

WOMAN'S SECTION OF THE BEE

The quality of mercy is not strained; It droppeth as the gentle rain from heaven Upon the place beneath; it is twice blessed: It blesseth him that gives, and him that takes. Shakespeare

Sweet are the uses of adversity, Which, like the toad, ugly and venomous, Waits yet a precious jewel in his back. Shakespeare

SOCIETY

THE MUSICAL NEWS, published at Chicago, prints the following story of Margaret Porter Spalding, an Omaha girl, whose rich contralto voice is winning success: "Margaret Porter Spalding, whose likeness is shown today on our cover page, is a contralto whose work will most certainly bring her to prominence before a very wide clientele eventually. "For whoever hears this young singer is impressed immediately with the glory and the charm of voice, and as she is also a most attractive personality and an intelligent and faithful worker along all lines leading to complete musicianship, it follows, inevitably, that she will realize all the hopes of her friends for an unusual career. "Her voice is contralto of the purest kind. It is produced with a purity and an even quality throughout which is remarkable in view of its power, and which makes Miss Spalding almost unique among contraltos, for she has absolutely an even and unbroken scale throughout the entire range of her voice. "In a recent private hearing Miss Spalding sang "He Was Despised," from "The Messiah"; "The Worldly Hoop Men Set Their Hearts Upon," from "The Persian Garden"; "Oh, Let Night Speak of Me" (Chadwick), and "By the Waters of Minnetonka" (Licentiate), and throughout this significant and varied material she showed constant beauty of tone and excellent musicianship, as well as an interpretative thoughtfulness which is most attractive. "Miss Spalding is an Omaha girl who came to Chicago two years ago to study with George W. Jenkins, and is still under that successful tutelage. "Previous to her leaving Omaha, while yet a high school girl, she studied with Walter B. Graham of the Nebraska city. "Wherever Miss Spalding has been heard in Chicago predictions have been freely made that she will have an unusual career. "She has been engaged for the coming spring festival at Amarillo, Tex., and will sing there the solo also parts in "Siamat Maria" and "Goring Thomas" "The Swan and Skylark," and in a joint song recital with Thomas Fannelle, Chicago tenor. C. E. W."

Fashion Race Enemy (Continued From Page One, This Section.) however much they may, by nature, desire the contrary, they give up children. This is a serious situation, and one whose reality cannot be doubted by whoever cares to look about him. And the blight which is striking at the roots of our race attacks not only the well-to-do classes, but descends clear to the bottom rung of the ladder of society. From rich to poor, all are bitten with bug of Fashion. From the young wife of the laborer to the tender bride of the professional man, all, to the very limit of their means, follow the mandates of fashion. Only the truly wealthy can afford large families, and, sadly enough, but few of these ever recognize their responsibilities. Our race's security demands a sweeping international change in the matter of dress. It is time, that a mighty sentiment sprang up throughout the peoples of the western world for a return to the modest customs of our ancestors, where clothes were matters of becoming utility, made strongly of good materials to last for more than a season and designed to protect the comfort and health of the wearers rather than to please the fancy of a fickle Dame Fashion and convince a circle of social and business acquaintances, by their very perishableness, of their wearers' right to a share of adulation and prestige. Proceeds From the Ball. The latest report from the committee who were in charge of the ball for the fatherless children of France is that $300 was cleared at the benefit dance. Halloween's Jazz-Jamboree. Halloween was commemorated and a very unique affair given by Miss Jeannette Pick to 16 couples on Thursday evening, October 30. Telegraphic invitations in verse extended, asking participation in a Halloween Jazz-Jamboree, with the request that the merry-makers appear in appropriate costume. The affair was given in a vacant house at 3401 Center street. The many rooms were decorated in orange and black, and candles in a large variety of lanterns gave forth the only light. Many games were indulged in and marshmallows were toasted over the fireplace. There was music and din from the variety of horns, whistles, tack-tacks and castanets. The most attractive features of the evening were Madame Zola, a professional spiritualist, who gave life readings in a tent. Each guest had an individual seance with the Madame, his past, present and future laid bare. The horror chamber in the attic was as gruesome as the name implies. Enshrouded entirely in black and filled with ghostly terrors, it was entered in trepidation and fear. Then followed feminine shrieks, masculine groans and a hasty and tumultuous exit. A five course luncheon and a fireworks display concluded the evening which was then already morning.
