

RED PAMPHLETS BEING EXAMINED BY AUTHORITIES

Following Raid on Hall Man Arrested for Distributing I. W. W. Literature to Pedestrians.

Thousands of pamphlets of alleged anarchistic literature confiscated Sunday afternoon by police and military in the raid on the local meeting hall of the I. W. W. at 104 North Thirteenth street, when 17 professed members of the organization were arrested, are being examined by police and federal authorities. The raid was made during a lecture on "Evolution and Revolution" by E. Lerman, chairman of the meeting.

A quantity of "red" literature containing the "fundamental principles of the I. W. W." was found on John Quinn, 4217 South Twentieth street, late Sunday night, police say, when Policeman Barnes came upon the man distributing pamphlets to pedestrians near a pool hall at Twenty-fourth and Vinton streets. Quinn is being held at the Central police station with the other "wobblers."

A long article on the riot in Omaha September 28 was found in "The One Big Union," official organ of the I. W. W. The magazine treated the Omaha riot as "an insurrection and race war against society." Denunciation of the action of military authorities in suppressing the riot was contained in the article. Samples of all the literature taken in the raid Sunday are being examined by County Attorney Shotwell.

Shotwell Says He's Ready to Proceed Against the I. W. W.

"I shall proceed promptly and vigorously with prosecutions of the I. W. W.'s arrested in the round-up Sunday if there is proof that any of them are guilty of syndicalism or sabotage," said County Attorney Shotwell yesterday. The law does not make mere membership in this organization a crime, however, and we must stick to the law even in these cases."

Woman Arrested With Dogs Released When Charge Is Not Pressed

Mrs. Mildred Ashlyn, dog fancier, of New York City, who has been detained by Omaha police as a fugitive from justice or the alleged thief of three English bulldogs from Dr. William Grimes of Hawthorne, N. J., was dismissed of the charge in Central police court yesterday upon failure of the complaining witness to have her brought back to the New Jersey city.

Mrs. Ashlyn was arrested here three weeks ago and held in jail for 10 days pending the action of police authorities in Hawthorne against her. Omaha police have not learned why the complaining witness against Mrs. Ashlyn failed to prosecute her. Mrs. Ashlyn was released from jail 10 days ago on bond.

At the time of her arrest she told Omaha police she was a victim of a "frame-up" because she refused to marry a veterinarian in Hawthorne, N. J., when he declined to allow her to keep her dogs at his home."

Mrs. Ashlyn had been housekeeper for the seven children of Dr. Grimes, she said.

Man Who Controlled Great War Fund of Knights of Columbus

Daniel J. Callahan of Washington, D. C., was the man who handled the great war relief funds of the Knights of Columbus. In his position as treasurer of the order he held the purse strings of the original K. C. war fund amounting to over $1,000,000 collected from the 800,000 members of the organization; the independent drive of the knights amounting to over $14,000,000 and finally the K. C. portion of the united war fund drive which amounted to $25,000,000, a part of which is yet to be collected.

This custodian of millions is a Washington business man with a keen executive ability. Mr. Callahan is the general manager of the Norfolk and Washington Steamboat company, a former director of the war savings campaign for the District of Columbia and vice chairman of the war activities committee of the Knights of Columbus.

Mr. Callahan is one of a few men who can qualify for the first place in the Hall of Fame for men who have wallowed in millions of dollars.

OFFICER CHARGED WITH BEATING UP BOY WILL RESIGN

Police Heads, However, Say He Wasn't Asked to Quit.

O. P. Peterson, policeman, told his superior officers at central police station that he will resign from the department. A bulletin at the police station states that Peterson's uniform is for sale. Police Commissioner Ringer and Chief of Police Eberstein yesterday stated that they have not received the resignation and had not asked him to resign.

Last week Anson H. Bigelow, attorney for Fred Miller, a young man who was arrested by Peterson a few weeks ago, presented to Mr. Ringer an affidavit of the arrest and also demanded that an investigation be made of the manner in which Peterson handled Miller.

Firemen at the Nineteenth and Harney station volunteered information that they witnessed Peterson abuse the young man who had arrived in Omaha during the evening of his arrest, carried $130 in his pocket, had a machinist's union card and had a baggage check for his tool box which he left at a station. "I understand from Captain Vanous at the station that Peterson said his father, who died last week, obtained a promise that Peterson would quit the police department as soon as he could," said Chief Eberstein.

Chauncey Olcott Is Bitten by Mad Dog—Three Others Attacked

Chauncey Olcott, 4 years old, 1520 South Twenty-fifth avenue, was bitten by a mad dog Sunday afternoon while playing in front of his home, according to police. The boy's head was badly lacerated, say police surgeons who dressed the wounds. He was taken to the University hospital. The dog was killed.

Three other dogs, which police say have infested the neighborhood for the past two days, were also killed. It was reported that three other children had been bitten by these dogs, but no names were given in the reports.

Where is the Truck you bought 8 years ago?

Is it still in service?
or in the scrap heap?
Did it pay for itself in earnings?
economies?
or expanded business?

48 of the first 50 Pierce-Arrows are still running after 8 years

WE HAVE A BOOK, just published, which gives the history of the first 50 Pierce-Arrow trucks made. One was destroyed by fire, one was retired after seven years drastic use, and the others all remain in continuous operation, still paying dividends to their owners.

Where are the first 50 trucks of any other make?

If even one survives, it is not the type its manufacturer is making and selling today.

The original principles of construction maintained and improved in Pierce-Arrow design are now standard practice. They have proved their reliability. They give results which make first costs unimportant.

Write for a copy of "The First Fifty." Apply its lessons to your truck problems.
