DAN JOHNSON TO SUCCEED CLARK ON SCHOOL BOARD

Fire Escapes Will Be Installed On 46 Buildings Within Ninety Days.

The resignation of Frank E. Clark as a member of the school board was accepted at the board meeting last night, and Dan Johnson, insurance adjuster and prominent member of the International Rotary club, was elected to fill his place for the remainder of the term.
Mr. Clark became a member of the school board in January, 1915. He expressed himself as entirely in sympathy with the aims of the board, but was forced to resign by an increasing demand of business on his time, he said.
Miss Etta Smith, veteran Omaha teacher and former principal of Monmouth Park school, was placed on the retired list during the board meeting last night on account of poor health.
The board voted to pay $320 a month to provide transportation for children who are not within walking distance of the Benson school. The children are to be taken to school in an auto truck.
Notice from the state fire warden that new fire escapes must be placed on 46 Omaha public school buildings was read. The fire escapes will be installed within 90 days.

"Miss Luxus" Is Named in Arrest of Bluffs Salesman

Clifford Smith, Council Bluffs, traveling man, was arrested yesterday and held under $2000 bonds for examination before United States Commissioner Organ. A preliminary hearing will be held at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning.
The charge grows out of Smith's alleged connection with a young woman, vaguely named as "Miss Luxus," whom he is accused of taking to Omaha for immoral purposes.

Seeress Sears Man Exploring Future And Lands in Jail

When Joe De Stephano, 2309 Martha street, sought to look into the future through a gypsy seeress at Thirteenth and Douglas streets yesterday, he also sought the power the gypsy seeress possessed, so he could look into his own future with his own eyes and not have to consult a medium.
Here is the story as the police tell it.
De Stephano had his fortune told by Rose Thompson, gypsy, in the usual way and for the usual sum of $3. Rose also offered to tell Joe how he could foretell his own future. She gave him for $150 a bottle of "spirit-calling" fluid and told him to rub it on his stomach when he wished to consult the future. Joe tried out the secret it failed to work. He consulted Attorney John Berger. Berger consulted the police. The police consulted the fortune teller and brought her and Rose Thompson sister seeresses to jail. Rose Thompson was booked, for investigation. The others were charged with vagrancy.

MUSIC

The unexpected extension of an engagement in Chicago has kept Richard Bennett in "For the Defense" on tour for a week or two and it is for this reason that John D. Williams is enabled to send "For the Defense" with Mr. Bennett and a remarkable cast to Boyd's theater for the week beginning Sunday night. The play is a mystery play with thrilling incident and unexpected climaxes. There will be a special matinee on Thanksgiving day.

Marion Gibney, who heads the minstrel and musical revue at the Empress, is an irrepressible fun-maker. The program, consisting of a minstrel first part, with Marion Gibney and Cora Hall backed up in real minstrel style, acting as bones and tambou on the ends, the balance of the company in gorgeous purple frock suits and high hats occupying the circle. A program of instrumental musical numbers is given in which saxophones, cornets and trombones are used.
Salisbury Field and Margaret Mayo's rollicking comedy, "Twin Beds," will be seen at the Brandeis theater on Nov. 20, 21 and 22. "Twin Beds" tells the story of three couples who live in a fashionable apartment house, with apartments apart—above each other, who begin by being neighborly and end by loathing the neighborliness that they cannot escape, and finally move to another part of the town only to discover that their troubles are trailing them with dogged persistency.

Neither Miss Braslau nor Mr. Spaulding had been heard in Omaha before, but they have long been known by their records, and by the great reputation they have built up elsewhere.
Miss Braslau has a voice which in quality alone would make one run into superlatives. But it is not quality which has made Miss Braslau's fame, for she supplements it with both technique and temperament, and is wise enough to choose those songs which are best suited to her. Her voice is wonderful in its variety and power. It is one of those great vocal organs which fills the entire theater, and comes to the listener, full resonant, and sweet, something like the tone of a violin or cello. She has a wide range, and her voice is evenly trained throughout it.
She sings the big dramatic numbers with great warmth of temperament. Her sustained singing was beautiful, and the climaxes which she attained were thrilling because of the poise and restraint with which they were interpreted.
She contributed three groups to the program. The first contained two old operatic arias in which a great contrast of temperament, style and singing were evident. The second opened with two striking Russian numbers, "On the Dnieper" by Moussorgsky is an imposing piece, full of color and the tragedy which one has learned to expect from much of the great music of this country. The second was a charming love song, by Rimsky Korsakov, "La Gironetta," a dainty French song by Sibella, Dymally and Foudraing gave Miss Braslau other opportunities to delight her listeners.

"Eili, Eili," by Shalit, sung in the Hebrew was one of the dramatic events of the evening. The intense feeling of this fervid prayer, was presented by Miss Braslau with a sincerity, a poise and a deep sustained tone, which made an impression. She was recalled importunately and for an encore presented "Habanera" from "Carmen" to her own accompaniment.

Her third group made of English songs was also charming. "Consecration" by Manney was another number in which Miss Braslau was at her best. "Greatest Miracle of All" by Guion was a charming bit, and "Rest" by Forsyth was interpreted exquisitely. The "Robin Woman's Song" from the opera "Sternberg" by Cadman, brought a remarkable operatic number as a fine closing. "The Sweetest Story Ever Told" was a final encore. Miss Braslau's enunciation must not be overlooked, it is one of her many excellencies.

Miss Eleanor Schieb, who accompanied the singer, is remembered in Omaha for her fine accompaniments with Mr. Casals some years ago, will also be remembered for her artistic work of last evening.
Mr. Albert Spaulding is a violinist of more than ordinary attainments. He is a finished artist upon his instrument, and his interpretations were marked by musicianship, authority and musical style. The velvety quality of his tone, the iridescent trills, and the clarity and polish of his playing were a constant delight. His harmonics were unusually and remarkably pure, and his bowing of surty and skill. He opened the program with a Handel "Sonata," in which the various movements were well contrasted and the "Larghetto" especially, played exquisitely. "Valse Caprice" by Chabrier-Loeffler in the second group was a novelty to Omaha programs, and was played with spirit and freedom, and brought a merited encore.

Two of his numbers were of great interest. "Alabama" was a plantation melody and dance in syncopated style and well arranged for the violin. The second, "Lettre de Chopin," was unusually beautiful and was played with great charm. Mr. Spaulding kept getting better and better as he played, and after a brilliant performance of "La Campanella" by Campanini, the audience would not be content with one, but insisted upon two encores, winning a Kreisler arrangement of a Chaminade number and the brilliant "Scherzo Taran-telle" by Wieniawski, taken at a tremendous tempo, and making one of the hits of the evening.
Mr. Benoit played a musicianly accompaniment.

It is not often a joint recital will present two artists of such decidedly different personalities, and each succeeds in winning such whole-hearted favor from the audience. The opening recital was a decided success in both number of listeners and from an artistic standpoint, and the forthcoming concerts will be awaited with the greatest interest.

AT THE THEATERS

IT was an enthusiastic society night audience that responded to the Orpheum bill last evening. Carl Jorm, the distinguished tenor, was especially well liked for his interpretation of grand opera arias. People were amused by "The Flattering Word," the one-act comedy, George Kelley and his company are presenting as another of the stellar features. The applause hit of the show is contributed by the spirited singers known as the "Ja-Da Trio." Equally popular is the musical act offered by Will J. Ward and five symphony girls. Five pianos are used in this feature.
"Oh Lady, Lady," now playing at the Boyd theater for this week, with a popular matinee tomorrow and usual matinee Saturday, has a distinguished cast and beautiful production, which had a successful run of one year in New York, four months in Boston, four months in Philadelphia and eight months at the LaSalle theater, Chicago. In the cast are Miss Pauline Barri, Miss Florence Auburn, Joseph McCallion, Billy Gaston, Miss Betty Blye, Eugene McGregor, Miss Madeline Grey, Walter Grey, Thomas C. Leary, Miss Marie Haun, and others.

There's no more sense, rhyme or reason to the entertainment that Al K. Hall (alcohol) and "The Sporting Widows" are presenting at the Gayety than there is to trying to sell snow shovels in August, but it's all riotous, harmless fun of the first water and it is not to be wondered at that the house is doing a capacity business at every performance. Visiting grain dealers this week will not overlook the Gayety. Ladies' matinee at 2:15 daily all week.

In indulging their confidence in the merits of their fairy-tale musical comedy, "My Sunshine Lady," which is an imminent prospect at the Brandeis theater for four days starting with matinee, LeComte and Flesher provided extravagantly with every essential known by modern producers as safe-guards for success. The production has received the complimentary title, "the brightest show on earth." A popular matinee will be given Wednesday.

Appeal From Nebraska Court Dismissed by U. S. Body

Washington, Nov. 17.—(Special Telegram).—The supreme court through an opinion by the chief justice dismissed for want of jurisdiction the case of William J. Geary, plaintiff in error, against Alice Geary, defendant in error, on appeal from the supreme court of Nebraska.

The case grows out of a judgment secured by Alice Geary in the Wayne county district court against her former husband for the support of two minor children while in the custody of their mother. The district court allowed the defendant in error $1,800 for a certain period and then directed that the plaintiff in error should pay $30 each for the support of the children during their minority. The supreme court of Nebraska sustained the verdict of the court below.

Congressman Evans appeared for the defendant in error together with J. P. Shoup and T. P. Cleary of Sioux City.
