

WONDERFUL ART IN PAINTING OF CLOUDS BY DAVIS

Vast Depth and Breadth of Sky Portrayed in Manner Never Achieved by Others.

By LETA MOORE MEYER.
At the fine arts exhibition at the Hotel Fontaine, "Sky and Clouds," by Charles H. Davis, the greatest painter of clouds ever lived, is as good as any of his work. Every thoughtful person must at times look at the sky and wonder at its vast depth, breadth and uniformity, and that anything so empty could contain so much; at the clouds and their soft lightness for which no one has ever found a better word than "farcy," at their size and infinite variety and swift movement, and also very often at their uselessness except as beauty, and how often they seem like a waste of power and misdirected effort like many lives we know. All these things are in this picture as much as the sky goes back and the space between it and the clouds is felt, which is one of the most difficult things every landscape painter works for. The movement is there and the inanity. Every painter knows what a maddening thing it is to make white look white. More white paint won't do it. A profound knowledge of the relation and juxtaposition of color, values, design, composition, size of the parts, relation of things as they go back into the canvas, the tremendously important matter of edges and an endless number of principles, enough to fill a volume, are necessary to make white paint look merely white. And then to make really white paint look like real clouds requires more vast knowledge. It is one of the baffling problems which the greatest master has never been able to solve, that in order to gain one thing, another must be sacrificed. Davis here has used the principle of chiaroscuro which was first used by Rembrandt. Only the Dutch master used it as a matter of light, while Davis has used it in composition. Marvelously as he has painted the ground, showing the parts of the landscape so definitely and still holding the mass together perfectly and keeping it subordinate to the sky, which is

Inspector Colonel of Army in Conference With Officer Here

Col. Joseph A. Gohn, inspector and instructor of the fifth army recruiting district, which includes the states of Oklahoma, Texas and New Mexico, is in Omaha in conference with Col. Reuben Smith, in charge of the Fourth Army district, with headquarters in the army building here. Colonel Gohn was stationed at Fort Crook with the Twentieth infantry about 10 years ago. He is a member of the Elks lodge of this city. While in the city he is meeting many of his old friends. During the war Colonel Gohn was chief of staff at Camp Green, Charlotte, N. C. Colonel Smith's district includes the states of Nebraska, Iowa, Minnesota, Wyoming, Kansas, Missouri and North and South Dakota.

Really the picture, it is proportionately too small. This was probably done purposely in order to throw the interest in the sky. The other Davis shows, "Through the Branches," is not so characteristic in subject of Davis as we know him, and does not give as much opportunity for his powers, but we feel that the same clouds and sky are beyond in all their splendor. It is evidently an effort to broaden out into something different, and in this way is just as interesting. The exhibition will be open until November 22 from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m. Admission is free and the general public most welcome.

The following resolution was passed concerning the American Legion: Whereas, the American people owe so much more than they ever can expect to receive from a government that participated so gloriously in the defense, not only of our own country, but in the defense of all mankind in the great world war, and whereas in Minneapolis, Minn., this week there were some boys of whom we are so proud, met in a national assembly for the purpose of forming a permanent organization to be known as the "American Legion," and whereas this organization of America's best citizens has been formed for the purpose of relieving the suffering of the veterans and for the protection of the great principles of democracy as laid down by the forefathers of our country, and Urge Bonus Law. Whereas these same boys who gave their lives willingly in the service of our country for defense have since their return in a number of instances been called back by their government to assist in the preservation of law and order when local authorities were unable or inadequate to cope with the situation, have demonstrated in times of peace the true value to America, the formation of the organization composed of the world war veterans will be, therefore, Be it resolved that the Associated Retailers of Omaha, by this resolution, desire in this way to acknowledge the great service performed both at home and abroad by the American soldiers, and at the same time endorse the principles laid down by the convention of the American Legion in Minneapolis, and to federate with the American Legion in the late riot in Omaha, at which time our magnificent court house was burned and the officers of the law assaulted, and further Be it resolved that the Associated Retailers request the Nebraska representatives in the United States senate to grant further bonuses to the American soldiers, not as extra pay, but for the purpose of showing the men who gave up so much for our country, a small part of the appreciation for that service which is in the hearts of all true Americans.

Mr. Storz, former brewery man, said the thieves broke the glass of the rear basement door, and "jimmied" a double lock on his wine cellar. The loot consisted of seven cases of assorted wines, two six-gallon jugs of California wines, nine one-gallon jugs of grain alcohol and three gallons of brandy. This is the second time "high-jackers" have broken into the Storz home, the other being in July while the family was away attending a funeral. C. J. Schey, 3927 North Seventeenth street, frustrated an attempt to rob his home, he reported to police, when early yesterday morning he was awakened by a knock at the door. When he answered the knock he saw two men on his porch and a third waiting in an automobile in front of the house. He attempted to wall the police and found the telephone wires cut. He then went upstairs to get his revolver, and when he returned the

RINGER SUFFERS ANOTHER DEFEAT IN CITY COUNCIL

Endeavors to Put Through Resolution for Second-Hand Police Cars.

Police Commissioner Ringer yesterday suffered another defeat in the city council meeting, when he endeavored to put through a resolution for the purchase of two second-hand automobiles to be used as police patrols.

Bids were advertised for, calling for proposals on new or used cars. He decided he wanted two three-year-old cars on a bid of $6,144 and offered his resolution accordingly, but the council refused to sustain him on this proposition, as it has refused to sustain him on several recent occasions.

Commissioner Zimman called the attention of the council to one of the other bids which was for $6,326 on two new automobiles, and he raised the question of why the city should buy two three-year-old cars when two new ones could be purchased for $182 more. Mr. Ringer defended his position by stating that the used cars he proposed to buy were of much greater value.

The council decided to hold a special meeting Friday morning when the bidders will be asked to appear and explain their propositions.

"The Water of Eternal Youth"

The beauties of the Austrian court of bygone days used a lotion which was so effective in keeping the face smooth and free from wrinkles, even in the aged, they named it the "water of eternal youth."

Some one recently has divulged the secret of this wonderful, though exceedingly simple, wrinkle lotion, which in her gratitude she has similarly dubbed a preserver of youth: One ounce pure salolite (powder), dissolved in a half pint witch hazel—that's all there is to it. Any woman can get these ingredients at her drug store, put them together, and use the solution with entire safety. To bathe the face in the same brings immediate results, even in case of the deeper wrinkles and furrows. This is also effective for hanging cheeks and double chin.
