

UNIVERSITY TO BE HELD LIABLE FOR U. S. TRUCKS

Letter From Barrows Stirs War Department—Motors Loaned for Use of Students.

Washington, Oct. 24.—(Special Telegram.)—Brigadier General Drake of the army motor transport service today told the house subcommittee on quartermaster's supplies that the state university will be held responsible for damage caused by exposure to 14 army trucks that it is said have been standing out in the weather on the state fair grounds.

He made the statement in reply to a question put to him by Representative C. F. Schairman of the subcommittee, who had learned through a letter from Lieut. Gov. P. A. Barrows of Nebraska that the army motor trucks were said to be exposed and without proper protection, and were being damaged thereby.

General Drake said the trucks had been sent to the university authorities to be used in the education and training of students.

At a meeting of the O'Neill Monument association at the Hotel Fontenelle last night resolutions were passed to the effect that, Mayor Smith being ill, a double duty devolves upon the association to make the reception to President De Valera of the Irish republic a grand success.

John L. Donnellan and N. J. Convey were appointed to care for the suffragettes at the Auditorium meeting. Father E. J. Flanagan made an earnest appeal for the co-operation of everyone in working for the reception.

Attending the ceremonies will be five men who were companions of James Connolly during the Omaha street car strike of 1916. Connolly later went to Ireland and became the commander of the Irish army during the Easter week riots in Dublin and later was shot. The five are: Teddy Morrow, Claude Hoskins, Patrick Linehan, Ike Kaplan and Charles Lehar. They will have seats on the platform at the Auditorium.

SAYS HIS STAGE BEAUTY BRIDE TRIED TO DECAMP

Honeymoon Cut Short, Farmer Causes Arrest of Woman He Married After Brief Acquaintance.

Des Moines, Oct. 24.—(Special Telegram.) David McDermitt, identifying himself as a healthy farmer, today caused the arrest of Mildred Stevens, under circumstances which promise a sensational court case.

Miss Stevens, who is a youthful stage beauty, is said to have met McDermitt for the first time in Omaha a few days ago. The Anita agriculturalist became so enamored of the young woman, that he accompanied her to this city where they were married on Thursday.

After the wedding, McDermitt went on a shopping tour, during which he spent $300 for a trousseau, also handing his bride $65 in cash. He told police that after he had thus bestowed his wealth in liberal manner, she sent him on an errand. When he returned his bride was gone. He grew suspicious and sought police aid. The young actress was arrested at a railroad station.

Mrs. Stevens-McDermitt grew indignant when arrested, threatening a suit for divorce with payment of $10,000 alimony, or an action for false arrest.

Inquiry at the Omaha theaters failed to reveal any information as to the identity of Mildred Stevens.

Husbands Arrested As Wives' Suitcases Excited Suspicion

W. F. Vogel, 2044 Baughman avenue, and H. T. Feiler, 524 South Sixteenth street, both dental mechanics, and their wives were arrested by police yesterday morning charged with illegal possession of liquor. An additional charge of illegal transportation of liquor was placed against Mrs. Vogel and Mrs. Feiler.

Both women had just alighted from an incoming train from St. Louis at the Union station at 9 and were greeted by their husbands, where Policemen S. Brown approached them. He had been attracted by the apparent heaviness of two suitcases which they were carrying.

They saw the officer and, after kissing their husbands, made a running exit out of the station door to a taxi cab, the police say. The husbands were left with the grips, which were found to contain six quarts of whiskey each. The men were booked at the Central police station. An hour later Desk Sergeant Rose telephoned Mrs. Vogel and Mrs. Feiler of the fate of their husbands.

"I'll be right down," each of the women told the desk sergeant. When they arrived in a large red touring car, said to belong to Mr. Vogel, both were charged with illegal possession and transportation of liquor. Their second greeting to their husbands was in the desk sergeant's quarters.

All were released on bonds.

Gray-Haired Wife Attacks Affinity in Cafe--Local City Officials Save Other Woman

Girl Severely Beaten and Hair Torn Out in Lincoln Hotel Scene—Commissioner Ure, City Attorney Weaver and Attorney J. P. Breen Separate Women, But Deny They Know Principals.

Love for a woman to whom he is not married, intense desire to remain by her side, and the tempestuous disposition of his wife are some of the influences behind a sensational scene in the Victoria hotel at Lincoln Saturday, when City Attorney Frank L. Weaver, City Commissioner Ure and other prominent residents of this city played principal parts.

Two women and a man, an Omahan, his affinity and wife, were ejected from the hotel dining room following the disgraceful scene, which was started when the women engaged in a hair pulling match.

John P. Breen, a well-known Omaha attorney, also engaged actively in the affair.

Every effort was made to keep the affair quiet and news of it only leaked out Thursday. After being ejected from the hotel the man and his wife departed together in the automobile, which a short while before conveyed the husband and the other woman to the hotel.

The other woman in the case, said to be a stenographer, made her exit through the excited crowd into the hotel office, where she secluded herself in a telephone booth, smoothed out her disarranged hair and ruffled clothing and disappeared through a side entrance.

Though Mr. Weaver, Mr. Ure and Mr. Breen deny they knew the man or woman, all three of the men admit they were in the hotel dining room when the women engaged in a fight there. They also admit they helped restore peace among the belligerents.

The Storm Approaches. Oblivious to the approaching storm, the man was seated at a table in the hotel dining room with his affinity. It was the noon hour and the cafe was crowded. Just a few feet from the couple an Omahan official and Attorney Breen occupied another table. The couple were engaged in earnest conversation.

They did not see the front door open and admit the stately matron with a shock of gray hair and wearing a tailor made suit of blue. There was no indication of the threatening danger except the cold gleam in the woman's eyes. Her head tilted high, she walked rapidly between the long lines of tables.

The woman with flashing eyes did not hesitate until she stopped by the side of her husband, who was bending forward to catch something his affinity was saying.

Enraged Wife Screams. "This is my husband," she fairly screamed.

Every eye in the room was riveted on the trio. The next instant the woman of the gray hair called the girl with her husband a vile name and smacked her face three times. She then seized her husband, who stepped to her side and said something to her which no one else heard.

Frank McCormick, proprietor of the cafe, made his way through the crowd and approached the man and the woman with the gray hair. He told them quietly they would have to leave the hotel. The couple walked to an automobile in front of the door. The woman took her seat in the car. The man went back into the dining room carrying a woman's handbag. He passed out into the hotel office and gave it to the smaller woman. He spoke briefly in an undertone and returned to the car where his wife was waiting.

Passed Up to Breen. Asked for a statement concerning the affair, Mr. Ure declared that he was present when the fight took place. He admitted he took part in separating the struggling women.

He denied, however, that he knew the principals in the battle. Mr. Ure said he occupied a table in the cafe with Mr. Weaver and Mr. Breen. He said the man and woman were at another table a short distance from where he sat.

"I do not know who they were," he continued, "but Mr. Breen can tell you their names."

Mr. Ure became indignant. His language was most emphatic.

"You had better be careful what you print," he exclaimed. I warn you to be careful."

Mr. Breen denied that he knew any of them. However, he admitted his part in separating the women.

Mr. Weaver also declared he was present, but insisted that he did not know the persons involved. He also asserted that Mr. Breen could give their names.

He admitted he helped separate the man and two women. Among those who witnessed the fight in the hotel dining room are Carl M. Green, secretary and treasurer of the Victoria Hotel Co.; Elmer D. King, manager of the Lincoln Overland Co.; Mollie Reever, the waitress who served the party, and Frank Card of the Card-Adams Automobile Co.

Mr. Ure and Mr. Weaver registered at the Victoria hotel last Wednesday and checked out the following Saturday immediately after the brawl in the dining room.
