

BOLSHEVISM IS SOUNDLY SCORED BY C. E. HUGHES

Former Presidential Candidate Urges Measures to Forestall Class Rule

Pittsburgh, Jan. 1.—The bolshevik, the denatured citizen and the "apostle of minority dictatorship" all came in for a round scoring at the hands of Charles E. Hughes in an address at the University of Christian citizenship conference here.

Class rule, gripping some elements of American labor and threatening to overthrow economic, social, religious, political and industrial institutions of the Liberty States, Mr. Hughes said, is destined to fall in ruins by reason of the inherent defects in its own structure.

"Even though the triumph of such a movement will insure its final failure," the speaker continued, "for our sake and for the sake of our children we do not propose to endure it even for a quarter of an hour."

Mr. Hughes presented an antidote for the inculcation of the disease that has overcome Russia. He urged these measures: State, intelligent management. Adequate provision for fair and peaceful settlement of industrial disputes through agencies fairly representing all concerned in such controversies.

Education. Deportation of the aliens responsible for radicalism. Strict obedience to law and order. Religion. Adequate rewards for labor and immediate concentration of federal efforts toward ending the class struggle.

"Self-preservation is the first law of democracy," Mr. Hughes stated. "The processes of reason and justice are of no avail unless we maintain the conditions which make possible a resort to these processes. It is of no use to discuss liberty with those who plot to destroy the essential institutions of liberty."

Stamp Out Reds. "With respect to those who incite to disorder and violence, who plot revolution, who counsel the destruction of government, who seek to attain their end by resort to force or by the intimidation of those entrusted with the enforcement of the law, there is but one course. Their activities must be stamped out resolutely and swiftly."

"There should be no room in this country for alien emissaries seeking to establish bolshevism or to engage us in anarchy. Broadly tolerant as we should be, we cannot tolerate those who conspire to overthrow the republic." Mr. Hughes thought that a strike of railroad men is impossible. The possibility of our being transported to a world of multitudes, he said, the discontinuance or crippling of this service even for a short time would be disastrous.

"The community is therefore entitled to insist upon an uninterrupted service. The interest of all is superior to the interest of any group, and the interest of all absolutely requires that the grievances of those who work on railroads should be adjusted without destroying or maintaining this essential facility."

"Y" Open House Meet Is Declared "Success" by Committee in Charge

A junior athletic meet, swimming, wrestling exhibitions and a number of other events, as well as a musical program marked the annual open-house program at the Y. M. C. A. Christian association yesterday and last night.

This year's program was the best in the history of the organization, and was attended by a large crowd. In the morning the junior athletic meet was held and was a great success from every standpoint.

The junior meet consisted of the following events: Running high jump, 75-yard dash, spring board high jump, pole vault and standing broad jump. The evening program, which also met with great success, included gymnastic exhibitions by the boys' division, exhibition of parallel and horizontal bars by senior leaders, jiu jitsu by junior leaders, squad work by senior leaders and a wrestling exhibition by Dave and George Nordstrom.

The program closed shortly before midnight with selections by the Y. M. C. A. quartet. An orchestra furnished the music.

Newsprint Paper Reaches High Water Consumption Mark

Washington, Jan. 1.—Consumption of newsprint paper in the United States during the last three months reached a record-breaking point, along with prices, the federal trade commission reports.

The average cost of newsprint at mills at the beginning of December was $3.90 per ton, the commission reported, as against $3.75 a year ago. In 1915 the price was $1.88, the lowest in several years.

High prices failed to cut down consumption, however, and the commission estimated that in 1919, 14 per cent more newsprint was used than in 1918. During the fourth quarter of 1919, particularly, newsprint consumption was running up and the commission said that the increase then over the similar period in 1918 would be between 25 and 30 per cent.

George Corcoran Elected To Head District Judges The Nebraska Association of District Judges held its annual banquet at the Hotel Fontenelle Tuesday night and elected the following officers for next year: George Corcoran, York, president; Charles Leslie, Omaha, vice president; Edward E. Good, Wahoo, treasurer; and Bayard H. Paine, Grand Island, secretary.

The meeting was the largest ever held, with Chief Justice Morrey and Justice Dean of the supreme court as guests of honor. District Judge Day of Omaha spoke on "Naturalization Experts" and a discussion followed by Judges Begley, Thompson, Pemberton, Brown and Faine. Judge Clements read an abstract of proposed changes in the constitution which will affect district courts and a general discussion of the changes was held.

BISHOP URGES CO-OPERATION AMONG NATIONS

Petty Jealousies and Competition Placing North America in Undesirable Light, Says Denver Divine.

Des Moines, Ia., Jan. 1.—Some basis other than that of competition between nations must be found for their relationships with each other, Bishop Francis J. McConnell of Denver said in speaking at the Student Volunteer Movement for Foreign Missions convention here.

It is much easier to get at the point of view of the employer in the steel industry than it is to get the point of view of the worker, for it is quite definitely the expression of one man—Judge Gary, the head of the United States Steel corporation. It is a clear-cut, far-sighted, logically expressed point of view, whereas the voice of the workers is confused and vague—a multitudinous murmur, as diverse as Babel, with as many opinions as a town meeting.

After the business session of the convention at which the report of the executive committee of the organization was read, the convention split into sectional groups, divided by countries. Many of the foreign delegates were addressed in their own languages.

Wife of Former Mayor Taken Into Custody; Charge She Is Insane Mrs. George P. Bemis, wife of former Mayor Bemis of Omaha, was brought to central police station early this morning and charged with being demented.

Boiled down, the position of this steel master is that the present conflict is really a revolutionary struggle for the control of the steel industry on the part of organized labor; he is, therefore, with Judge Gary. When the employers win this strike—as he believes they will—his first step will be to begin a harder fight than ever against what he calls "these relics of barbarism."

Employers See Delicacy Of Industrial Mechanism And Fear All Radicalism

Unfortunate Effect of Present Labor Crisis Is to Drive Both Sides to Extremes—Point of View of Employer Is Clear-cut, Far-sighted and Logically Expressed—Voice of Workers Is Confused and Vague—Power Should Remain in Hands of Capitalist to Be Used Wisely and Generously.

It is important if we are really to understand the tremendous problem of industrial unrest which now confronts America, to understand how it looks from above to the employer. In my next article I shall describe the worker's point of view. In studying the employer I shall use the explanatory example of Gary Indiana.

As to the attitude of the corporation toward labor—and I am trying now to exhibit the industry fairly and not from above—one of the foremen at Gary seemed to me to strike a kind of keynote: "Judge Gary," he said, "knows far better what is good for these workmen, mostly ignorant foreigners, than they know themselves."

Let me describe a little further from Judge Gary's own testimony before the senate committee. As I said, he knows his power. "I recognize," he testified, "that the power of concentrated capital necessarily involves the power to do more or less harm to the worker, the fact personally that concentrated capital has the advantage over a single individual, if the concentrated capital is in the hands of directly to the very heart of Judge Gary's attitude toward labor. Recognizing the power of concentrated capital for good or evil, he desires to do good, as he sees the good.

His Philosophy Stated. A little later in the same address he discloses vividly his whole policy toward the workers. "This should be read carefully: "Make the Steel corporation a good place for them (the workers) to work and live. Don't let the families go hungry or cold; give them parks and churches; give them every opportunity to rest, clean, places of enjoyment, rest and recreation; treating the whole thing as a business proposition; drawing the line so that you are just and generous to your position as a manager; others to keep their, retaining control and management of your affairs; keeping the whole thing in your own hands, but nevertheless, with due consideration to the rights of all others, who may be affected by your management."

This is the very honest statement of his philosophy; and Judge Gary is one of the rare men who has tried to practice all he preaches. The Steel corporation has spent millions of dollars in various forms of welfare work for its workers, and so significant in many ways as to merit mention. He has a pension system and the encouragement of stock ownership for the workers—I shall enlarge upon them in another article. He has "treated the whole thing as a business proposition." He told the students of Trinity college last June, "It pays big, in dollars and cents, for the employer to maintain working conditions which are beneficial to the health and disposition of the employee."

He has also adhered with extraordinary singleness of purpose to the principle he lays down for his subsidiary presidents of "keeping the whole thing in their own hands." This principle, in fact, is the basis of his attitude toward unionism in his plants and explains his refusal to meet or deal upon any terms with representatives of organized labor. His logic is clear. If once it is admitted that unionized workmen may have any say regarding their conditions, the whole fabric of his philosophy begins to crumble.

While I have a good deal of authority and power," he told the senate committee, "I use the same very carefully; I am in the habit of consultation." Judge Gary the Mainpring. No one who touches the steel industry at any point fails to become conscious of this pervasive authority. Though the power house may be distant, no one who makes a contact anywhere fails to get a shock. I had such an experience myself, which I tell in no spirit of criticism, but merely to illuminate the point I am making.

His View of Unionism. The corollary of his principles, of course, is exactly what his foreman Gary told me, that he knows better or what is good for the workman than the workman himself knows. He tells the senate committee that unionism "is not a good thing for either the employer or the employee."

Shave, Bathe and Shampoo with one Soap—Cuticura. CUTICURA SOAP IS THE FAVORITE FOR MEN'S GROOMING.

"that hundreds of thousands of your employees were content and satisfied?" "I know it," said Judge Gary, "because I make it my particular business all the time to know the frame of mind of our people. My instructions regarding the treatment of the men are absolutely positive."

It follows, then, that the strike, which was a great surprise and shock to Judge Gary, was not due to his workers, not due to any grievances upon their part—for his instructions regarding their good treatment were "absolutely positive"—but to outside agitators and revolutionaries and to foreigners, as he repeatedly tells the senate committee.

Similarly, when the subject of the 12-hour day, the seven-day week, the "long turn" and the like, comes up for discussion before the senate committee he is forced by the logic of his own position—for he has said that he knows at all times the frame of mind of his employees—to declare that his workmen really want the long day and Sunday work—at least practically every workman who testified before the senate committee—and they were weary of them, complained of the long hours and the Sunday work.

So much for the industry, as it looks in its broader aspects from above to the only spokesman among the employers, taking the testimony of the 12-hour day complaint, the employers argue against change from a two-shift to a three-shift basis on account of the immense cost entailed. It would require at once a large increase in the number of workmen employed, when the labor supply in America is already dangerously short, and in most steel towns the housing is far from sufficient for such added population. There is great difficulty also in making wage readjustments; for the workers go to an eight-hour day and expect 12-hour pay, and they cannot live on much less, it means an enormous addition to the labor cost of steel.
