LAND VALUES IN STATE PROBLEM FOR ASSESSORS

Inflated Values of Farms During War Big Question in Four-Year Assessment.

Lincoln, Jan. 8 .- (Special.) - Assessors of the state are in session at the Lindell hotel in this city wrestling with the proposition of land values as it has been placed before them, because of the inflated values which some land in the state has been sold for.

Secretary Bross of the department of finance of the state talked to the assessors, covering the matter of advances in land values and told them that they should remember that the assessment this year would stand for four years. He called attention to instances of inflated values and in one case where a piece of land containing 20 acres in Stanton county had sold for $42,000, which would average $2 100 an acre.

Low Levy Favored.

Mr. Bross said that he believed that an actual valuation of land and a low levy would be much better than an undervaluation of land with a high levy. He especially desired
