COST MORE, SAY CLOTHING MEN

Causes of High Prices Are Beyond Control of Retailers. Speaker Tells Merchants' Association.

Chicago, Dec. 11 .- Clothing prices will continue upward next spring, Charles E. Wry, secretary of the National Association of Retail Clothiers, announced today, explaining steps taken by the association to assist Attorney General A. Mitchell Palmer in combatting the high cost of wearing apparel.

The causes of high prices are beyond the control of the retail dealers, Wry declared, but members of the association are preparing to hold further price advances to the minimum, at the sacrifice of their own profits. Popular price suits, which sold before the war at $25 and now re-tail at $50, will bring $60 or more next spring, Wry said.

Demoralization of the industry in cident to the army demand for uni forms during the war, greatly in-creased labor costs and shortage of labor due to the stoppage of wholesale immigration, are responsible, Wry added. Piece workers in Chias high as $135 weekly, he said. From one of the poorest paid industries, employing largely immigrant workers, before the war, the needle trades have become one of the best paid. Wage increases since 1914 average 175 per cent, Wry said, while government reports fix the increase in the cost of living during the same period at 131 per
