

TO SELL FLOUR AT LOW PRICES TO THE PUBLIC

Grain Corporation Will Soon Put 12-Pound Sack On the Market at 75 Cents.

Charles T. Neal, second vice president of the United States Grain Corporation, yesterday announced that the corporation will offer to the general public within the next three weeks a 12 1/2-pound sack of straight flour...

From Finest Wheat. "Wheat Director Julius Barnes yesterday put the solution of one phase of the high cost of living directly up to the consumer by making it possible for the purchaser of flour to decide for himself whether he will continue to pay fancy prices for special brands or buy at a lower price pure straight flour made from the finest wheat."

Not War Flour. The brand of flour which will be offered will be made of flour milled with the war grade of flour, a distinction which should be appreciated by the consumers, Mr. Neal said.

This statement was also given by Mr. Neal: "Production of flour has been extremely heavy and for the season ending November 7, 1919, amounted to 52,430,000 barrels, against 43,174,000 barrels last year. Exports have only been about the same as last year. Consequently flour stocks are very heavy and amounted to about 50 per cent more than a year ago on November 1."

Seligsohn Candelabra to Be Dedicated at Temple

Two beautiful brass candelabra, the gift of the Seligsohn family in memory of their parents, Elkan and Johanna Seligsohn, will be dedicated tonight at Temple Israel. Rabbi Frederick Cohn will speak on "The Light of Judaism and America," a Thanksgiving address. Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Harris of St. Joseph, Mo., and Fred Seligsohn of Kansas City have come for the dedication of the two memorials, or seven-branch candelsticks, which have been installed on the pulpit of Temple Israel.

Bolshevik Bravado Booms In Message From Russia

London, Nov. 20.—A bolshevik wireless message received here says: "The British bourgeoisie are dismayed and are attempting to arrange a peace conference in which soviet Russia and its white guard enemies can participate. The intention is the work of the red army, which prepared the ground for diplomatic negotiations. "After the reds had driven Kolchak eastward, Denikin southward and Yudenitch into the sea, the idea of negotiations with soviet Russia began to warm the minds of the bewildered allies. While the entente is convening a peace conference the reds will finally defeat the 'Black Hundred Impostors' and the entente will face the only lawful Russian government, that of the soviet."

Fritz Kreisler Cancels Date at Louisville

Louisville, Nov. 20.—Fritz Kreisler, violinist, and one time Austrian army officer, officially advised of widespread hostility to his proposed appearance here in recital, cancelled his engagement on advice of Mayor G. W. Smith and is heading toward Lawrence, Mass., his next scheduled stop. The attitude of Louisville citizens, as indicated in resolutions of criticism passed by several organizations, was communicated to C. J. Foley, Kreisler's manager, by the mayor who followed it with a written communication requesting Foley indefinitely to postpone the concert.

Will Attempt to Form Cabinet Soon in Hungary

Paris, Nov. 20.—Premier Stephen Friedrich of Hungary is reported to have turned his office over to Karl Huszar, minister of public instruction, according to dispatches from Budapest. Friedrich has taken the portfolio of Huszar, but retains the vice premiership. Huszar will attempt to form a coalition cabinet acceptable to the allies, the dispatch says. Friedrich is reported to have stipulated that he be retained in the new cabinet.

Shoot Negro to Death.

Madison, Ga., Nov. 20.—A crowd took Wallace Baynes, a negro, from his home near here last night and shot him to death, after he had killed Kay Osburn, railroad station agent, who had assisted an officer in an attempt to arrest him on a minor charge. The negro was found between two mattresses and dragged with a rope around his neck to nearby woods and killed.

Run Down by Auto.

Mrs. Ruth Gray, 14151-2 Binney street, suffered a slight scalp wound and Miss Sadie Reed minor bruises at 9 last night when they were run down at Sixteenth and Douglas streets by an automobile driven by Earl Parks, 5454 South Twenty-fourth street. Parks took the injured women to Lister hospital and then to their homes.

Notorious Auto Thieves, Recommended for Parole By Judge Redick, Are Freed

L. C. Jones and William McKenna, Who Confessed to Stealing Many Cars and Whose Operations Rendered Police Department Ridiculous, Are Given Liberty After Few Months in Prison.

L. C. Jones and William McKenna, notorious confessed car thieves, whose operations in and about Omaha for months rendered the local police department ridiculous and struck terror in the hearts of automobile owners and dealers, after spending several months in the state penitentiary, upon the recommendation of District Judge William A. Redick and County Attorney A. V. Shotwell, today are walking the streets of this city free men.

Jones was paroled several days ago and came direct to Omaha from Lincoln. McKenna, it is said, was not given his freedom until Wednesday because of demerits charged against him for misconduct while in prison.

Though the men confessed to stealing many cars here, both Judge Redick and County Attorney Shotwell endorsed the application to the pardon board for their parole after they had served but a few months of sentences of from one to seven years.

Promised Freedom. Police Commissioner Ringer and Chief Eberstein are said to have promised Jones and McKenna they would not be called on to serve a day in the penitentiary, provided they testified for the heads of the police department in their plans to send Fletcher Neal and Maurice Katelman, alleged "higher-ups" in a ring of automobile thieves, to prison, according to statements by the prisoners.

This arrangement was not carried out because, according to Chief Eberstein's explanation to McKenna, the police chief was afraid of the Bee. When Judge Redick sentenced Jones and McKenna, they departed

My Heart and My Husband ADELE GARRISON'S New Phase of "Revelations of a Wife"

What Dicky Said When He Reached Madge's Side. The shock of hearing Dicky's voice in excited altercation when I had thought him miles away watching his wrecked car by the roadside was almost too much for me. However, he had managed to get home only he, of course, could tell, but it needed nothing but his tones to inform me that he was in one of his towering rages.

No doubt his mother had intentionally or unintentionally fanned the flame of his wrath by her discourteous attitude toward Maj. Grantland. But he must be childish indeed to be so resentful against the man who by bringing me home so promptly had saved me many hours of suffering. "Oh, please!" gasped Mrs. Durkee, with a wild idea of sending her for Dicky and so cutting short his diatribe. But a sober second thought showed me the futility of injecting "Her Fidelity," as her son has christened her, into the affair. There was nothing to do but to wait quietly and helplessly until Dicky's wrath should have spent itself.

Maj. Grantland's voice, deep, outwardly suave, but steely beneath the surface, came through the window, slowly, distinctly. "I am sure you cannot have understood me, Lt. Graham, when I told you that Mrs. Graham—" "Leave my wife's name out of it," Dicky snarled, and I knew that he was beyond bounds of reason, appeal or discipline. Except to one person.

"Richard!" The word pinged upward to my window like a rifle bullet. It held astonishment, anger and the corrective power which Mother Graham never hesitates to assert over any one connected with her. "Please keep out of this, mother," I could visualize Dicky's quick, sullen side glance at her. "Will you be quiet and listen to me?" his mother demanded, and without waiting for him to reply she began a torrent of words which flowed fast and furiously enough to berry," she remarked. "Besides, I think that good-looking officer downstairs may need some reviving by this time. I think I shall take him home and make him a good cup of tea." Dickey flung open the door, brushed past her, evidently never seeing her, as she left the room. The next minute he was on his knees by my bedside. "Sweetheart! Sweetheart!" he groaned. "To think I didn't realize you were hurt so badly, for I suppose that must be the reason for Grantland's bringing you home. Are you sure you're all right? I just felt something was wrong after a few minutes' wait, so I left the old boat by the road and started to hoof it after you. Got a lift and then found you hadn't been at the little hotel. Then I beat it here, nearly crazy. Can you ever forgive your boy for being so heedless?"

And almost any woman can guess my answer. (Continued Tomorrow.)

Pope to Aid Children.

Rome, Nov. 20.—The pope has addressed an encyclical to the Catholic episcopates throughout the world urging a collection on December 28 for the suffering children of the countries devastated by the war. The pontiff himself is contributing 100,000 lire to this fund.

Kept in City Jail.

The heads of the police department were subjected to severe criticism for holding Jones and McKenna in the city jail for months following their indictments, instead of turning them over to the county authorities, as provided for by law, and as is done in all other similar cases.

Contrary to all custom, and in flagrant violation of the statutes, while McKenna was held at the police station he was allowed to walk the streets at will without bond, and daily Jones, who is an acknowledged drug addict, was taken to the Women's Detention home and given injections of morphine.

Jones testified to this under oath on the witness stand, and McKenna acknowledged stealing automobiles while enjoying the illegal privileges granted him by the police.
