

WOMAN'S SECTION OF THE BEE

To reach the regions of light you must pass through the clouds. Some stop there, others are wise enough to go beyond.—Joseph Joubert.

I pray thee, cease thy counsel, which falls into mine ears as profitless as water in a sieve.—Shakespeare.

City Mission the Paradise for Foreign Children

They Learn to Cook and Sew and Read Good Books—They Need Many More.

A sweet voice floated across the room: "Sowing in the sunshine, Sowing in the shadows, 'Fearing neither clouds nor winter's chilling breeze; 'By and by the harvest, and the labor ended, 'We shall come rejoicing, bringing in the sheaves." It was Rosie Preñosal at the City Mission, where she had gone to attend the weekly sewing class on Saturday afternoon. Rosie is about 12 years old and is a member of the "choir" selected from the 100 industrious little girls, ranging in age from 5 to 14, who are learning everything from threading a needle to fitting a dress.

Famous Women

Mary Berry. To be an influence in a great life is a great thing. Miss Mary Berry, who died in London in 1852, was the last link between the closing 18th century and the mid-Victoria era. She was an authoress and gloried in being the correspondent of Horace Walpole. Indeed, this celebrated gentleman made her a fervent offer of his heart and his hand, but Miss Mary Berry declined the honor. With her sister she took up her abode at Twickenham, near Strawberry Hill, Walpole's estate. It was Miss Mary Berry who prevailed upon Walpole to give to the world his famous Reminiscences of the Courts of George I and II. Brave as a lion, she defended the name of Walpole before the savage attacks of Macaulay in the Edinburgh Review. We owe to her some of the most charming "Letters of Walpole."

Emulating the Lark. Lectured for lying abed late, the farmer's boy promised that in future he would "be up with the lark." The next morning the old farmer came in from his milking and found his son sitting on the stile and singing as blithely as though there was no such thing as work. "Why, you young rascal," said the exasperated sire, "this is worse than sleeping. What do you mean by loafing on that stile and singing at the top of your voice?" "The lad grinned. "You told me to be like the lark, and that's all he does when he gets up early."—Boston Transcript.

Easy Way to Keep Your Hair in Curl

If you have trouble keeping your hair in curl, you'll do well to try plain liquid silmerine. Apply a little at night with a clean tooth brush, drawing this down the full length of the hair from root to tip. The hair will dry in the prettiest waves and curls that you can arrange, and the effect will appear altogether natural. Instead of that dull, dried-out look which the heated iron gives, the hair will be bright, lustrous and beautiful. Liquid silmerine is of course perfectly harmless to hair and scalp, and is neither greasy nor gummy. If you will get a few ounces from your druggist you will find it quite inexpensive to use.

charge of the sewing class for seven years. The children drop 1 cent into the little pasteboard mite box as they enter the room. That is the weekly fee for instruction. Work begins with such songs as "Nobody Knows but Mother" and "Scatter Sunshine," sung in the best of English by children of Italian, Turkish and other foreign parentage. Little groups numbering six or more gather around tables and for each table there is a teacher. Mrs. Lenora Dietz Nelson is one of the assistants in the sewing class. She is a devoted worker in all that pertains to the City Mission and declares she can scarcely keep herself away from the work there to be done. Mrs. H. L. Snyder and Mrs. George Mickle are other interested helpers. Just at present there is a contest on, and how earnestly the little heads bow over a piece of cloth, and how painstakingly the fingers, with sometimes the tongue invisible sympathy, twist and pull in an effort to make the stitches tiny and strong. The cloth used by the sewing class is furnished by the Mission and the finished garments are the property of the maker. "I want to take this book home and show my mother the pictures," said one small boy. "Yes ma'am I'll wash my hands before I read it." "The books don't last long," said Miss Louise White, librarian. Many of the children's books have only paper covers and they are not given the best of care in the homes. It is sometimes found when the children's books are due and not returned, that it is mother or even the father who is keeping the book to read. Miss White's assistants in the City Mission library include Carita O'Brien, Emily Keller, Florence Russell, Hilda Hammer, Mrs. Ross Towle and Mrs. George Thummel. Every Saturday afternoon finds them at their post of duty, giving out books to the dozens of boys and girls who crowd around for the volumes. "The collection of 2,000 is greatly in demand and we are pitifully in need of more books," declared Miss White. "We would gladly call for them in any part of the city if notified they could be had. Magazines are sadly needed too for use in making up scrap books. Coming as they do from the Latin race, the little children who use our library fairly cry for fairy tales. They are an imaginative people, you know."

Cooking Class. Not only are habitues of the City Mission taught singing, sewing and encouraged to read good books, but cooking is included. Instruction is confined to the simpler and the American dishes. Miss Helen Walker, one of the instructors says many of the children know no American dishes. "But how quickly they learn," she declares. "Tell them something once and they know it. To look at them you would think they learn with their eyes, so wide open and centered they are on the work. "We made baking-powder biscuits one day," said Miss Walker, "and the one idea of the little girls was to go home and make them there." This is the great lesson of Americanization-taught. Thus are our American ideals at their best instilled into the beings of these youths from foreign lands. The 50 or 60 cannot be remade, but the child of 12 who learns that we are "sowing in the sunshine" and in the shadows, or the little girl whose sewing teacher trains her to select harmonious colors for her quilt blocks, or the child who attends the "story hour" class, all are getting lessons which will not only make them loyal to America, but which will make America proud of them. Boiling hay in water in iron kettles will remove rust from them. According to French scientists, newly fallen snow is highly radioactive.
