Secretary of Navy Tells Why Awards Were Made for Services in the Navy.

leaving his sinking ship, won victory after transferring his flag from the Lawrence to the Niagara. Indeed, Perry and all his gallant and victorious crew were inspired to win victory by the immortal words of Lawrence, for Perry had adopted Lawrence's dying words as the sub-bolch on his flag: "Don't give up the ship!"

10 Officers Selected. Ten commanding officers of ships torpedoed and sunk or put out of action were selected as worthy of receiving the Distinguished Service Medal.

These awards, as I stated in my previous letter, were made without exception to every commanding officer whose ship felt the blow of the enemy except one who was court-martialed and who, though fully acquitted, had no recognition from any superior officer for recognition of any character. Admiral Wilson stated officially that the failure of Captain Hasbrouck to return to his ship at daylight with a salvage party was an offense more serious than an error of judgement and Admiral Gleaves stated officially that "though the court fully acquitted him, my own opinion is such that I cannot recommend him for the award, either for a medal or a cross."

However, because of his previous service in the transportation of troops and without recognition from any superior officer after his ship was torpedoed, Captain Hasbrouck was selected by my direction for a naval cross, the same as was awarded to commanding officers of other transports. Captain Hasbrouck writes he does not desire to accept the medal.

Instructions have been given for the fullest investigation with a view of further awards to other officers and men on these and any other ships, who rendered meritorious service by reason of attack by enemy ships. Some of the actions have been announced before now except for the reconvening of the board of awards to consider all meritorious service and make further recommendations. Late and incomplete reports have necessarily delayed full justice to those who deserve recognition. But, though postponed, it will be given and the highest honors should go to those who felt the shock of the enemy successfully, or otherwise, when courage and good judgment were shown rather than to those who rendered service ashore in places of less responsibility.

Quotes Sims' Report. Reviewing the case of Commander Foote, whose ship, the President Lincoln, was struck by three torpedoes simultaneously and sunk in 30 minutes, the secretary quoted Admiral Sims' report as follows:

"The small loss of life is due to thorough discipline of the ship's company and excellent seamanship of Commander Foote." Admiral Gleaves' report on the case, the letter said, contained the statement that "the small loss of life was due to the splendid discipline of the ship's company and their fine seamanship under the gallant leadership of Commander Foote." Captain Madison, convoy commander, wrote that "it was an inspiring sight to see the ship, the stern awash and on the point of sinking, with her officers aboard and guns still firing."

Admiral Gleaves recommended Foote for a Distinguished Service Medal, the letter said, and the recommendation was approved by Admiral Mayo, commander-in-chief of the United States fleet, and by the Knight board.

Incorporated in the letter were the records of all of the officers who lost their vessels, including Commander D. W. Bagley, nephew of Mrs. Daniels, and Commander Percy W. Foote, the secretary's aide, about whom much of the controversy has centered.

Commander Bagley's Case. In Commander Bagley's case, Mr. Daniels quoted from a letter by Rear Admiral Sims in connection with his approval of the findings of the court of inquiry convened to investigate the loss of Bagley's ship.

"Bagley's handling of the situation after his ship was torpedoed was everything that I expected in the way of efficiency, good judgment, courage and valiant action," Admiral Sims wrote.

The findings of the court of inquiry were that "the commanding officer, officers and men of the U. S. S. Jacob Jones bore themselves in accordance with the best traditions of the service and no blame for responsibility for the loss of the vessel attaches to them."

Secretary Daniels said that Admiral Sims recommended Commander Bagley for a navy cross, the Knight board on naval awards approved the award and the secretary changed it in common with the awards of all other commanding officers of torpedoed ships except Captain Hasbrouck to a distinguished service medal.

BOLSHEVIKS AIM TO ENGULF WHOLE WORLD IN GRASP

Plan to Establish "Dictatorship of Proletariat," According to Matter Sent Out

Washington, Jan. 4.—The communism of Lenin and Trotsky recognizes no national lines or state boundaries, but aims at engulfing the entire world in the establishment of a "dictatorship of proletariat," according to the "essence" of sovietism prepared by the bolshevik themselves and included in a collection of press utterances translated from Russian newspapers for the State department.

The memorandum, which presents an indictment of bolshevik terrorism and points out the soviet program for world revolution, was made public today and has been transmitted to the senate and house committees dealing with foreign affairs.

Four American radical organizations were included in the original list eligible for representation and full membership in the third international, according to the full text of the call issued by wireless in January, 1919, which was reproduced in the memorandum. These organizations were the socialist labor party of America, the "left elements of the socialist party of America, especially that group which is represented by Debs, and the socialist propaganda association," the I. W. W. of America and the Workers Industrial Union of America.

Reinstein Signs Call. This call was signed by Boris Reinstein, representative of the socialist labor party of America, who succeeded in reaching Russia without a passport. His wife was arrested recently in Buffalo.

The extraordinary circumstances and organized terror under the bolshevik regime are discussed in the memoranda, and supplemented by official proclamations from the president of the all-Russian extraordinary commission. This message, signed by Petrovsky, September 2, 1915, contains the following: "End should be put to weakness and softness. All right socialist-revolutionaries known to local soviets should be arrested immediately. Numerous hostages should be taken from the bourgeoisie and officer classes. At the slightest attempt to resist or the slightest movement among the white guards, mass shooting should be applied at once. Initiative in this matter rests especially with the local executive committee."

Economic Results. A second section of the memorandum deals with the economic results of the two years of bolshevik rule. The budget for the first six months of 1919, as published in bolshevik newspapers, showed the bolsheviks themselves, it appeared, that the amount of paper money in circulation in January, 1919, was more than 50,000,000,000 rubles.

Other press excerpts show the disorganization of administrative machinery and the collapse in the productivity of labor, industrial collapse, and the breakdown of transportation.

The world progress of the bolsheviks is amplified in the May day proclamation last year of the communist international, in which appeared the phrase: "Long live civic war, the only war, in which the oppressed class fights its oppressors."

The concluding sentences of the proclamation were: "In 1919 was born the great communist international. In 1920 will be born the great international soviet republic."

Victrola XVII, $300. Victor supremacy is built on Victor originality. It is significant that every worth-while accomplishment in the talking-machine art, every improvement of value in talking-machine construction, is the result of Victor skill and progressiveness. The Victor Company is not a mere manufacturer of talking-machines. It is a creative organization. It developed the talking-machine to its present high state of perfection, and the years of experience and millions of dollars spent in exhaustive research and experiment all have a direct bearing on the superiority of Victor products today. The mammoth Victor plant is devoted exclusively to the manufacture of talking-machines and records, and it is the only plant in the entire talking-machine industry which makes every part of every instrument within its own walls. No other manufacturer today is qualified to produce an instrument as good as the Victrola. If the instrument you buy is to be the best, it must be the Victrola. There are Victrolas in great variety of styles from $25 to $950, and there are Victor dealers everywhere who will gladly play your favorite music for you.
