some time in New York after the presidential party went to Europe. She is greatly missed from the White House circle for she was extremely popular, very attractive and a really charming personality. Mrs. Wilson has not, up to this writing, left the White House since the president's illness took a turn for the worse. Each afternoon during their stay here the three daughters went for a drive together. Mrs. Sayre left her three little children with Mr. Sayre's aunts in Pennsylvania on her way down here and returned to them on Tuesday night. Mr. McAdoo came down the middle of last week with his daughter, Sally, who entered school in Washington. They spent several days at the Shoreham.

King and Queen. Vice President and Mrs. Marshall and Secretary of State and Mrs. Lansing had a thrilling visit in New York when they went to greet King Albert and Queen Elizabeth of the Belgians on their arrival in New York. It was a drenching day, but it did not dampen the ardor of the New York crowds, nor did it curtail any of the festivities planned. The description of the royal guests as given by Mrs. Marshall and Mrs. Lansing held the interest of their friends during its recital, in several instances. The king especially came in for enthusiastic admiration, for he is "so good looking" everyone agrees. Decidedly handsome, even, than his pictures show, with the complexion of a beautiful English girl and the manners of a Chesapeake, he is every inch a gentleman of many fascinations. He is also larger than his pictures indicate, just as the queen is smaller. In fact, she is quite petite and extremely girlish in her favorite, simple, straight-line gowns, in which she is most frequently seen. She wore when she left the steamer a complete costume of white, which she did not change for the luncheon given by the king after their arrival at the hotel in New York. He was host on this occasion to the vice president and the secretary of state and the other officials and the ladies and the occasion, it was a charming one, according to the reports the guests brought back to Washington with them. Both the king and the queen speak perfect English. The queen is not a beautiful woman, in the matter of features, except for her eyes, which are a beautiful blue, Belgian blue, rather than any other tint, in spite of her birth as a Bavarian duchess. Her eyes have an unfathomable expression, as though she saw so many more things than just what is around her, a look which is to be seen in the eyes of thousands of men and women. It is said, who have gone through the horrors of this late war. When she left the George Washington, Queen Elizabeth wore a gown of white charmeuse, made in straight lines, and only moderately narrow, like Mrs. Wilson's Paris gowns all are. The narrow, grotesque skirts are not worn by the real ladies in Europe, as they are not in this country. Her hat was a small, close-fitting toque of white satin, with a lovely white Paradise feather. She wore a superb string of pearls, her only ornament, and a flowing white automobile veil, enveloped her head and shoulders. It was cold and rainy and she had on a great coat of white Bolivia cloth with a large collar and deep cuffs of white fox. Her shoes were white buckskin oxfords, with a unique tongue which was long and reached high above the shoes, the ends split into tassel-like fringe which hung down, of course, over the foot. Mrs. Lansing had met the queen before, and when she comes here the last week-end in October she will by no means be among strangers. Baroness de Cartier wife of the Belgian ambassador spent much

For Good Fudge. Put a teaspoonful of cornstarch in ingredients before cooking when making fudge and it will come out nice and smooth and never sugary.

The Quiet Life. I do not want to be a king or potentate or anything like that. I do not want to fight. I want to get my sleep at night. I can go home and sit at ease and hold my kid upon my knees and look out on my garden plot. And be contented with my lot. I can take in a picture show. And not be nervous when I go for fear some titled enemy will drop a lyddite bomb on me. I get no diplomatic note which sets me up and gets my goat. No murder is upon my soul. For world dominion's not my goal. I'm happy as a common loafer. Who's got a home, also a job. I would not trade my state of mind with any one of royal kind. I would not trade my old felt hat for all the caps and helmets that are worn in any crazy realm. That seals me and overhelm. Gold braids and clanking sabres punk to me are merely useless junk. I would not trade my little cot for any castle they have got. Who go forth griddled for the fray To burn and loot, outrage and slay.

Cutting the Cost of Dentistry (Article Six) It has been stated by Medical Men that "not one dentist in ten is competent to correctly fill a root canal; that crowning or bridging a devitalized tooth was unscientific and worse." The indictment is softened a little by the reflection of the skill displayed by our Medical critics in handling the "flu" last year, and their uniform success in curing tuberculosis, Bright's disease, cancer, etc., but from their criticism we can learn something—namely, the importance of SELECTING A DENTIST WITH CARE. Perhaps it has occurred to you that in this office where age and experience is linked with modern skill and science, and an entire staff may be consulted, an expert diagnostician may better point out YOUR trouble and select the specialist best fitted to handle it. The principles that apply in dental colleges—a specialist at the head of each department, works out nicely in practise as well. My Prices for Guaranteed Work—22-K Gold Crowns, $5.00. Solid Gold Bridgework, Per Tooth, $5.00. BEST RUBBER PLATES, $10 and $15. Work Guaranteed Absolutely.

Council Bluffs Society

A very pretty wedding took place Thursday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Henry James at 8 o'clock when their daughter, Elsie, became the bride of Harry E. Frisbee. The bride was dressed in white satin and carried bride roses. She was attended by Mrs. Robert Alloway of Eagle, Neb., as matron of honor, who wore pink satin and carried Mrs. Ward roses. The groom was attended by Charles Lemon of Eddyville, Ia. The Rev. W. H. Cable performed the ceremony. The wedding march was played by Miss Blanch Thornton of Omaha. During the ceremony Miss Mabel Hough sang "I Love You Truly," accompanied by Miss Beaumont. The ceremony took place on the twenty-fourth anniversary of the bride's parents wedding. The out-of-town guests were: Mrs. William Midgough and son, David of Ames, Neb.; Mrs. L. Hall of Missouri Valley, Neb.; Mrs. M. Heise and son, Charles, and Mr. and Mrs. A. Thornton and daughter, Blanch, all of Omaha. Many beautiful presents were received, among which was a chest of silver of 26 pieces from the official family of the National R. C. C. association of which Mr. James is a member, and a cut glass dish from Mr. Joliet and Marquette, the first white men of Iowa and Mrs. W. S. Keeline spoke on "The Iowa Country Under France and Spain." Mrs. Williamson, 615 Oakland avenue, will be the next hostess. The Federated Mothers' and Teachers' club met on Monday afternoon for the purpose of electing officers for the coming year. Mrs. Sylvester was re-elected president; Mrs. Scranton, vice president; Mrs. Hardell, secretary; Mrs. Burton, assistant secretary; Mrs. Bronson, treasurer, and Mrs. Tyson, auditor. The exhibit committee made its report for the fall work and the thrift campaign. Mrs. S. P. Wilson was elected chairman of the committee to write the history of club work in the city. The Woman's Christian association held a very delightful meeting at the Nurses' home on Monday afternoon. The members took great pleasure in burning the mortgage on the home, which is now free from debt and with a bank account of $2,000. Miss Ruth Harl, recently returned from overseas duty as an ambulance driver, gave an informal talk on war conditions and answered numerous questions from her interested auditors. Mrs. Carl Taylor gave a solo, accompanied by Miss Day. Miss Kathryn Mullis led the singing of the "Star Spangled Banner."

On Monday evening the art department of the Council Bluffs Woman's club met at the library with Mrs. Page Morrison as leader. She opened the meeting with the development of art in America through the adornment of homes by the French, Spanish and other colonists with paintings brought from Europe. Later the colonists of New England made many efforts to secure portraits by famous European artists. Their signs and stage coaches also showed the growing interest in art prior to 1750. Miss Jennie Rice spoke of the portrait painting of the Puritans and the Quakers, especially John Symberth and Jonathan Blackburn. Mrs. J. E. Wallace gave a review of the life and works of Benjamin West, who is chiefly famous for his "Christ Rejected," "Death on a Pale Horse," and the "Death of General Wolfe."

She also spoke of the work of John Singleton Copley of Boston. Mrs. Frances B. Hahn entertained the members of Morningside chapter of St. Paul's guild on Tuesday afternoon. Plans were made for the work of the chapter during October and the rest of the afternoon was spent in a social manner. Mrs. Gretzer will entertain at the next meeting at Grand View farm. Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Beardsley entertained the McPherson Avenue Improvement club on Monday evening. Miss Florence Senior gave a number of piano selections and Mr. and Mrs. Beardsley sang several duets. Mrs. Wesley Bird will entertain at the November meeting on November 3. Miss Elsie James, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Henry James, were married at the home of the bride's parents Thursday evening at 8 o'clock. Rev. W. H. Cable officiating. The bride was attended by Mrs. Robert Alloway of Eagle, Neb., and Charles Lemon of Eddyville, Neb. was best man. Miss Blanch Thornton of Omaha played the wedding march and Miss Mable Hart sang "I Love You Truly." She was accompanied by Miss Beaumont. Mr. and Mrs. Frisbee left Friday for Ames and will be at home after November 1. On Monday afternoon Mrs. J. G. Wadsworth entertained at a Kensington for Mrs. Marcus P. McClure, her house guest. Among others who have entertained for Dr. and Mrs. McClure are Dr. and Mrs. Jennings, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. McConnell, Miss Mary DeVol, Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Officer. Dr. McClure will take part in the installation services for Dr. Vanorden at the First Presbyterian church on Sunday. Mrs. Charles T. Officer entertained the members of the Book-lovers on Wednesday afternoon. The book, "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," will be studied in two meetings.

Mrs. Nichols gave a biographical sketch of the author, Belasco Ibanoz. Mrs. Daily gave the first part and Mrs. Hanchett read part of the drama, "The Confederates." The current event hour closed the meeting. Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Cutler have returned from an eight weeks' trip, during which time they visited Colorado Springs, Denver, Glacier park and Lethbridge, Alberta, Canada. At the latter place they visited their son, Howard Cutler, and his wife.
