 George A. Lawyer, chief United States game warden of the biological survey, Department of Agriculture, arrived in Omaha yesterday from Washington. He left last night with George Koster, state federal game warden, for the sandhills in the western part of the state. Mr. Lawyer will appoint 35 new game wardens in Nebraska.

TAFT DECLARES MORAL TONE HAS HAD A REACTION

Ex-President Tells Convention That Such Affairs Are Due to Frailty of Human Nature.

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 15.—The moral tone, the sacrificial spirit of all the people which was distinctly elevated during the war, has suffered a reaction, declared former President William Howard Taft in his address as president of the Unitarian general conference here today, "and we are back again in the old region of the 'doldrums,' where progress to better things seems as slow as it was before the war."
 "We should not be discouraged however," Mr. Taft said. "It is the frailty of human nature. It is to be found in its inability to maintain for long periods its adherence to the highest ideals. Real progress in the world is through a course of action and reaction. This reaction will be succeeded again by an onward and upward movement, and we shall find the world better because of the sacrifices and the lessons they taught."

 "We shall not make the same progress that we hoped for, but we shall step up and on. It is the duty of all those whose disappointments in the present stage of affairs is great, to buckle on their armor and to push toward better things, to take their places in the ranks of those who would stir the religious spirit of the community and who would preach as part of their lives the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man, and the willingness to sacrifice in order to promote those great principles of Unitarian Christianity."
 "Let us hope that this annual meeting will rouse the Unitarians of the country to a rededication of themselves to the faith which Channing preached and to living the life which Channing lived."

Return First Body of Omaha Soldier to Give Life in Europe

The first Omaha soldier to lose his life while on duty overseas, to be returned for burial in Omaha, was George W. Bennett, 1011 South Eleventh street, who was buried Sunday afternoon in Forest Lawn cemetery. Bennett was drafted from Omaha and was sent with the Thirty-first infantry to Fort Logan, soon afterward his company was ordered to Siberia, where they have been stationed for the past 10 months. Bennett was on guard duty when killed. During a heavy rain at night he slipped from the deck of the transport and drowned. When the body was recovered it was sent home for burial, making the trip in a little less than two months. He is survived by his mother, two brothers, one sister and his two grandparents.

Charge Secretary of Auto Company Deserted Child

Upon a warrant sworn out by his wife at Cleveland, who says she has not seen her husband since the first of the year, Sam Boudinot, secretary of the Affordable Truck corporation with headquarters at 2061 Farnam street, was arrested yesterday by Patrolman Samardick. He is held as a fugitive from justice. Boudinot is wanted in Cleveland for neglect of a minor child. Chief of Detectives Dunn states. He was living at 416 South Twenty-fifth avenue. He agreed to return to Cleveland without requisition papers.

THRONGS ATTEND FUNERAL OF LATE STREET CAR HEAD

Last Rites for Frank T. Hamilton Held at St. Cecilia's Cathedral.

The funeral of Frank T. Hamilton, Omaha capitalist, was held from St. Cecilia's cathedral at 10 yesterday morning. Throngs of personal friends, as well as officials of the various companies in which Mr. Hamilton was interested, were present. There were many beautiful floral offerings.
 The Merchants National bank, of which Mr. Hamilton was first vice president, was closed for one hour, during the time of the funeral services. Officials and many employees of the bank attended the services.
Many Floral Wreaths.
 Older employees and officials of the Omaha Gas company and the Omaha and Council Bluffs Street Railway company were present to honor the memory of their late president. Great floral wreaths were offered by the three organizations. The street car men's union also presented a floral wreath and several members were present at the services. The Chamber of Commerce and the Omaha club sent flowers and members of both organizations were at the services. Mrs. Daniel Stapleton of Washington, D. C., and Mrs. Jack Barber of Phoenix, Ariz., sisters of Mr. Hamilton, arrived in Omaha Tuesday and were present for the services. Luther Drake, president of the Merchants National bank, who was in New York when notified of Mr. Hamilton's sudden death last Saturday, hurried back to Omaha in time for the funeral.
 At the request of Mrs. Hamilton the services were quite simple. Rev. Andrew Murphy of St. Cecilia's cathedral, said requiem high mass. Pallbearers were chosen from Mr. Hamilton's closest friends and business associates. Active pallbearers were F. A. Brogan, G. Sam Rogers, M. C. Peters, B. H. Meile, E. M. Fairfield, Frank Kehoe, O. C. Redick and C. M. Wilhelm. Frank Johnson, A. J. Love, G. W. Watters, Luther Drake, W. A. Smith, John L. Webster, J. E. Summers and George W. Clabaugh acted as honorary pallbearers. Burial was in the family lot in Holy Sepulchre cemetery.

Night Schools Specialize in English for Foreigners

Special provision for teaching the English language to foreigners has been made in the night schools, now in session, A. C. Troup, in charge of Americanization work, says.
 In urging foreigners to study English Mrs. Troup called attention to a bill now pending in congress, which provides for the deportation of foreigners who have not learned the English language within five years.

My HEART and My HUSBAND
Revelations of a Wife

The Way Madge Began Her Confession to Dicky.

It was nearly midnight before I had an opportunity to fulfill the promise I had made in the summer house to tell my husband the reason for my excitement over the newspaper the morning he had left home.
 Alfred Durkee and his mother had strolled across the lawn in the evening after dinner to greet our guests, and there had ensued what Dicky dubbed "an old-time pop-wow, with a snack at the end of it." Katie, who never objects to extra work if it takes the form of concocting goodies for little evening feasts—her volatile nature revels in the excitement of such affairs—had served some most delicious dishes. Dicky supplemented these by a weird concoction in a chafing dish which tasted much better than we had feasted from his rampant experimenting.
 "Junior's birthday party is mighty apt to be turned into a hospital clinic," Alfred Durkee drawled as he rose abruptly from his chair after sampling Dicky's pet dish. "Leila, have you seen the moon from the veranda out here? The Dicky-bird claims it beats our view, but I challenge him. Come on out with me and decide it."
 She looked at the rest of us with pretty confusion.
 "Run along, dear," I said with an affectionate smile. "But I shall expect you to vote for our view!"
 "Bribe! Corrupter of youth!" Alfred thundered back at me as he escorted her triumphantly away for the first few moments alone with her that she had been able to secure.
 Lillian looked after them wistfully.
 "Roses and moonlight and youth!" she said as if to herself, but I detected the poignance of her own thwarted dreams in her voice.
To Gain Time?
 That Dicky had recognized it, too. I found out when, after the Durkees had gone and I had seen that Lillian and Leila were settled for the night, I found him stretched comfortably on the bed in my room, his own having been given up to Leila.
 "Did you hear old Lil tonight?" he suddenly broke out.
 I turned from the mirror where I was braiding my hair for the night.
 "You mean—" I said a bit uncertainly.
 "When she emitted that bit about youth and moonshine and roses. Poor old girl. She hasn't had much of that stuff in her own life."
 "No, she hasn't," I returned, wondering a bit at Dicky's sudden plunge into sentimental speculation.
 "What d'ye think of the Durkee-Fairax affair? Think it will really come to anything?"
 This was his next contribution to the conversation, and I realized all at once that he was simply making talk until the time when I should tell him what I had promised to reveal. He was far more curious, far more insistent, I felt, than even my fears, though he was scrupulously voicing not the least inquiry.
Why Dicky Interrupted.
 I finished my hair, slipped a gauzy, pale blue negligee over my night-dress and sat down upon the side of the bed.
 "Will you listen now to the story of the morning you left?" I asked quietly.
 He changed his position with a laziness that was ostentatious, put his head in my lap and slipped one arm around my waist.
 "Go ahead if it burdens your conscience," he drawled. "But remember I don't ask it."
 "But remember I wish it," I retorted, a bit piqued at his seeming indifference, even though my better sense told me that he was alert, tense, interested to the nth degree.
 "All right, then, shoot," he said inelegantly.
 "Well, then to begin at the beginning," I said hesitatingly. "I never told you, because I feared it would trouble you, that Mrs. Stockbridge was an insanely jealous woman."
 "You didn't need to tell me," Dicky returned. "D'ye think I've forgotten that night at the cafe when she bawled out your friend, Miss Dean?"
 "She didn't mean Miss Dean," the words escaped me involuntarily.
 Dicky loosened his clasp on my waist, raised his head from my lap and looked at me steadily.
 "The devil she didn't!" he exclaimed. "D'ye mean to tell me that—?"
 "I don't mean to tell you anything when you talk like that," I said spiritedly, but in reality to gain time to think.
 "I beg your pardon," Dicky put down his head again. "I'll be meek-er than Moses ever thought of being. But go on."
 "There were three or four teachers of whom she was especially jealous," I went on slowly.
 "You mean," drawled Dicky lazily, but looking up at me intently, "that there was one teacher of whom she was especially jealous, and that's the lady I have the honor to have and to hold?"
 "Dicky!" I exclaimed, flushing painfully. "that is not—"
 "Mudge, my dear," he retorted with a flippancy that I instinctively felt was forced, "you're a model wife and mother, and daughter, and daughter-in-law and housekeeper and school ma'am, but as a liar you're an awful fiver."

SAYS SHE SAW TWO MEN KIDNAP GIRL IN FRONT OF HOME

Police Following Scant Clues—No Girl Reported Missing at Headquarters.

Two strange men in a touring car kidnaped an unidentified girl at midnight in front of the residence of Mrs. E. Cahill, 722 South Thirty-fifth avenue, according to a telephone report given to the police by Mrs. Cahill. Police are conducting an investigation of the alleged kidnaping.
 The mother of Mrs. Cahill saw an automobile drive up beside the girl and suddenly two men leaped out, according to the report. One of the men threw a robe or a carpet over the girl's head. Mrs. Cahill said, and placed her in the car. The girl screamed as the car hurriedly drove off, according to the report.
 The mother of Mrs. Cahill said she witnessed the whole affair from an upstairs window while watching for her daughter to return home. Mrs. Cahill called police when her mother told her of the alleged kidnaping. Five detectives scoured the neighborhood without success.
 Police have no report of a missing girl who might have been the victim of the alleged kidnaping.

Ask Pension of Mrs. Swobe Increased to $60 a Month

Washington, Oct. 15.—(Special Telegram.)—Congressman Jefferson has introduced a bill increasing the pension of Aliza S. Swobe, widow of the late Col. Thomas Swobe of Omaha, from $25 to $60 a month. The pension bureau has fixed Mrs. Swobe's pension at $25, but Mr. Jefferson believes this amount wholly inadequate in view of Colonel Swobe's participation in four wars and the report he made in 1914. He has written a letter to the chairman of the invalid pensions committee asking that his bill be given prompt consideration.

BEST WAY TO WASH THE HAIR

We find you can bring out the beauty of your hair to its very best advantage by washing it with canthrox. It makes a very simple, inexpensive shampoo, which cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly of all the dandruff, dirt and excess oil, leaving a wonderfully clean, wholesome feeling. After its use you will find that the hair dries quickly and evenly, is never streaked in appearance and is always bright, soft and fluffy; so fluffy, in fact, that it looks more abundant than it is, and so soft that arranging it becomes a pleasure. Just use a teaspoonful of canthrox, which you can get from any good druggist, dissolve it in a cup of hot water; this makes a full cup of shampoo liquid, enough so it is easy to apply it to all the hair instead of just the top of the head.

Become Slender

A Simple, Guaranteed Method
 If you would like to lose, weekly, from one to five pounds of burdensome fat while eating and drinking all you need, also enjoying life far better than at present, just follow this advice:
 Take seven deep breaths of fresh air each morning and evening; after each meal take a little oil of korein; eat all you need, but chew thoroughly, and follow other simple directions of the guaranteed Korein system.
 Men and women who were waddling around with heavy, sluggish bodies have, in many cases, reported a gradual, agreeable reduction of thirty to eighty pounds, with wonderful benefit to health and figure. This very reason is the time to become slender, attractive, viracious and healthier, very easily. Get oil of korein at the druggist's; it comes in capsules, convenient to use and is now sold at before-war price. Wean and measure yourself week to week. You can scarcely realize the joy that awaits you in normal, symmetrical figures with good health and longer life. Show others this advertisement.

EAT LESS MEAT IF BACK HURTS

Take a glass of Salts to Flush Kidneys if bladder bothers you.

Eating meat regularly eventually produces kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well known authority, because the uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked, get sluggish; clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region; rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.
 The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.
 Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus avoiding serious kidney disease.

SCOTT COULD WORK ONLY HALF TIME, HE SAYS

After Taking Tanlac He Gains 36 Pounds—Never Loses an Hour From Work, Now.

"People on all sides are asking me about my wonderful improvement and when my friend over in Kansas, who put me on to Tanlac, sees me again he's going to be surprised, too," said Frank B. Scott, living at 1020 Cherry St., Kansas City, Mo., while in the Owl Drug Store.
 "For five or six months," he continued, "I had been almost down and out with stomach trouble. In fact, I had lost weight until I was almost a living skeleton and could only work three days a week. What I would eat felt like lead in my stomach and I would bloat up with sour gas and feel miserable for hours after every meal. I was also badly constipated, and would get so dizzy I could hardly stand on my feet. I would lie awake at night until three and four o'clock unable to sleep and was in such a bad shape that I could only work half the time."
 "During the five months previous to the time I began taking Tanlac I had paid out fifty dollars for other medicines, but kept getting worse until my friend, who had gotten rid of the same kind of troubles by taking Tanlac persuaded me to try it, and then I commenced to climb up hill right from the start. I have taken five bottles of Tanlac now and am not only enjoying better health than I have in years, but I have actually gained thirty-six pounds in weight, besides. I can eat anything at any time, sleep like a log every night and work every day, never losing an hour. From now on Tanlac is the medicine for me."
 Tanlac is sold in Omaha at Sherman & McConnell Drug Company's stores, Harvard Pharmacy and West End Pharmacy. Also Forest and Meany Drug Company in South Omaha and the leading druggist in each city and town throughout the state of Nebraska.
