Make Your Studies Easy---"Help" Stories Begin Today SOME BUSINESS

On the editorial page, in the Children's Corner, begins today The Bee's great educational stories for school

As explained in previous announcements this series of | Appointment of Man to In articles is designed to assist boys and girls in their studies, giving them a ready reference in which to look up knotty points or find explanations for problems set for study by the teacher. Many questions are answered here that sometimes might take the student hours to look up, as the articles were compiled by leading educators of the country, who know precisely those things the student is most likely to be puzzled over and those points that are of greatest value for the pupil to know. In other words, the wheat is separated from the chaff and, instead of having to wade through a big yolume of digest or reference, delving into the mysteries of indexes and cross indexes, the boy and girl find what they want already hunted out and placed before them.

All the articles, of course, are not of this character, there being a wide variety of most interesting subjects. No boy or girl in the schools of Omaha can afford to miss following these articles each day, for all those that do take advantage of them will find the road to knowledge made easier, and many irksome hours of study relieved They will find themselves enjoying a "lead" over their fellow students. If you are not a subscriber already, call up Tyler 1000, circulation department of The Bee, and have the paper delivered to you every morning before going to school, at 15 cents per week.

Business as Usual All Britishers Ask In Regard to Trade

Atlantic City, N. J., Oct. 20 .- British financial delegates to the international trade conference here told their American conferees that they sought no special credit arrangements or government intervention, but simply asked that business transactions go on as before. This America, which opened here today, announcement came as a surprise to the general body of delegates, especially as subcommittees of many foreign missions asked for American financial assistance and set forth that extension of credits was vitally necessary in order that they might successfully meet the reconstruction problems of their respective coun-

A. C. Bedford of New York, chairman of the executive committee of the conference, told the delegates, assembled in an informal general session, that American business men were ready to supply financial aid to the war-stricken allies, but made it plain that they must be frank in explaining political and economic conditions in their own countries. The success and permanency of business, he said, is dependent upon the stability of government and American business men wanted to know whether the dangers of bolshevism or socialism have passed and whether any menace to the social order existed. The British point of view was set forth at a meeting of American and English credit and finance men by Sir James Hope Simpson.

The vast majority of Britisher never enter into contract unless they said. "We have not come to ask help of any organization. We expect only-that no obstruction be placed in the way of ordinary normal business transactions."

Wages of Steel Men Show Increase of 221 Per Cent Since 1913

Washington, Oct. 20 .- The in crease in the earnings per hour of employes in 11 principal industries in the last six years was greatest in the iron and steel industry, according to a statement made public today by the bureau of statistics of the Labor department.

While in some departments the pay was greater than in others, in all departments collectively the hourly wage of steel and iron mill workers in 1919 was 221 per cent of the hourly wage in 1913.

The smallest increased earnings were those in the mill work industry, where the increase of 1919 over try, where the increase of 1919 over 1913 was but 51 per cent. In the other nine industries for which figures were given the increase varied from 52 to 94 per cent. These included cotton, woolen, silk, clothing, underwear, shoes, furniture and cigar factory workers.

Taking chances not in our line

DIERCE-ARROW policy is opposed to taking A chances. We make sure that we are right. You have no mistakes to pay for.

The first Pierce-Arrow was radically different in design from other trucks. Yet today its characteristic features have been so widely adopted as to now be standard design.

In eight years none has worn out. Monthly inspection by factory inspectors prevents destructive wear before trouble occurs.

This practice adds constantly to our experience and keeps your trucks running and earning money. It saves you expense in operation as well as repairs.

That is why so many owners, after experience with cheap trucks, standardize with Pierce-Arrows.
