By KARL LEE. Lincoln, Neb., Oct. 28.—(Special to The Bee).—State conference football this year with five teams leading in the race for the state championship, and two of these as likely-looking as any college teams that trotted onto a gridiron, promises more than ordinary interest.

Conference Meeting. Interest in the state association was brought to a focus last week when the state conference members, by reason of a challenge by Hastings college against the York eleven concerning the eligibility of the three of the latter's players, met in Lincoln to decide the matter.

Bowling—By C. J. CAIN

Last night's matches in the Greater Omaha league resulted in narrowing the gap between the leading Rogers Gate team and the Scott Tent and Awning team, runners-up in the league race.

The schedule for Saturday and Sunday, November 28 and 29, is already full. These are the last two days of the tourney. There is a popular but erroneous opinion that the alleys are softer on the late dates.

Local Bowling Notes. The cold weather is causing the rollers to flock to the runways. Seems like old times to see the runways completely occupied again.

The Security Loan matinee Idols will occupy the Farnam runways this afternoon. This an enthusiastic crowd and they wonder why they didn't start their league sooner.

Al Krug is knocking the pins dead over on the Athletic club alleys. He has been rolling ever since the game commenced and still likes it.

Herman Beselin will soon pass his 64th year and is still one of the game's topnotchers. Herman says that the sight of his own funeral is the only thing that will make him lay down his old bowling pin.

Dave Luby, editor of the Chicago Bowlers' Journal, will head the Chicago, Toledo and Milwaukee delegations when they arrive here, November 28. They will make the trip in a special train.

George Starr, W. K. Harrington's brown gelding, by Jack Atkin-Africa, took down the purse in the Pursing handicap at Churchill Downs. I-Win came from far back to nip Top Coat for the place.

For the first time during the present meeting the talent went astray in the opening number and suffered extensively as a result of Bon Tromp's failure to land a part of the purse.

Ruby Showed Heels. Ruby showed her heels to a good band that started in the second race and led her rider to ultimately win as her rider pleased. Her recent good trials brought a big band of converts to her standard, but Blue Jeans, which finished second, also absorbed considerable attention.
