Heaven doth with us as we with torches do,
Not light them for themselves; for our virtues
Did not go forth of us, 'twere all alike
As if we had them not.

Oh! Those Wayward Evening Gowns

Emily
Chichester

They Refuse to Obey Rules So Daintiness and Dignity Are All Mixed Up.

There is no part of a woman's wardrobe more wayward than the evening gown. It simply refuses to obey rules, not even the rule of age. The sweet young thing who today appears in a lightsome, "youthful" bunch of fluff will tomorrow sheathe herself in a clinging, stately, trained affair of black velvet. Similarly will her elder sister discard dignity in some capricious moment in favor of frills. But why not, she asks defiantly, when every sort is correct.

Two of the gowns shown on this page, those worn by Lillian Hall and Emily Chichester, motion picture actresses, are totally different in character. Miss Hall's belongs to the first-mentioned class, being a lacy looking concoction of salmon pink silk net over a foundation of cloth of silver. The overdress which has a deep flounce, flowered in salmon pink, is cut straight across the top, and so wide as to extend—when held out—at least a half yard beyond either hip. But it is held out only for exhibition purposes; usually it is allowed to fall into soft folds, giving a slightly bouffant effect about the hips. The free edges are outlined with tiny ribbon flowers and look like the edges of pockets. Silver embroidery bands the low bodice and little bows of silver ribbon dot the flouncing at intervals.

Miss Chichester's gown is as severely plain as the other is frivolous, but it is of the rich, shimmering material, and is made on the fine, simple lines that are utterly independent of trimming—that, as a matter of fact, are far more effective without it. The whole thing is of heavy, lustrous black satin, the bodice and girdle cut in one piece; the skirt, extremely narrow about the ankles and with a very slight fullness at the hips. A straight, square train only serves to emphasize the general effect of simplicity, and incidentally, of slenderness and height.

Pineapple Possibilities

You may doubt the reliability of some of the statements concerning the almost miraculous merits of pineapple. The claim has been made that pineapple has rare healing qualities for the throat, that it would very nearly bring eternal youth.

It is one of the foods that, like celery with its reputed nerve healing virtues, has always come in for enthusiastic praise that has not always been entirely based on scientific investigation. However, we do know that all fruit is beneficial and pineapple has none of the superacidity that would make it less so than other fruit.

And there is one thing that has brought great popularity to pineapple within the last few years. It is the one sort of tinned fruit that seems to be universally liked. There are many persons who actually prefer the canned fruit to the fresh sort. The fact is that the pineapple that is canned is mellow and entirely ripe at the time of canning, hence it has none of that rather biting flavor that is sometimes to be found in the pineapples that we get in the market.

There are two sorts of pineapples—one that comes to you in slices and the other that is cut up. If you are using it for salad or desserts where you want to use the whole pieces then the former is your best selection, whereas if you are going to make a dessert where you wish to have it minced then you save time by using the latter sort.

When it is possible open a can of pineapple today and use it for a salad and finish it up tomorrow in a dessert. If you are making a fruit mixture of bananas, apples, grapefruit or other fruits in combination with a little pineapple, even if it is but one slice left over, will add piquancy to the flavor. The juice in which pineapple is canned is quite sweet, and this may be used to sweeten a fruit dessert.

One very good salad that may be made to take the place of salad as well as dessert is made by placing pineapple slices on lettuce and then filling the holes of pineapple with cream cheese. French dressing to which a little pineapple juice has been added should be used with it.

Always a little pineapple placed in the bottom of the dish in which custard is served adds interest to that simple dessert.

A delicious dessert is a pineapple omelet made as follows: Beat three eggs thoroughly and add a tablespoonful of sugar, a pinch of salt and after this is mixed, a teaspoonful of lemon juice and a teaspoonful of the juice of canned pineapple. In the meantime prepare your omelet pan by greasing it with butter. When hot turn in the beaten eggs and proceed as usually with an omelet. When it is set sprinkle over the top of one-half of the omelet a cup of drained minced pineapple. Now fold over the other half and sprinkle with powdered sugar before serving.

Officer in the General Federation of Women's Clubs Here.

Mrs. Thomas G. Winter

Mrs. Winter, second vice president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, arrives in Omaha today to attend meetings of the general federation board, January 6 to 8. Mrs. Winter is director of Americanization in the federation and is well-known over the country as author, lecturer, club and civic worker. She is a candidate for the office of president, G. F. W. C. Election will be held at the "Golden Prairie Biennial" of the clubs, Des Moines, Ia., June, 1920. "Americans, this is our country, let's stand together," is one of Mrs. Winter's characteristic remarks.

Effects in Embroidery

Every season there is something distinctive in the style of embroidery and the way it is applied to clothes. To be smart milady, this year for instance, embroiders not her collar, but instead the flat collarless neck of her dress. One of the favorite stitches for the one nice frock neck as well as the Georgette blouse, the Russian or casaca blouse of velvet or the jersey smock is a hand composed of three rows of basting stitches placed rather close together in contrasting embroidery silks. Many times a popular color scheme is two tones of the same color or three light colors with a middle row of black silk to give accent for this sort of trimming. A sort of sun-ray stitch, that is, long and short stitches, done over the edge of the neck, is another smart neck finish. Sometimes silk and sometimes wool is chosen to work these stitches and sometimes French knots or solidly embroidered dots are placed at the end of these stitches.

On smocks of taffeta embroidery in self color is very good just now. This often decorates the front of the blouse in a design of conventionalized flowers.

One of the very newest of this year's effects in embroidery applied to clothing is an over and over stitch—laid work—just wide enough to imitate soutache braid. It is most frequently applied in black silk to the winter frocks of dark blue serge, broadcloth or tricotine—particularly those models called "coat dresses."

Black silk embroidery, it should be noticed, always makes an effective ive or striking contrast on most any material. And in designs of other colors it helps bring out the pattern, if used sparingly here and there.

On the winter hat hand embroidery is perhaps, a little less used than formerly, but some striking or dainty stitches still lend distinction to a few of the most exquisite and up to date. On hats of taffeta and velvet with a turban crown one of the most popular ways to embroider is to use a fine silver or gold thread and weave it across the crown in such a way as to leave flower-like looking spaces on the fabric. Another way is to make a plaid design of basting or fine stitches.

On the hats of velvet, plush, broadcloth, duvetyne, fur fabrics of beaver, chenille silk and wool embroidery are all used—usually in a single handsome motif. On a broad brimmed beaver of tan color, for instance, a beautiful pink rose worked in both silk and chenille—silk for the petals and chenille for the foliage—on the front of the crown is the only trimming. On the left side of tams embroidery is sometimes effectively done in a few coarse wool stitches.

Thoroughly chilled bacon will slice very evenly.

Furniture should be stained before being waxed.

Charcoal powder is excellent for cleaning brushes.

Shoe polish on clothing can be removed with vinegar.

"SYRUP OF FIGS" CHILD'S LAXATIVE

Look at tongue! Remove poisons from stomach, liver and bowels.

Accept "California" Syrup of Figs only—look for the name California on the package; then you are sure your child is having the best and most harmless laxative or physic for the little stomach, liver and bowels. Children love its delicious fruity taste. Full directions for child's dose on each bottle. Give it without fear.

Mother! You must say "California!"

This institution is the only one in the central west with separate buildings situated in their own grounds, yet entirely distinct, and rendering it possible to classify cases. The one building being fitted for and devoted to the treatment of non-contagious and non-mental diseases, no others being admitted; the other Rest Cottage being designed for and devoted to the exclusive treatment of select mental cases requiring for a time watchful care and special nursing.

Mountains seem to have been built for the human race, as at once their schools and their cathedrals; full of treasures of illuminated manuscript for the scholar, kindly in simple lessons for the worker, quiet in pale cloisters for the thinker, glorious in holiness for the worshiper.

They are great cathedrals of the earth, with their gates of rock, pavements of cloud, choirs of stream and stone, altars of snow, purple traversed by stars—Ruskin.

It Will Pay You to Buy Your Household Linens Now During Kilpatrick's Annual January White Sale

There are sound, logical reasons why the women of Omaha should anticipate their linen needs and buy now! Ireland is practically the only country producing flax. Russia, formerly producing almost three-fourths of the world's supply, is practically out of business. Belgium has not yet fully restored her linen industry. Under such conditions linens must continue to be scarce, and scarcity is the inevitable cause of higher prices. A glance over the following items will quickly convince you of the advisability of securing your linen needs during our January White Sale.
