

Witness to Killing Of Man by Negro Dog Catcher Testifies

"Don't shoot him," shouted William Hawry, assistant dog catcher to Albert Jackson, city dog catcher, both negroes late in the afternoon of May 10 on the Locust street viaduct, as Jackson, revolver in hand, was sneaking toward Roy Teeters, white who held his hands above his head according to the testimony of Joseph McCool an eye witness, given yesterday in the trial of Jackson for first degree murder before District Judge Redick and a jury. "I'm going to kill him. Look what he done to my face," Jackson said, according to McCool. Jackson fired one shot and Teeters fell dead.

The dispute started when Jackson drove the dog catcher's automobile into a wagon driven by McCool. McCool said Jackson later struck him twice with his fist.

A device to start aeroplane engines by cranking them, mounted in front of an automobile to furnish the power, is an English inventor's idea.

AT THE THEATERS

SELDOM is a character transferred from a story to a play to the entire satisfaction of all concerned. Readers imagine a favorite hero or heroine in a vague and hazy sort of way, and generally miss something when this nebulous creation of their own minds takes on solid flesh and blood and walks across the scene before them, talking, laughing and doing the things they found so diverting when reading about them. So May Robson finds herself confronted with the necessity of combating a host of preconceived notions of Miss Letitia Carbery and, although she vanquishes these for the most part, it is only after the expenditure of considerable effort that she identifies herself with the popular "Tish."

When she has brought this about, the play that has been made from one of Mrs. Rinehart's entertaining stories loses much of its farcical element and becomes a really enjoyable comedy.

Miss Robson is strenuously energetic in the opening, her entrance being accelerated by the explosion of a high speed motor boat that precipitates her through a boathouse door onto a lakeside lawn. After this vigorous beginning, she proceeds by stages to the more quiet methods, of which she is complete mistress, and in the second, third and fourth acts gives us a far more convincing portrait of the woman who is so lovable because she is so human. She has tenderness, too, and without being mawkish touches on sentiments that lie below the surface, turning gently away as the approach comes too high to tears. Finally, we realize that she is "Tish," the real woman of whom we had brought to the theater so indefinite an idea, and we let her dominate us just as she did Lizzie and Angie.

Miss Robson has the assistance of competent actors, whose united efforts make the evening one of unalloyed joy. The play and company were welcomed at the Brandeis last night by a large assemblage of Omaha folks who have come to look for something good whenever May Robson is announced, and whose faith is not misplaced in this particular instance.

The stay of the Winter Garden revue, "The Passing Show of 1918," at the Boyd is drawing to a close, performances tonight and Saturday night and matinee on Saturday ending the engagement, which has been a most successful one. The company, headed by Willie and Eugene Howard, is the biggest and best that has yet come this far west of the roof on which it originated.

Beverly Bayne, herself, and Francis X. Bushman, himself, in a play especially chosen to introduce them in walking, talking, living holes to multitudes who have learned to love them on the screen, come to the Boyd theater on Sunday evening.

"The Master Thief" is the play, a mystery surprise of the sort they are accustomed to playing before the camera.

Two headline attractions and a featured act are presented this week at the Orpheum. One of the stellar offerings contributed by T. Roy Barnes with Bessie Crawford is called "A Package of Smiles." The gracefully expert dancer, Emma Haig, with Jack Waldron is offering an original conception of song and dance. The most charming act on the bill is the one-act playlet,

"FIDDLE-FIT"

Keep Liver and Bowels Clean and Active with "Cascarets"

Sick headache, biliousness, coated tongue, sour, gassy stomach—always trace this to torpid liver; delayed, fermenting food in the bowels.

Poisonous matter clogged in the intestines, instead of being cast out of the system is re-absorbed into the blood. When this poison reaches the delicate brain tissue it causes congestion and that dull, throbbing, sickening headache.

Cascarets immediately cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out all the constipated waste matter and poisons in the bowels.

A Cascaret tonight will have you feeling clear, rosy and as fit as a fiddle by morning. They work while you sleep.

"Heartland," with song interpolations by J. K. Emmet and Mary E. Ryan. A featured act, "A Current of Fun," an electrical offering, is both laughable and mystifying.

Watson and Cohan and "The Girls de Looks" will terminate its week's run at the popular Gayety theater this afternoon and evening. Tomorrow the "Burlisques Wonder Show" will open for a week. The cast is headed by George P. (Hot-Dog) Murphy, remembered in "Let George Do It" and Primrose (Lightnin') Semon, one of the liveliest sourests in burlesque. The cast remains the same as last season, which was entirely satisfactory. Ladies' matinee at 2:15 today and tomorrow.

Mr. Giullana, appearing at the Empress with a mixed quartet, was a celebrated tenor in Italy and came to America with Mascagni, composer of "Cavallera Rusticana," remaining with the Metropolitan Opera company for six seasons. Guido Cicotti, the tenor, originally came to America from Italy with the Lombardi Opera company. Miss Maude Wenger, contralto, and Miss Mabel Baker, soprano, have enjoyed a varied experience, embracing operatic concert, oratorio and vaudeville.

That results are obtained more quickly is the claim of the inventor of massaging apparatus for reducing corpulency in which the temperature of users is raised considerably by electric heating units.

DULL AND SHARP SHOOTING PAINS

Michigan Lady Suffered Such Pains In Back and Head, But Says Cardui Stopped These Bad Spells.

Palmira, Mich.—Mrs. Chas. T. Fuller, of this place, writes: "In 1911 I got run-down, and I suffered great pain...with both dull and sharp shooting pains...also back and head. I was weak and could only drag around, and should have been in bed, for I really wasn't able to be up. At times I would have a sharp pain that would be so bad I'd have to go to bed, and suffered intensely..."

I decided to try Cardui, and saw a great improvement in less than a month's time. I used 7 or 8 bottles and was stronger. I got so much better that my strength returned and my work was easy for me. Cardui did me a world of good. It built me up in health and strength. I haven't had one of those bad spells since. I haven't had to take any more medicine since or have any doctors either and have been able to do my work right along...I recommend it to other women lightly as the best medicine I know of for women who suffer from female troubles."

If you suffer from female troubles, follow this advice. Get a bottle of Cardui today and give it a thorough trial. It should help you, as it has helped thousands of other women in the past 40 years. At all drug stores.

What the Doctors Found Out About American Men

The Physical examination of nearly 10,000,000 young men—by the Draft Boards during the war—started and amazed the doctors.

In the first draft, the doctors rejected 28% of the men examined—out of 5,000,000 young men drawn from every part of the country.

In the second draft the Provost Marshal General's report shows that 29.51 per cent of the men examined, had marked and disqualifying defects.

The Surgeon General of the Public Health Service says: "The figures from all sections of the country are sufficiently appalling to show that it is of the greatest importance, for the whole nation to realize, that it is high time to search out the causes of this physical unfitness, and find the proper remedies."

REOLO is a cell food entirely different from any other preparation ever offered to the public. It is not a patent medicine, nor yet, an ordinary tonic or stimulant that is merely temporary in its effects. It is an entirely new scientific formula discovered by Dr. A. L. These cell salts attract and retain the oxygen as it passes from the lungs into the blood, and repair, nourish, revitalize and maintain the health and vitality of the cells.

REOLO removes all of the impurities from the blood, reconstructs the diseased cells, tones up the heart and nervous system and makes the blood rich in red blood cells and hemoglobin, vitalized with oxygen, iron and health-renewing cell salts that restore normal health, vigor and vitality.

By arrangement with the Dr. A. L. Reusing Laboratories, Akron, Ohio, we have been appointed Licensees for the distribution of REOLO direct from the Laboratories. Each package is certified by Dr. A.
