Discuss New Constitution Providing for Splitting Present Body in Sectional Groups.

here as visitors and are attending the sessions.

One of the big problems being discussed is the proposed reorganization of the association.

These associations are to meet in the fall of each year. Then it is proposed to have a central association which will meet in the winter or spring of each year and to which delegates will be sent from the district associations.

Those who favor this plan argue that it will hit the membership of the state association to 8,000 or 10,000 and place the association in the hands of 80 or 100 teachers instead of in the hands of an executive committee of seven.

Constitution is Drafted.

The constitution of the proposed reorganized association has been drafted. Whether such an association will be formed or not will be decided by a referendum vote of all the members of the present association.

Must Know Germany. Dr. T. S. Lowden, head of the department of education of the City Normal school, Columbus, O., declared before the state teachers' general meeting in the Auditorium last night:

"Do we know Germany? We had better know it. It is wisdom to know its strength, and it is wisdom to know your enemies. Apparently we have won the war, but wait 10 years or 20 years and see the German people take to war instinctively, as a duck takes to water. Germany had the sense to quit when it was time to quit. Look into its history, when has it been conquered? Its reserve strength comes from a people who have learned to work. Environments have made these people what they are. They fought the battle of life with the elements 1,000 years ago.

Great Reserve Strength. "Germany has a great reserve strength, and by no means has it spent it. My friends, this effort it is making to get upon its feet is ominous. What are you going to do with a people so economical and thrifty when placed against a wasteful world?"

The Columbus educator stated that he had spent several years in Germany and he was giving some of his observations. He explained that the kaiser was the head of the professional and military classes, which he welded together to dominate the working classes. He asserted that the caste system brought on the war and is holding the German people today.

"We had better stand by our friends—England, Italy and France—and observe closely what is going on in Germany," he said.

Relates Reminiscences. He related a series of personal reminiscences of his visit in Germany.

Dr. Otis W. Caldwell, director of the Lincoln elementary and high school of Columbia university, spoke on "Progress of Education in Democracy."

"A man from Calgary recently told me that he wondered whether we had an educational system that will train our young people so that they will carry the responsibilities that will come to them. He made me think," the doctor said.

"We shall not have fulfilled our task if we develop only our natural resources, great as they are. Our problem of democratizing the hundreds of thousands of people who have come to this country is made more complex when we realize that we must care not only for the aliens, but for our own. Our problem of democratization is not only the children in school, but it is you and I."

Must Have Experience. He made a plea for education that emphasizes the experiences of the senses, instead of placing stress on mere memory development, or trying to have the child absorb the sum of human knowledge.

"Real education comes through experience," he added. "We will learn the printed material better when we have experienced through the senses. When I was a boy I was warned not to whistle while I was practicing my piano lesson. The result was that I never learned to play the piano and I still like to whistle. We get out of the world's knowledge in terms of what we take to it out of the experiences we have had. There is need of reorganization of our materials and methods if we would do something worth while for all of the people. Our task in this trying time of our country is to encourage the will to do, the will to carry the responsibilities that come to us."

Community Singing. P. W. Dykema of the University of Wisconsin led in community singing for half an hour before the speaking program. He aroused considerable enthusiasm. One of his hits was to have the women sing "There's a Long, Long Trail" while the men sang "Keep the Home Fires Burning," these selections lending themselves in peculiar manner to simultaneous singing.

Dr. J. Paul Goode of the University of Chicago closed the evening's program with an interesting series of stereopticon slides offered with a running discourse on "America as a World Power." He showed the economic relation of this country's resources.

General Session Today.

A general session will be held in the Auditorium this morning, beginning at 9. The following program will be observed: "Training for Citizenship in a Democracy," Dr. C. H. Judd, Chicago; "National Child Welfare Standards," Miss Julia C. Lathrop, Washington, D. C.; "Making Teachers' Association Efficient," William B. Owen, president of Chicago Normal School; report of committee on resolutions and general business of the convention. P. W. Dykema will lead community singing.

A complimentary concert by the Chamber of Commerce for the visiting teachers will be held this evening at the Auditorium, where Helen Stanley will sing and Jacques Thibaud, famous violinist, will be heard.

Sectional Meetings Today. The following sectional meetings will be held this afternoon at 2:30: Commerce Section, Commerce High School auditorium.

County Superintendents Section, Y. M. C. A., lecture room 316.

Grammar Grades Section, Central High School, room 215.

SHOWDOWN ON PEACE TREATY IS POSTPONED

Fear That Reservations Could Not Be Passed if Pact Is Ratified Holds Up Final Action.

as committee of the whole to be terminated, but Senator Lenroot, republican, Wisconsin, asked that a provision be included to permit a later ratification vote that should include reservations. Then Senator Jones, republican, Washington, ended the discussion by objecting directly to the whole arrangement.

Having failed to secure unanimous consent, Senator Hitchcock then made a motion to the same effect, but Senator Lodge called attention that his motion to take up reservations was pending business. After the vice president had overruled Senator Underwood's point of order, the reservations at last were formally laid before the senate.

Slightly Modified.

The first paragraph of the reservation group, the only part considered today, recites that the reservations must be accepted by three of the other four great powers to make the treaty binding. As presented, it had been slightly modified from the original committee draft, so that the acceptance would be secured "by exchange of notes."

Senators Lodge, and Edge, republican, New Jersey, spoke in support of the preamble, and Senators McCumber, republican, North Dakota, and Thomas, democrat, Colorado, against it.

During the day two new reservation proposals were placed before the senate together with several others presented by individual senators and will be taken up after the committee list. One was by Senator Knox, republican, Pennsylvania, proposing that the United States become only a "consulting member" of the league with full liberty to govern its own course in all respects, and the other was by Senator Johnson, republican, California, relating to equalization of voting power in the league.

Reports of sectional meetings will be found on pages 4, 5 and 7.

A Word to the Prospective

Fur Buyer

It is a real saving this season to invest in furs. A fur coat does not cost more than twice as much as a cloth coat, yet it will last season after season, really gaining each year in value.

Considering the high value and the low prices, we are easily giving the finest values in fur coats ever offered in Omaha. Below, a few specials for Friday and Saturday:

ator Johnson, republican, California, relating to equalization of voting power in the league.

Extended Statement. In this ruling against Senator Underwood's point of order, Vice President Marshall made an extended statement of his general attitude toward construction of the senate rules as they relate to the treaty.

"This is the most important treaty," he said, "that ever was presented to the senate of the United States."

"The chair is unwilling to make any sort of a technical ruling that will prevent the senate from ratifying this treaty, either without reservations or with any sort of reservations that a majority chooses to put into the resolution of ratification."

"The chair is unwilling to construe these rules in so strict and narrow a way that the treaty may be pigeon-holed or hung up by such narrow construction."

"The chair is going to hold that a majority of the senate can present whatever it pleases to the senate in the way of reservations or interpretations and the chair thinks that these reservations, as they are called, ought to be considered as in committee of the whole in justice to certain senators of the United States who have been voting against amendment to the treaty, with statements made that because they thought they could preserve their views by way of reservation and interpretation."

Reach No Decision.

The democrats were in session more than three hours but, Chairman Hitchcock announced, had reached no agreement other than to invoke a senate cloture rule if it is deemed necessary to hasten action. The only resolution adopted authorized Senator Hitchcock to propose cloture if it is deemed advantageous in hastening the final vote.

While the conference was in session senators received news of the new German protocol and several expressed the view that it might be used by opponents of the treaty as an argument for delay in American ratification.

Procedure in the senate was discussed at length and in spirit of debate. The sentiment of the conference, Senator Hitchcock stated, was that every effort should be made to test the senate sentiment on reservations in any form which would in the judgment of the democrats secure the real senate sentiment.
