Blaze in Baltimore Destroys
Score of Structures With Resultant Property Loss of $1,000,000.

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 28.—The group of buildings formerly occupied by Johns Hopkins university, and about a score of other structures in the square bounded by Howard, Ross, Monument and Eutaw streets, were either destroyed or wrecked by fire early today, entailing a loss roughly estimated at $1,000,000.

The blaze started in McCoy hall of the Hopkins group, from an undetermined cause. An explosion followed almost instantly and heavy explosions occurred in the building from time to time.

Nine Firemen Hurt.

Nine firemen were injured, but none seriously.

McCoy hall had been used recently as a welfare building and previously as the headquarters of the chemical warfare service of the army.

Among the buildings wrecked or damaged were Levering hall, the gymnasium, the biological laboratories and the Baltimore City college annex.

Several Rescues Made.

A number of rescues were made by firemen, including a blind girl, who was taken from a third story, and several families.

Dr. Frank J. Goodnow, president of the university, which is now located at Homewood, said the buildings were covered by insurance.

High winds swept the sparks a half mile away to the center of the city, and hundreds of men were sent to the roofs of department stores to stamp out incipient flames.

War Clothes of Last Hostile Sioux Chief In Hotel Indian Room

Another feature will be added to the decorations of the Indian room at the Hotel Pontenelle when the war bonnet and complete attire of Chief Red Cloud, the last Sioux Indian chief to lead an attack against the white men in the Black Hills, will be placed in a cabinet in the grill room.

The collection consists of a long war bonnet of eagle feathers, seven feet in length, a beaded vest and pants and moccasins belonging to Chief Red Cloud and his wife. Several Indian clubs are also included in the list.

The bonnet and dress of the chief were purchased from S. S. Montgomery of Omaha, who secured the articles from a son of Chief Red Cloud on the Pine Ridge Indian reservation in South Dakota.

It is the intention of the management to secure as many relics of Indians as possible to exhibit in the Indian room. And the attire worn by Red Cloud is the first step toward the decoration of the grill.

Young Chilean Baritone Is "Musical Find" of the Year

The greatest "find" of the year in new musical talent is undoubtedly the young Chilean baritone, Renato Zanelli, who with a single step, has taken his place among the great living singers. He is only in the twenties, but for all that he is not simply an "artist of the future," he is an artist of the present—and a great one, with a true baritone voice of great range, power, sweetness and flexibility.

His introduction to Victor audiences is made through his two initial Victrola records just out: "The Spanish Dancer" and "Dear Zaza" respectively. His operatic debut takes place this month with the Metropolitan Opera company in New York; and never, perhaps, has a first appearance been attended with greater auguries for the future. His career will be watched and followed with attention by the whole musical world.

Zanelli's appearance brings to mind that other youthful prodigy, Jascha Heifetz who was the musical sensation of several seasons ago. And Heifetz has just made a new interpretation on a Victrola record—a Paganini-Kreisler "Caprice." Two things are to be considered in every record Heifetz makes—the bewitching beauty of his musical effects, and the extraordinary technical means used in order to bring them about. In this number a peculiarly rich effect is had by bowing one open string, leaving it powerfully vibrating, and passing on to two others so swiftly and so deftly the ear cannot follow. The record ends with passages of indescribable brilliancy.

"WYOMING CARLISLE." The letter was postmarked Fullerton, Neb., November 25.
