SUFFERED FOR FIFTEEN YEARS SAYS OMAHA MAN

Nothing Did Him Any Good Until He Took Tanlac—in Fine Shape, Now.

"When I started on Tanlac I had rheumatism so bad that it would keep me in bed for days at a time," said James A. Cornett, of 3356 Grand Ave., Omaha, Neb. "The fact is," he continued, "I had not been a well man in fifteen years, and although I spent over a thousand dollars trying to get well I never found a thing to relieve me till I got hold of Tanlac. My appetite was very poor and my stomach got so weak that for three years I lived on nothing but milk and a light cereal. I was constipated nearly all the time and my head ached constantly, dizzy spells would come on me and I'd get so weak and exhausted I could hardly walk. Rheumatism got its grip on me and my shoulders, hips and knees would ache so at times that I just had to give up and take to my bed. I fell off twenty-five pounds and had so little strength and energy that I wasn't fit to do a lick of work.

U. S. TREASURER ASKS 5 BILLIONS TO RUN COUNTRY

Peace Time Activities of 1912 Will Cost This Sum, Secretary Glass' Estimates to Congress Show.

Washington, Dec. 1.—The record $1,000,000,000 congresses of ordinary peace times faded into the past today when Secretary Glass, presenting the annual estimates, proposed appropriations of practically $5,000,000,000 for conducting the peace time activities of the government during the fiscal year 1921.

The greatest individual estimates for expenditures, of course, go to the army and the navy. The yearly interest on the war debt, however, is $1,017,500,000, which sum alone is greater than all the appropriations for all purposes whatsoever of any peace time congress.

The estimated appropriations for the principal government departments were presented as follows: Executive (White House and government departments), $149,111,463.77.

Judicial, $1,634,190. Army, $989,578,657.20. Navy, $542,031,804.80. Pensions $215,030,000.

Public works, $283,921,810.17. Miscellaneous, $833,717,637.96. Foreign intercourse $11,243,250.91.

More Than Five Billions. The total of all estimates, including some comparatively minor items not included in the foreign, is $4,865,410,031.62, the greatest sum ever asked of any congress when the country was not actually at war.

The billion-dollar estimate for the army includes some $85,000,000 for the national guard. The normal peace time estimate for the army before the war was between $10,000,000 and $15,000,000. The $542,000,000 estimate for the navy includes provision for the program of increase and is comparable to an annual estimate of some $15,000,000 before the war.

Dry Act Takes Money. The estimates for miscellaneous expenditures contain some tremendous sums. For the Treasury department more than $247,000,000 is asked, which goes largely to the enforcement of prohibition and the collection of income, corporation and excess profit taxes.

For the shipping board nearly $448,000,000 is asked to wind up its program of restoring the American flag to the seas.

One item which has appeared perennially in estimates without ever becoming an actuality appears again this year with promise of being taken seriously. It is an estimate of $307,500,000 toward a sinking fund public debt, which includes $30,000,000 spent on the war.

Estimates for rivers and harbors appropriations included: Mississippi river, mouth of Missouri river to Minneapolis, $2,750,000; Missouri river, Kansas City to mouth, $2,100,000.

San Francisco, $8,000; Oakland harbor, $234,000; Richmond, $200,000; San Pablo bay, $103,400; Humboldt harbor and bay, $706,000; Sacramento river, $75,000; Coos bay, $125,000; Yaquina bay and harbor, $140,000; Columbia river to Snake river, $27,500; Snake river, $37,000; Columbia river at mouth, $165,000; Columbia and lower Willamette rivers, below Vancouver and Portland, $655,000; Willamette river, above Portland and Yamhill river, $45,500; Lewis river, $13,000; Cowitz river, $7,000; Gray's harbor, $600,000; Puget Sound, $27,000; Nome, Alaska, $10,000; Honolulu harbor, $150,000; Hilo harbor, $150,000; Willapa river and harbor, $200,000.

Desire of Former German Emperor for War Exposed in Report to Government—Delay Ultimatum On Advice of Teutons

Austria Commended for Sending War Note to Serbia and on Advice of German Officials the Presentation Was Delayed Until the French President Had Left Russia—Commenting on a Dispatch Describing Events in Belgrade Following the Ultimatum the Kaiser Wrote, "Bravo! We No Longer Thought the People in Vienna Capable of This"—Calls Berchtold "Ass" for Not Seeking More Territory.

Rotterdam, Dec. 1.—Universal Service presents herewith the second part of the most sensational expose of German secret diplomacy on record, the summary of documents unearthed and compiled for the German government by Deputy Kautsky, though suppressed in Germany.

In the opening chapter of the revelations it was shown how the kaiser, two days after the assassination of the Austrian archduke at Sarajevo, wrote "now or never" on the margin of a note from the German ambassador at Vienna telling of the feeling there that there must be a reckoning with Serbia. It also was shown that the kaiser was greatly incensed at his ambassador to Vienna for having endeavored to dissuade the Austrians from taking hasty action against Serbia and how in another marginal note he termed Count von Berchtold, the Austrian foreign minister an "ass" because of his protest that Austria had no desire to claim any Serbian territory.

Favored War Move. On the same communication the kaiser also made the notation: "Austria must take the Sanjak or else Serbia will come down to the Adriatic. Austria must become preponderant in the Balkans, or there will be no peace." His commendation of the Austrian government for sending the ultimatum to Serbia was cited as another proof of the German ruler's desire for war rather than a peaceful settlement of the affair.

Von Jagow communicated this to Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg, together with his own assurances that England was peaceable and that the British fleet which was assembled for maneuvers was due to disperse on July 27.

The German foreign minister then telegraphed to Ambassador Tschirschky at Vienna, intimating that President Poincare was due to leave Kronstadt at 9 o'clock on the evening of July 23. Von Jagow added: "Retard Giving Ultimatum."

"This would be 9:30 p. m. central European time. If, therefore, the demarche at Belgrade (presentation of the Austrian ultimatum) is to take place at 5 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, it will be known in Petrograd while Poincare is still there."

Between 7 and 8 o'clock that evening Count Szoegyen (Austro-Hungarian ambassador at Berlin), communicated to Von Jagow the text of the Austrian note to Serbia. Von Jagow professed to find it "abundantly sharp."

On July 23 Tschirschky telegraphed Von Jagow that as a result of the information regarding President Poincare, the American minister at Belgrade had been instructed to retard the presentation of the ultimatum until 6 o'clock p. m.

No Business of Germany. Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg telegraphed Count Wedel of the kaiser's suite that the Austrian note would be presented that afternoon and that the German government would begin declaring the affair "None of its business."

At 2 o'clock on the same afternoon Von Jagow telegraphed to the German minister at Stockholm that Austria was about to present a note to Serbia "unknown to us—we could not even presume to influence her."

On July 24, Count Szoegyen reported to his government at Vienna that Von Jagow early that morning had assured him the German government was "of course quite in accord" with their tenor of the Austrian note communicated to Berlin on the 22d.

Meanwhile, Zimmerman telegraphed to the German ambassadors in Paris, London and Petrograd: "We have no influence of any kind upon the contents of the note and have no further opportunity or other powers of making known our attitude towards it before its publication."

Order Fleet Home. On July 25 the kaiser, learning from his minister at Belgrade that Serbia was about to mobilize, ordered the German fleet to prepare to return to home waters.

This dispatch (from the German minister at Belgrade), described the events at Belgrade since the presentation of the Austrian ultimatum. The kaiser summed up his feelings upon getting this dispatch by jotting down these words: "Bravo! We no longer thought the people in Vienna capable of this! His majesty King Peter seems to have (word lost in transmission)!! The proud Slavs! How hollow their whole so-called Serbian great power turns out to be! All Slav states are like that! Just step firmly on the rable's feet!"

The kaiser dismissed as "feeble" the dispatch from Tschirschky reporting that Berchtold was trying to hoodwink Russia by being polite.

Calls Berchtold Ass. Berchtold's assurances that Austria did not desire Serbian territory for himself, or any modification of the balance of power in the Balkans were commented upon by the kaiser in this marginal remark: "Ezil (ass.) Austria must retake the Sanjak, or else Serbia will come down to the Adriatic. Austria must become preponderant in the Balkans over the smaller states at their expense, or there'll be no peace!"

On July 26 Bethmann-Hollweg telegraphed to the kaiser that if Russia should intervene against Austria England proposed to attempt mediation and hoped for French support in this enterprise.

"I think," the chancellor added, "that as long as Russia does not commit a hostile act our attitude, which is directed toward localization, ought to remain calm."

"Von Moltke (chief of the general staff) returned today from Karlsruhe, and he shares this view."

The kaiser placed an exclamation point after the word "localization," and added this comment: "The citizen's first duty is to keep calm, nothing but calm—always nothing but calm! A calm mobilization is, to be sure, something new!"

The chancellor further appealed to the kaiser to retain mediation in Petrograd "which (meaning Petrograd) is manifestly irresolute."

"The kaiser replied that he had not observed any signs of irresolution on the part of Russia, and that "there is a Russian fleet" and to this the emperor added: "There are now cruising in the Baltic five Russian torpedo flotillas. Port Arthur ought to be a lesson! My fleet has received marching orders to Kiel—and that's where it's going!"

The chief of the German staff sealed the final draft of the ultimatum to Belgium which was transmitted to the chancellor and presented at Brussels August 2.

Known Balkan Conditions. On July 25 the chancellor telegraphed to the kaiser, who was still with the fleet, a suggestion that it was in view of a Wolff Agency message dealing with the Austro-Serbian conflict that the emperor had ordered the fleet to prepare to return.

"Unheard of!" the kaiser exclaimed. "An incredible suggestion—such an idea never entered my head. It (the order to the fleet) was the consequence of the report from my minister at Belgrade, regarding mobilization. This may involve the mobilization of Russia and will involve the mobilization of Austria. In this event I must concentrate my forces on land and sea. In the Baltic there is not a single ship!"

As for the rest, I am not in the habit of making my military dispositions on the strength of Wolff telegrams, but in accordance with the general situation, AND THIS CIVILIAN CHANCELLOR HAS NOT YET GRASPED IT!"

DETECTIVE WHO SHOT SOLDIER PLACED ON TRIAL

Guy B. Knudtson Charged With Intent to Wound Charles Coleman in Omaha Last March.

Chief of Detectives Dunn, testifying at the trial of Detective Sergeant Guy B. Knudtson, charged with shooting with intent to wound, denied that the reason Knudtson and Detective Jensen were sent to arrest Charles Coleman March 19, 1919, was to get a reward of $50.

"Two soldiers from Camp Dodge had arrived to arrest Coleman and take him back and still you sent two civilian officers to make the arrest?" said Chief Deputy County Attorney Coffey. "Didn't you get rewards for arresting soldiers?"

"I never did," said Dunn. Home With Bride. Charles Coleman, the young soldier who was shot by Detective Knudtson, had been absent without leave from Camp Dodge for a week and was at the home of his mother, 1919 Dodge street, with his bride, whom he had married the day before.

He had been arrested by the police March 17, but was released in custody of his uncle, F. R. Flynn of Council Bluffs.

Chief of Detectives John Dunn testified that the military guard arrived from Camp Dodge to get Coleman two hours after he had been released. This was the reason, he said, why the police officers were sent to arrest him.

Ran From House. Coleman's testimony of his arrest and shooting differed in several particulars from his testimony at the preliminary hearing of Knudtson, April 17. He testified yesterday that Knudtson did not hit him with his revolver prior to the shooting, but only "made a couple of passes" at him.

"I was in the house when the officers came," he said. "Mother went to the door and I thought it might be a girl, so I went out the back door. Later she told me it was a couple of men."

"When I got out to Twentieth street I saw the officer. He was in plain clothes. I ran up Twentieth across Dodge and about half way to Capitol avenue. Then I ran in through a yard and then out to Capitol avenue. The officer shot at me and I heard the bullet whistle past my head just as I ducked to one side. Powder Burns on Coat. "He walked me back to Twentieth street and about half way to Dodge I said I was all out of breath and couldn't go any farther. He cursed me and made a couple of passes at me with his revolver. Then I took a couple of shots at him and hit him on the jaw. Then he pressed his gun against my back and shot me and I fell."

Powder burns were visible on the uniform coat which Coleman wore and which was exhibited to the jury.

Charles Carter, 122 North Twenty-sixth street, a witness of the shooting, testified that Knudtson was about three feet from Coleman when the shot was fired. He said he did not see Knudtson strike Coleman.
