14 HENS LAY 13 EGGS A DAY. EASILY DONE

Mr. Moore's Hens Lay When Eggs are Scarce. Here's the Plan.

I had been getting 2 or 3 eggs a day from 15 hens. Then I commenced putting Don Sung in the feed, and an getting 13 eggs a day, with one hen setting. Don Sung is the best thing I ever found for making hens lay. E. L. Moore, 318 Clayborn St., Danville, Va. Mr. Moore used 60 cents worth of Don Sung in January. From his profit with eggs selling at around 70 cents a dozen, and this is no better than Don Sung is worth for thousands of others. Accept our offer just as Mr. Moore did. Give your hens Don Sung and watch them lay one month. If you don't find that it pays for itself and pays you a good profit besides, simply tell us and your money will be promptly refunded. Don Sung (Chinese for egg-laying) works directly on the egg-laying organ, and is also a splendid tonic. It is easily given in the feed, improves the hen's health, makes her stronger and more active in any weather, and starts her laying. Try Don Sung for 30 days and if it doesn't give you the eggs, so matter how cold or wet the weather, your money will be refunded by return mail. Get Don Sung from your druggist or poultry remedy dealer or send 50 cents for a package by mail prepaid. Burrell-Dugger Co., 373 Columbia Bldg., Indianapolis, Ind.

Heart Beats

By A. K. The man of wealth Gave his children gold—Indulged them In fads—Saved them from fretting And torments. He bragged to the world Of their money life—Encouraged idleness—Indolence—Ease. But the world is not made For the sluggard type—And money buys only Some things—There is no selling price For brains—No market price For ambition. The father gave only Useless gifts—And robbed his sons Of their future—Placed them all In Luxury's lap Who drained ambition away. He placed Temptation In the youngsters' path—Time stood looking on—But they dozed away In easy chairs And nothing worth while Would stay. The boys without gold Struggled and fought Minus comforts—Time and ease. But they built Strong characters And ironclad wills With growing determination To win. Self-improvement they caught And corralled—Accomplishment became Their amenities—Today they are victors—Master minds—While the idlers sit resting And rotting away In the arms of the siren—The Easy Chair. —SELAH.

Window Boxes in Winter. Why not have the outside window box as cheerful and attractive in winter as in summer? No great expense or effort is necessary to accomplish this. Of course, it is impossible to have the boxes as gay with flowers as in the summer months, but they can be made to contrast delightfully with the snow-covered ground by the use of evergreens and highly colored berries. If you go to a florist or a nurseryman, he will provide you with miniature spruces, pines, arbor vitae or other trees. In sections where the climate is not too severe, boxes may be used. These little specimens will make a pretty, formal appearance and are best for a large or pretentious house.

Famous Women

Miss Linley. To be the subject of one of the most renowned duels of the 18th century, your defender being the rising genius of the age; to have your beauty and loveliness of character win one of the prizes of the day, Richard Brinsley Sheridan—such was the destiny of Elizabeth Linley of Bath, England. She was only 10 when she first met Sheridan, and was an accomplished public singer without a trace of the tantrums and the idiosyncrasies of prima donnas. Her father was the eminent Mr. Linley, well known as a musician. Her suitors were innumerable, among these one Matthews. Miss Linley appealed to Sheridan already madly in love with her for advice and help. There followed the elopement to France, where Sheridan, the high-souled gentleman, planned to place Elizabeth in a convent until she could claim her in England. On the way to France they were secretly married. Matthews vowed vengeance, and began to vilify Sheridan's character. The latter returned to Bath, challenged Matthews, fought a duel with him and was nearly killed. Mr. Linley, becoming reconciled to the ardent young lovers, Sheridan and his wife went to London, where the man of genius brought out successively his wonderful comedies. During all his intoxicating triumphs, during the days of his slant downward into poverty and disgrace, his wife was his solace and his stay. The gods praised that she did not live to witness his untimely sakeness. She died of consumption in 1792, with never a breath having blown adversely across her name, that stood for all that is most beautiful in person and in life.

Christmas Fruit Cake

2 c. dark brown sugar 1 lb. raisins 1 lb. currants 1 c. butter 5 c. flour 2 eggs 1 lb. raisins 1 lb. currants 1 c. sweet milk 1 nutmeg, grated 1 tsp. yeast 1 oz. cinnamon 1 oz. cloves 1 tsp. soda 1/2 lb. citron 3/4 c. maraschino cherries

Put the butter or substitute in a bowl and cream by working with a wooden spoon until soft and creamy, add sugar gradually and continue beating until the eggs, beaten until light; mix and sift the flour and other dry ingredients and add alternately with the liquid ingredients. The fruit should be floured before being mixed in, to prevent sinking to the bottom.

Citron is cut in slices, then in thin strips; raisins are seeded and cut rather than chopped; currants need only picking over and rolling in flour.

When the cake has been well mixed and beaten, it should be poured into greased, floured pans and baked in a moderately hot oven. Do not move the cake until it has risen to its full height; after that, it will turn to brown evenly. Test by pressing the surface with the tip of a finger. If the cake is firm to the touch and rises with the finger, it is done. The cake may also be tested with a straw to be sure that it is sufficiently done. If the straw comes out clean, the cake is done.

Remove the cake from the pan just as soon as it comes from the oven by inverting the pan over a covered board. If necessary, a thin knife may be slipped in around the edges to loosen from the pan.

This fruit cake will keep several weeks, improving with the keeping.

Maraschino Cherry Sauce. 1/2 c. maraschino cherries 1 c. sugar 1 tsp. cornstarch 1 tsp. butter or substitute 1 c. water

Dissolve the cornstarch in a small amount of cold water and mix in the cup of hot water and sugar and cook until thickened. Thickening with cornstarch gives a clear, smooth sauce. Add the butter, maraschino cherries (cut in quarters) and sufficient cherry juice to give the desired color and flavor. Serve hot over plum pudding.

BY BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Would Like a Home. Dear Miss Fairfax, Omaha Bee: I am a widow and have been for a number of years. I have a lady friend, married, who moved away a short time ago. She wrote me that she knew a perfectly lovely old bachelor there to whom she wanted me to write. She stated that he was quiet and rather bashful and would not write the first letter, but would answer if I wrote first. I am going to be old some day and I want a home. He has plenty of money, a nice home and car, but no wife. Now would it be at all proper or permissible for me to write him, just a note with my address, or should I wait until the first of the year, as it will be leap year? The proposition seems to depend upon whether or not I write first. Let me know what to do. I have been a business woman and working nearly all of my life, but I am getting tired of it. Thanking you, I am, R. S. V.

What you propose to do is, of course, unconventional. Your motives, however, seem sincere, and your desires natural. Regardless of whether it is right or wrong to write first to a man you do not know, let me suggest that a man doesn't like to be sought. And a woman of your judgment knows, too, that even though you might write the first letter, there is no assurance that marriage would follow. Couldn't you arrange to visit your married friend and meet this bachelor? Or, why not send your friend a toothsome package for Christmas which she could pass on to the bachelor—fruit cake, candy or cookies, for example? Your friend could suggest that he write and tell you how good your cookery is. This would save the embarrassment of making advances and might be the means of bringing about a friendly correspondence at least. If you are square and he is honest, and your letter indicates that such is the case, there could be no harm in making this new acquaintance, but make it in such a way that you will lose none of your own respect or his, and please don't go into it with any "designs" of the man. Let it be, rather, a frank friendship which will put you on a happier basis with less chance for ultimate disappointment.

Child-Wife—If a mother does not respond to mother-love, then truly she lacks a great deal of womanly virtue. If by nature she is not willing to place her children before all else, then by compulsion she should make herself do so. You married too young of course and the responsibilities of motherhood came upon you at too early an age. But you are old enough now to exercise good judgment and there can be no excuse for your failure to do so.
