CLUBBING

ART is for our enjoyment, not for our approval, says Director George Eggers of the Chicago Art Institute. Visitors at the exhibit of pictures at the library this week under auspices of the Omaha Art Guild, accord both enjoyment and approval to the collection. Mr. Eggers contends:

"The essence of the art-lover's position is the attitude of contemplation rather than the attitude of judgment. Least of all is its understanding a pastime in which the same is to separate in the shortest possible period the largest number of 'good' pictures from 'bad' ones. Art is rather a heaven-sent means by which we may see things of our common world through eyes other than our own, and so escape for a while from our own monotonous type of experience, or, if need be, find ourselves by a view from without. It is like the revelations of our childhood days when we looked at the old familiar world through a bit of colored glass and found it a new strange thing—save that the experience assumes a vast significance when in place of the colored glass, we look through the lens of another personality."

Pictures shown at the Omaha Art Guild, the work of local artists, are causing much favorable comment. The exhibit will be open until November 30, daily from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m., and on Sundays from 2 to 6 p. m. Mr. Doane Powell is president of the guild.

Missionary Federation Holds Successful Annual Meet

MRS. U. W. GILL

Harmonious religion has been, the text in many a pulpit during the past few years, the subject of many an editorial and the topic of many a conversation. The women's missionary federation of Omaha does not preach, write or talk about it, rather the members exemplify it. Ten denominations and more than 40 Protestant churches were represented at the annual gathering of the federation at the First Christian church Tuesday. Mr. Lorin Thompson gave a short organ recital. The social feature of the session was a delicious two-course luncheon served at 12 o'clock in the church dining room and attended by 125 women. Red carnations and ferns made attractive decorations. Mrs. W. S. Knight returned thanks. "Are you a Baptist?" asked one woman. "If you are, I can't sit next to you because that's my church." This spirit of fellowship and friendship characterized the meetings.

Mrs. J. W. Gill, who was for two years president of the federation, was chairman to the successful program this year.

About 300 women were present for the afternoon session and heard Dr. Frank Smith of the First Congregational church in a distinctly splendid talk. Dr. A. A. DeLarme of the Baptist church took the place of the Rev. C. E. Cobbley of the First Christian church on the program. Mrs. I. C. Wood conducted the afternoon devotional service. In the absence of the president, Mrs. James Almy presided. Mrs. W. P. Harford returned thanks. "If you are a Baptist?" asked one woman. "If you are, I can't sit next to you because that's my church." This spirit of fellowship and friendship characterized the meetings.

the father's name and to inherit property of both parents.

Other resolutions presented by Mrs. Mussey advocated the establishment of minimum wage boards in all states, urged laws giving joint and equal guardianship of parents over minor children, and for raising the age necessary for making a contract, and appealed to congress to pass laws to allow women marrying aliens to retain their citizenship.

D. A. R. Records.

The seventeenth annual state conference of the Daughters of the Revolution passed a resolution that the Nebraska society encourage the accumulation of data pertaining to the early history of each county, copies of which shall be placed in the new capital and become a part of the state library, and that a department of extensive genealogical research be established and fostered in co-operation with the state historical society.

The state regent, Mrs. Frank I. Ringer, appointed the vice-regent, Mrs. Charles F. Spencer of North Platte, chairman; Mrs. Charles Otter Norton of Kearney, past state regent and Mrs. A. J. Cornish, Lincoln, as the historical and genealogical research committee.

Each chapter has been asked to appoint a chairman of this committee whose duty will be to begin at

Nebraska Federation Notes.

Mrs. E. G. Drake of Beatrice, who was elected treasurer of the Nebraska Federation of Women's Club at their annual convention in Fairbury, has resigned, and Mrs. J. W. Welsh of Omaha will take her place.

Miss Annie L. Miller of Lincoln has been appointed on the board of trustees of the scholarships fund for a period of six years. Mrs. H. E. Gootrich of Nelson has been made chairman of thirteenth and Miss Katherine Worley of Omaha, chairman of Americanization work.

These are announcements given out by Mrs. John Staker, president, following a board meeting in Lincoln Tuesday. All members of the board were present, including state officers, district president and general federation director and secretary.

Minne Lusa Society.

Minne Lusa Woman's society will meet at the home of Mrs. B. A. Waugh, 2877 Newport avenue, Thursday afternoon.

Women's Activities.

Laws legitimizing children born out of wedlock were urged before the national women's council held in St. Louis last week, in the resolutions presented by Mrs. Ellen Spencer Mussey, chairman of the department of legal status of women and children. The resolution, which was unanimously adopted, included the rights of the child to once the accumulation of data regarding each county and of each town and village therein. Pictures of the first settlers, the first oldest houses, the first school, church and main street will be secured wherever possible.

China Budget Y. W. C. A.

The Omaha Business Women's club has an active team in the contest now on among Y. W. C. A. members for a fund to support Miss Ethel Hartley, who is engaged in work in China. ### Fashion Dispatch

(By Fairchild Fashion Service.)

Paris—(Special Cable to The Bee.)—Suit jackets are three-quarter and knee length at most of the French model makers. Hip fullness is obtained by godets in many instances. Suit skirts are a trifle longer and are inclined to straight lines, but dresses are decidedly fuller in the skirt and still very short.

Leather trimmings vie with fur for suit jackets. Duvelyn and velour de laine and velvet are the most often repeated in materials. There are also a great many Scotch plaids for skirts, trimmings and separate coats.

Of Interest to Women

A casket weighing 700 pounds and large enough to hold six average sized men was required for the recent burial of a 600-pound woman of Albia, Ia.

Under the English law a girl of 14 is, if of ordinary intelligence, deemed to be of sufficient capacity to choose her own domicile and mode of life.

To preserve bouquets put a little salt peter in the water you use to water your bouquets and the flowers will live for a fortnight.

DON'T LOOK OLD FROM HERE UP

A little "Danderine" checks ugly dandruff and stops hair falling.

Get a small bottle of "Danderine" at any drug store for a few cents, pour a little into your hand and rub well into the scalp with the finger tips. By morning most, if not all, of this awful scurf will have disappeared. Two or three applications often remove every bit of dandruff and stops falling hair. Every hair on scalp shortly shows more life, vigor, brightness, thickness and color.

Daylight Delivery

To keep your milk from freezing and to give our men and horses better hours during the cold months we are now delivering by daylight.

Better Hours

You will see your delivery man practically every day and can tell him just what you want. He will not have to call back on account of tickets or bottles. This will mean he can serve more customers better and in less time. This saves expense and helps keep the advancing cost as low as possible.

Order Extra Milk

If you have been getting your order before breakfast, just order a little extra for one day, so that you will have some for breakfast the following day. You will be pleased with this daylight service.

Thanksgiving Games.

In response to a great many inquiries for suggestions for Thanksgiving entertainments, several articles will be given in this column between now and that holiday. They will not be repeated, nor will they be sent in response to personal letters asking for them. It is therefore suggested that those who are contemplating Thanksgiving parties, slip them as they appear.

Supply guests with apples, cloves, toothpicks and knives, asking them to make up faces. Give a time limit. The apple skins may be cut into make curls. The results are often very ludicrous and clever. If you are using progressive games, appoint a judge to choose the best face and give the maker a tally mark toward the final prize.

Play a game of jackstraws, using peanuts and bent hairpins. The hairpins may be wound tightly with ribbon. If the crowd is a large one, let four play at each table. Give them a compact pile of peanuts. The rule, of course, is that one may hop through it on one foot. If one steps on a peanut, he has to drop out. All who succeed in getting through the path without disaster are given a tally mark.

Have two generous piles of peanuts. Divide the party into two divisions. Place the peanuts on two chairs. Give each guest a spoon. The purpose is to give a very short time for the two sides to carry peanuts from the large pile, using only the spoon for transportation, and depositing them at some arranged place—as far away as you like. Of course each one will fill his spoon as full as possible and will hurry all he can. Each one on the winning side should be given a tally mark.

Make out a set of questions about nuts, such as, "What nut grows on the seashore?" (Answer, Beechnut.) "Which nut encloses China?" (Answer, Walnut.) You can work out an interesting set of questions and answers. Hand the questions around on slips of paper with pencils for writing in the answers. Give a limited time, and then check up to see how many answered all correctly. The highest score or scores, receive a tally mark.

One of the jolliest games for Thanksgiving is this: Cut out a quantity of turkeys from a light-weight cardboard. (Perhaps you can get a pattern at some stationery department.) Hide these all over the house. Give each guest a small basket which may be kept as a dainty souvenir. At a given signal let them hunt for turkeys and the one who finds the greatest number gets a prize or tally mark.

Farnvard blind man's bluff is a suitable game for the season. Form a circle with one blindfold person standing in the center. Let the circle move around until the blinded man points his finger at some one. Then the movement stops and the person at whom the finger points must make a sound like a turkey or some other barnyard creature. The blinded man is given three guesses (or one, if you choose) and if he names the right person, they exchange places. Otherwise, he has to try again. No tally marks for this.

Pin a gaily painted turkey on the wall. Mark a target or "bull's-eye" at some point. Make bows and arrows out of willow twigs and elastic bands. For the arrows, use straight twigs with several hen's feathers tied to the end. The ones who hit the bull's-eye, get tally marks.

A good prize is made from a pumpkin or cabbage hollowed out and filled with candy pieces made up in the shape of vegetables and fruits, such as candy carrots, berries, etc.

Divorced Man.

Dear Miss Fairfax, Omaha Bee: I am coming to you for just a little advice and it would help me very much I am sure. I am a young girl of 19 years and am going with a fellow of 26. He is a very nice fellow and I think quite a lot of him, but my folks object to me going with him, since he is a divorced man, but as long as he acts the part of a gentleman and treats me nice I don't see any harm in keeping company with him. Do you? Just because he made a mistake in choosing his first wife is no reason that he should be lonely and sad the rest of his life. I would like to know what you have to say about this. Thanking you in advance, I am, yours truly, BOBBY.

If the man's intentions are good I can see no harm in your friendship. The fact that he is divorced is not necessarily a thing to be held against him, in my opinion. Why were they divorced? This is the question. If it was due to his own misconduct, then be careful. There may be religious reasons why your parents object.
