AERIAL MAIL IS EXPECTED SOON FROM CHICAGO

Government Ready to Sign Landing Field Lease—Ask Description of Flying Conditions.

That Omaha is to be a permanent landing field for aerial mail is taken from a telegram received yesterday morning by Postmaster Fanning from Arthur Praeger, second assistant postmaster general, requesting names of the officers of the Omaha committee with whom the Postoffice department can make a written agreement for the use of the landing field. The message also requests the field notes and description of the landing field and states that upon receipt of the data a tentative form of agreement will be submitted by the Postoffice department for approval or modification. Commissioner Ellis of the Chamber of Commerce immediately telegraphed the names of the officers for the information and maps containing a description of the tract and of Omaha and its elevations. "That the government is ready to sign up positively assures Omaha a permanent place on the aerial mail route," says Commissioner Ellis. The first aerial mail is scheduled to reach Omaha by December 15 and everything possible will be done to have a field and hanger ready to receive the first plane from Chicago.

UNEMPLOYMENT PROBLEM GROWS WITH COAL CRISIS

Associated Charities Unable to Attend to Cases Reported.

The unemployment problem is being impressed upon Omaha by the coal famine. Mrs. G. W. Doane, superintendent of the Associated Charities, stated that her organization is unable to attend to all of the cases reported. "We could like to have the names of volunteers who will assist us with their automobiles," Mrs. Doane said. "It is only for a few hours a day, it will help. We need clothing of all kinds. We have received many calls from needy families. There are cases where the father is ill and a wife and six or more dependent children looking to us for help. We know Omaha will care for its own and it is our purpose to make the Associated Charities a general clearing house for the distribution of intelligent aid."

More than 150 men and boys applied to the municipal free employment bureau Tuesday for work. Fifty stated that they had been forced out of employment on account of the coal situation. "We have very few jobs to offer these men," said C. A. Davis, manager of the bureau. Twenty-five school teachers applied to this bureau for work. B. H. Casey, county superintendent of charity, reported that each day increases the number of applicants for coal.

Children Are Suffering. "There has never before been so many calls for help at this time of the year," said Mrs. Mary E. Anthony, superintendent of the City Mission. "We are receiving many calls for clothes and shoes for children. Boys and girls have recently come to the mission in shoes that were almost without soles." Mrs. Anthony asserted that the mission is unable to meet the demands being made. Major Frank McCormick of the Volunteers of America stated that he intends placing cots in the building at 114 North Fifteenth street and will offer sleeping accommodations to as many as can be cared for. He said it is a time when "those who are able to help should help those who need help."

Claim Widow Gives Property of First Husband to Second

Alleging that Frances R. Wagner is giving the property left her by her first husband to her second husband, prospective heirs of the estate of $152,000 filed a petition in district court yesterday asking an order restraining her from transferring any more property and requesting that she be compelled to make an accounting. Chauncey Abbott, jr., Wells Abbott and Morris W. Abbott, sons of Chauncey Abbott, deceased, filed the petition. They state that their father's half brother, Nathan W. Wells, died in 1909, leaving his entire estate to his widow, Frances R. Wells for her lifetime and with the provision that at her death it go to Mr. Wells' mother and his half brother of their heirs. Mrs. Wells married Ernest O. Wagner and the plaintiffs allege that Mr. and Mrs. Wagner are conspiring to manage the estate so that the plaintiffs will be deprived of their interests in it. The Wells-Abbott-Niemann Co. of Schuyler is named as a defendant. Part of the estate consists of 932 shares in this company.

Man and Girls Caught In Raid Sentenced On Vagrancy Charge

A 90-day jail sentence was given J. C. Brock, 510 South Twenty-second street, yesterday in central police court on a charge of vagrancy. When arrested Monday night in his room together with Robert Williams of Council Bluffs and two girls police found a complete burglary kit it was said. Hats, said to have been stolen from the Omaha hat factory, Fourteenth and Douglas streets, were also found in his room, police say, besides several revolvers. The girls, Eva Lamb, 813 Fifteenth avenue, Council Bluffs, and Christine Dellmore, 1705 Avenue I, Council Bluffs, were given 30 days each in the county jail on charges of vagrancy. Williams, who was taken to Council Bluffs Tuesday for alleged thefts of automobiles, will be charged in central police court with adultery, the city prosecutor said. Efforts are being made to have him brought back to Omaha.

Students Continue Studies While Schools Are Closed

Many students in Central High school are continuing their studies at home during the enforced closing of the schools due to the fuel shortage. Teachers living in Omaha are conducting classes three days a week in their homes for some of the students and assigning lessons for home study. Reports that the schools would remain open indefinitely prevented many of the students from obtaining assignments for home study.

LEADERSHIP OF LODGE HELD IN HIGHEST REGARD

Washington Considers Work of Senior Senator in Treaty Fight Among Finest Examples in History.

The mastery leadership of Senator Lodge in the fight against the peace treaty and its league of nations covenant, recently ended in the United States senate, is generally accepted in Washington as one of the finest examples of leadership in the history of the country, according to Congressman Frank C. Reavis of Nebraska, who stopped in Omaha yesterday on his way east. "The differences in the viewpoint of many of the senators when this fight was begun," said Mr. Reavis, "were very many. There was one faction, headed by Senators Borah, Johnson and Poindexter, who wanted no league of nations at all; there was that faction, headed by Senators McCumber and Colt, which was willing to accept the milder sort of reservations, and yet another element which wanted amendments or strong reservations, with Senator LaFollette advancing his resolution, following no leadership at all. "It was practically impossible, at the beginning of the fight, to get these senators with divergent views together on any policy. There was never an hour, for months, when many of the senators who wanted mild reservations, not only were receptive to the compromise administration, but were making overtures to the administration looking for a compromise that would have resulted in reservations much milder than the administration is now ready to accept." Congressman Reavis declared that the administration permitted its hour to go by, and Senator Lodge welded all of these contending forces in the senate together into one faction. "Mr. Lodge did this welding with such security," says Mr. Reavis, "that it is now safe to say that the league of nations can never be ratified without the Lodge resolutions." "The mastery leadership, with which he had taken advantage of the many mistakes of the administration in the treaty fight," said Mr. Reavis, "is regarded in Washington as being the equal of any leadership in the political history of the United States." Congressman Reavis left Omaha last evening to return to Washington, where he has been called by pressing business.
