Swindler Tells Farmer of Steel Rod Sticking Out Of Pole to Scoop Up Ice.

Minneapolis, Kas., Dec. 14 .- (Speeial.)—Visions of affluence gone and with the $30,000 hard earned cash, Homer Hograth, a farmer of Minneapolis, Kas., today applied for a warrant for Gallileo Grubino, alias Gallileo Grubb, alleged participant in the discovery of the horth pole and promoter for the "Aurora Borealis Ice company," a concern which Hograth thought was to revolutionize the ice business of Hograth described the plan of operation for the "Aurora Borealis Ice company," as explained by the missing Grubb. It was a plan which rivaled the schemes of Baron Mun-

Brings Chill on a Hot Day. One blazing hot day last July Gallileo appeared on the Hograth farm. He was equipped with an apparatus similar to those used by surveyors. In appearance he was tall, dark, excitable, and wore his beard in a heavy Van Dyke style.

Grubb seemed busy and preoccu pied, making some sort of measurements, continually looking toward the skies and gesticulating as if absorbed in calculating some abstruse problem in mathematics. Finally, Hograth says the strangsuddenly exclaimed excitedly this is the spot, the very spot. Then Gallileo Grubino introduced himself and offered to buy his farm, continually raising the price, until Hograth admitted he was offering more than the place was worth. Hogarth, scenting a mysterious forne, refused, to sell.

They Go Into Partnership. Upon his fourth visit Hograth ays Gallileo finally abandoned the attempt to purchase and agreed to take Hograth into partnership. He explained that he was an Italian scientist, that he had accompanied cary to the north pole, and that the pole was really a steel projecfrom the center of the earth. He had invented, he told Hograth. a mighty scoop, to be attached to the pole and to be run by electricity. In the process of the earth's revolution Gallileo explained, the scoop would dip into the ice of the arctic, and as the earth revolved the scoop would gradually tip and its contents fall to the earth in the exact longitude and latitude of Hograth's Since Hograth had refused to sell the place, Gallileo offered to accept the farmer as a partner upon the payment of $30,000, Hograth to remain upon the farm and take care of the ice, while Gallileo would return to the pole and harness his urts to settle industrial labor disputes must be provided by the government Senator Kenyon of Iowa declared in an address before the Lawyers' club. Strikes are no longer a private fight between employer and employe, he said. The American public, the third party to the consideration, does not propose, he added, to stand for strikes-"a relic of industrial barbarism."

We must have tribunals where these matters can be settled," he asserted. "We must establish courts mediation, conciliation and compulsory investigation and their desions must be backed up by pubopinion which will enforce them. "Civic problems go to civic courts. Why not industrial problems to inlustrial courts? The government must provide some means of solving these questions."

Jack West, fugitive from justice, who was arrested in his room at 101 North Eighteenth street, Sunday afternoon, must face a charge o grand larceny at East Pearia, Ill., and also finish a prison sentence at the federal penitentiary at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, on account of Identification as an escaped conict from Leavenworth was made through a picture found in the rogues' gallery at the Central police station, say police. A reward of $100 is offered for the return of West to the federal prison.

Police have learned that West and Louis Miller escaped from the prison on the same day in June, 1919. Miller recently was arrested in Omaha under the alias of Dr. L. A. Tyson. West was a pal of Miller's in prison, it was learned. Both es-caped in the garb of soldiers.

Through a "tip" furnished de-tectives that a man named West, wanted in East Peoria, was "stepping around" with the woman in the case, the detectives investigated. The woman, said to be young, well dressed and in love with West, was brought to the police station and questioned. At first she denied knowing the man, and refused to answer questions regarding her "male friend." At last she broke down and gave out the information that led to his arrest. The woman was then allowed to

THE BOYS AT CHRISTMAS TIME

Need the health giving protection of Father John's Medicine Need the health giving protection of Father John's Medicine to ward off colds, coughs and to build new strength.

In a recent letter Mrs. M. E. Ford, the mother of these two healthy children writes: "I use Father John's Medicine in all cases of coughs and colds, also as a tonic. It is invaluable in the home, especially where there are small children, it is such an excellent tonic and pleasant to take. My home is never without a bottle of Father John's Medicine." (Signed) Mrs. M. E. Ford, 214 Lonsdale Avenue, Pawtucket, R. I.

Can't Make Lost Profits By Gorging Old Customers; Scout Around for New Ones

GREATER OMAHA

By WILLIAM TANGUERY.

News of the settlement of the coal strike has brought old General Hope out of his fit of despondency and given the gate to the Glooms that have been doing the tango amid the graveyard daisies.

With one eye to business, the average business man will spend the next few months rehabilitating his fortunes, his other eye fixed on that darksome spot where the Ogre Politics is reading copy on the revised text of his latest edition preparatory to coming out of his hole. The business man is getting ready to play little old Jack the Giant Killer with this person, and the beans in his bag are ready to sprout at a moment's notice.

Aside from this, while the turmoil has been going on, the bureau of trade and commerce of the federal government at St. Louis has been steady at work hunting up worms for the early birds to gobble.

These opportunities, published every Monday in The Bee, offer a means of ready recuperation from the losses occasioned by the strike and coal restrictions period.

The dooryard hound may raise the old howl about the grass looking green on the hills far away, but the insinuation that it isn't any better than that close "t'hum" loses force in argument when paralleled with the also not unlikely fact that it couldn't be any worse.

Foreign trade is not only good, quick and reliable cash pay, but it is easier to sell to than most of the home trade, owing to the fact that our productions are new and novel to it, and eagerly snapped up.

For instance, a representative of a foreign country recently arrived in the United States looking for a line of cheap automobiles to handle back home.

An enterprising firm that makes a low priced machine which is but beginning to make headway in the auto world got in touch with this man through the trade bureau, guaranteed all shipments to be up to sample shown, and disposed of an exhibit battery of his cars, the people of the visitor's country, anxious enough to have an auto of almost any kind that would run, were "tickled to death," as the auto salesman says, and sent in a bunch

These orders came without any outlay for advertis-

Advertising was not needed. The auto was a new and strange device in the country, and anything would

First impressions are lasting, and the result of this incursion into new territory is that this particular car is "on the ground" floor and it will be difficult for another make to make headway against the prestige it already

And the field is large enough to take up a large proportion of the firm's output.

Disposal of the same number of cars in this country would require the establishment of several branch houses in different cities, local and national advertising, and an army of salesmen, demonstrators, office force and shop-

Not a single one of these is needed in making the sales to this foreign country and the commissions paid are almost the total expense.

There is a double moral in this, the one that is not obvious being that the man who sells outside his community brings dollars into town that were not here before, and is a greater benefactor to his city than the one who makes and sells at home, simply keeping the same old money in circulation.

Profits last during the enforced business depression cannot be made back by increased prices, nor by trying to sell a man double what he needs, half as fast as they can by hunting up a new man to sell to.

And the foreign trade bureau has a long list of new men. Read The Monday Bee and write for it.
