Stick Close to Text. During most of the session the debate stuck close to its text, which was the foreign relations committee's amendment to transfer Shantung rights to China in place Five senators whose stand had been the subject of some speculation announced they would vote against the pending proposal, but all of them indicated they would support a reservation on the subject. They were Senators Colt, Rhode Island; Lenroot, Wisconsin, and Spencer, Missouri, republicans, and Shields, Tennessee, and Thomas, Colorado, democrats. Besides Senator Reed, Senators Borah, Idaho; Brandegee, Connecticut, and Lodge, Massachusetts, spoke in support of the amendment, Mr. Brandegee reading into the record a long pamphlet on the subject published by the Chinese Society of America. Senator Lodge, who as chairman of the foreign relations committee wrote the amendment, made a speech of only a few sentences in reply to the argument that amendments of the treaty would nean its defeat.

Can Come in Any Time.

"We never will see the day," said Mr. Lodge, "when Europe will re-fuse to let the Unted States come nto the treaty on any terms it chooses. It can dictate today, but the moment we become ensnarled in the league we can't do it."

During the day interpretative reslutons proposing the reservation of Egypts' right to government and construing the league covenant to guarantee freedom to capable peoles, placed under mandatories by the treaty, were presented by Senator Owen, democrat, Oklahoma. He said he intended the measures to be entirely separate from the treaty

The base ball stand is certainly a most peculiar place to discuss opera. But then strange things happen in tions, an educational campaign to this world, and the more strange they seem the more logical they oft times turn out to be. Base ball in the United States, Canada and Cuba is known to every man, wom-Italians and Spaniards will be playing the game with the same vigor as our American boys do.

At a big professional base ball game patrons talk about every subject-from grand opera to lemonade. Now it happened at a famous o go into effect at once, President and the Chicago Cubs that several people got into conversation over grand opera. One of the number was a fan of both pleasures. During the course of his conversation he happened to mention a certain player's name.

Popular as Base Ball.

"Do you know," he said, "that that certain player has an excellent baritone voice and I have heard him sing opera arias in a most surprising manner? That man is talented. From that time all during the game the topic of conversation was along the lines of grand opera. As the conversation progresssed one of the men said: "I see no reason why opera should not be just as popular as base ball. Of the two, base ball, for the foreigner is harder to understand all the fine and intricate
