Influence of Good-Bad Mirrors

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

This isn't my article at all. I set it down and subscribe to it. But every bit of the material, every idea it contains was given to you and me by a great author, who is also a great editor and a poet as well and a philosopher besides. So we can afford to listen to him, can't we? "I believe in kindly mirrors, flattering mirrors. I believe in letting people see themselves as they long to be, as they hope they are."

"The other evening I took a splendid woman to dinner. She confessed that she was tired from a hard day's work and asked that we dine at a certain restaurant. She wouldn't give any reason, but when we arrived she disappeared into the dressing room for a time and on rejoining me she fairly beamed. Her weariness had vanished and a certain buoyancy had come to take its place."

"It was the mirror in the dressing room, she confessed. 'It always cheers me up. It makes me look so much better than I can possibly believe I do look. Still I hope . . . And rouse myself to reproduce the image the mirror has managed to reproduce.'"

"Of course, the lighting of that mirror must have been of such sort to bring out the best in her face. Not necessarily in all faces, but just in that particular face. And from the kindly reflection she got so much cheer and inspiration that she forgot her tiredness and pulled herself up to an approximation of the happy looking creature she had seen there. "I got an idea from what she said. Suddenly I remembered that the mirror before which I practice my shaving rites of mornings (remember this is the poet-philosopher-author-editor speaking) sends me back a kindly reflection which sober judgment makes me realize is a much improved edition of myself. That is, I know it's flattering when I stop to analyze. But who ever does stop to analyze when he sees an amazingly idealized photograph of himself?"

Mrs. Abner Luman of Salt Lake City, who has been the guest of her daughter, Mrs. Louis Meyer, and Mr. Meyer, left Monday for her home.

Lee Sallow has arrived to remain permanently in Omaha in connection with the Folk theater.

"No, ma'am, I don't figure out that I couldn't possibly look as fine as that. I just throw back my shoulders and think I'm not a bad looking old codger and that it's a pretty fine day, and I step out with a high and cheerful feeling. "Aren't most of us like that? Doesn't it make us feel pretty good to think we're not so bad-looking or so disagreeable? Don't we get a lot of cheer and uplift out of seeing ourselves reflected by kindly glasses?"

"That flattering mirror reinforces me—starts me out 100 per cent so meet the day. . . . Now, aren't there folks who do that, too? "Some one looks at me as if I were a sage and a philosopher instead of a rather dull old man, and I begin to think maybe I am almost as good as he says. And I don't want to disappoint him. And I go digging for my best. I wouldn't set less than that before him. "Folks who reinforce us by kindly generosity of viewpoint like a mirror in a good light do us a mighty good turn . . . don't you think so?"

Now the author-editor-poet-philosopher must exist and let us finish this talk in our own way. Not all of us are as sweet and modest as he, and not all of us can be trusted at large with his idea. For the sweet and modest and gentle souls this philosophy is absolutely safe. If you're one of those you don't need to read another word. If not—

It's dreadful to be one of those swanky, conceited souls who fancy that all they do is just as it should be and that their appearance is the best ever and that the rest of the world ought to stop and admire. It's only less dreadful (though a lot more lovable) to be the sort of timorous soul who fears that all he does is wrong.

For such timorous souls, and for most of us "regular fellows" in our blue days and below-par moments, the reinforcing mirror of kindly criticism can do a lot. Approval, encouragement, cheer and good faith are what we need to carry us along the way. To believe in ourselves because of an encouraging reflection of the personality we have to depend on defeats doubt and discouragement.

None of us can arrange to go about putting mirrors in kindly and beneficial lights. But all of us can manage to give back to people images of themselves which will send them on toward victory, instead of back toward defeat.

Interesting Facts On the Suffrage Amendment

The amendment reads: "The right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any state on account of sex."

First drafted in 1875 by Susan B. Anthony.

First introduced January, 1878, by Senator Sargent, of California.

Noted on its senate five times: 1887: Yeas 16, nays 34. 1914: Yeas 35, nays 34 (failing by 11 votes). 1918: Yeas 54, nays 30 (failing by two votes). 1919: Yeas 55, nays 29 (failing by one vote). 1919: Yeas 56, nays 25 (passing by two votes over necessary two-thirds majority).

Noted on its house three times: 1915: Yeas 174, nays 204 (failing by 78 votes). 1919: Yeas 55, nays 136 (passing by one vote over necessary two-thirds majority). 1919: Yeas 304, nays 89 (passing by 42 votes over necessary two-thirds majority).

Manitoba was the first province of the dominion to extend suffrage to women on an equal basis with men.

Beautiful Eyes

The eyes respond more readily to consistent care than does the skin. All society women and actresses bathe the eyes as regularly as they brush the teeth. For keeping the eyes bright and giving them that sparkle and brilliancy which is so desirable, high class beauty parlors and drug stores recommend simple witchhazel, camphor, hydrastis, etc., as mixed in Lavoptik eye wash. The witchhazel and camphor cleanse and soothe; and the hydrastis and other ingredients have remarkable tonic and beautifying properties. Many use Lavoptik to relieve dark rings and bloodshot eyes. The Christmas Store for Everybody

Gift Suggestions

Never before has the need for early shopping been so urgent as it is this year. With the shortening of the store hours you lose 30 hours of shopping privilege in the next fifteen shopping days before Christmas. That is, providing conditions remain as at present.

THIS Christmas Store of the Christmas Spirit has installed the "Gift Granny" service, which will make this a good old-fashioned Christmas.

When a sense of delicacy forbids asking the intended recipient of a Christmas gift just what would please most, we suggest our new service.

Just bring or send to "Gift Granny" the names and addresses of those whom you wish to remember. An explanatory letter and information blank will then be mailed to them, while the inquirer's identity will be kept secret.

"Gift Granny" will endeavor to have the answers in a few days. Even sizes, colors, styles, materials and price range can be ascertained.

"Gift Granny's" chimney corner is located on the Third Floor.

The Joy of Living

—bubbles over all the time at San Diego, California, because you can't help feeling it in a sunshine city built around a great park, bordering a beautiful bay and looking across the vast distances of the warm Pacific.

It's warm in winter and cool in summer. All the year is Springtime to the 85,000 residents of this thriving, modern city, where roses and geraniums, in January as in June, climb to the eaves of miles of attractive homes.

With every recreation of land and sea all the year 'round, and hundreds of miles of motor roads through upland valleys and mountain passes, living here costs less than elsewhere, for the man who has won a competence in rigorous climates.
