KOREANS COWED, BUT ARE HOSTILE TOWARD JAP RULE

Cruelty of Punishment Has Caused Greater Resentment Than Suppression of Demonstrations Themselves.

Tokio, Oct. 20.—Every credible eye-witness from Korea testifies that the Koreans are cowed, but still bitterly hostile to their Japanese rulers. The tremendous series of punishments which followed the suppression of the independence demonstrations of last spring have caused infinitely greater resentment than the ruthless severity of the suppressions themselves.

Flesh in Shreds. I have seen many photographs of Korean young men whose flesh was literally beaten to shreds. Many of them died.

The cruelty, which was largely exercised on male students, accompanied by other cruelties and indignities offered to women students, has inflamed the population more than the massacres and burning of villages.

Clemency is Promised. Admiral Saito, the new governor of Korea, is a large-minded man and intends to carry out a humane policy, but the best qualified American observers in Korea believe that many long days must elapse before the Japanese administration will be rehabilitated in Korean eyes.

With a magnificent gesture, Admiral Saito, the day after his attempted assassination, issued a proclamation to the Koreans breathing clemency and promising immediate amelioration of the conditions and eventual self-government.

He calls on the people to speak freely of their grievances and admonishes the officials to administer the spirit rather than the letter of the law. He enunciates the principle that the success of colonial administration depends on the self-governing qualities of the people, and therefore local institutions are being introduced.

The proclamation conspicuously marks the end of military rule, which came near to wrecking the Korean's greatest effort at colonization by provoking discontent, owing to harsh government and then suppressing the demonstrations with such brutal severity as created a despairing belief among Koreans that their only alternatives were slavery or independence.

TOO MUCH LOVE IS BLAMED FOR TIRED FEELING

Japanese Physician Says American Girls Expend Affections Over-Energetically.

Washington, Oct. 20.—(By Universal Service).—Do American girls love too energetically? Dr. Tomo Inasuo of Tokio, the famous Japanese physician, who boasts that she never feels tired, believes that American girls look tired, while Japanese girls never look tired. She thinks that American girls waste too much energy in love affairs.

The midwest physician's contention ran afoul of much opposition on the part of a majority of the 35 women physicians from different countries all over the earth who spent 16 hours here in seeing the sights of Washington and who later returned to New York.

Dr. Kristine Munsch of Christiania, Norway, maintains that love affairs will keep girls young, and her assertion was seconded by Dr. Ahna Sundquist of Stockholm, who likewise believes that love renders secure the bloom of youth and beauty to women. She thinks, however, that American women spend too much energy in rushing from one place to another, and that they do not get enough out-of-door exercise.
