

Wilson's Message, Read At Democratic Dinner, Silent Over Third Term

Almost All of Communication Devoted to Arguments As to Why He Considered it the Duty of the United States to Join League of Nations—Keenly Regrets His Inability to Be Present and Deliver Message in Person.

Washington, Jan. 8.—The text of President Wilson's message read before democratic chiefs at the Jackson day dinner in Washington follows:

"It is with keenest regret that I find that I am to be deprived of the pleasure and privilege of joining you and the other loyal democrats who are to assemble tonight to celebrate Jackson day and renew their vows of fidelity to the great principles of our party, the principles which must now fulfill the hopes not only of our own people but of the world.

"The United States enjoyed the spiritual leadership of the world until the senate of the United States failed to ratify the treaty by which the belligerent nations sought to effect the settlements for which they had fought throughout the war. It is inconceivable that at this supreme crisis and final turning point in the international relations of the whole world, when the results of the great war are by no means determined and are still questionable and dependent upon events which no man can foresee or count upon, the United States should withdraw from the concert of progressive and enlightened nations by which Germany was defeated and all similar governments (if the world be so unhappy as to contain any) warned of the certain consequences of any attempt of a like inequity and yet that is the effect of the course the senate of the United States has taken with regard to the treaty of Versailles.

Stop Lashing Your Bowels with Harsh Cathartics but take "Cascarets."

Everyone must occasionally give to the bowels some regular help or else suffer from constipation, bilious attacks, stomach disorders, and sick headache. But do not whip the bowels into activity with harsh cathartics.

What the liver and bowels need is a gentle and natural tonic, one that can constantly be used without harm. The gentlest liver and bowel tonic is "Cascarets." They put the liver to work and cleanse the colon and bowels of all waste, toxins and poisons without griping—they never sicken or inconvenience you like Calomel, Salts, Oil, or Purgatives. Twenty-five million boxes of Cascarets are sold each year. They work while you sleep. Cascarets cost so little too.

BRYAN SPLITS OPENLY WITH THE PRESIDENT

Declares Democrats Cannot Go Before Country on League of Nations Issue at Election.

Washington, Jan. 8.—William J. Bryan split openly with President Wilson at the Jackson day dinner tonight on the question of whether the democratic party should make the league of nations an issue at the next election.

The former secretary of state, three times a candidate for the presidency and a power in his party, declared the democrats could not go before the country on the issue and that they must accept such compromises as may be possible.

"Our plan has been rejected and we must face the situation as it is. We must either secure such compromises as may be possible or present the issue to the country. The latter course would mean a delay of at least 14 months and then success only in case of our securing a two-thirds majority of the senate.

"I cannot afford, either as citizens or as members of the party, to share with the republican party responsibility for further delay; we cannot go before the country on the issue that such an appeal would present. A majority of congress can declare war. Shall we make it more difficult to conclude a treaty than to enter a war?"

Reviewing the past and surveying a program for the future, Mr. Bryan said he ventured to suggest "three new propositions." They were: "A national system of roads, extending in every state, to be known as 'A National Peaceway,' both as a utilitarian project for binding the states together in commerce and intercourse, but as a memorial as well to the soldier dead.

war will not be over in fact until the issues which it has raised are passed upon by the great court of appeals in America and the judgment of the people is entered.

Former Ambassador Gerard—"The country demands that both sides get together, that a compromise be made and peace given to the world."

Former Speaker Clark—"Democratic accomplishments during the last six years entitle the party to a long lease of power."

Senator Underwood—"The issue is clear. The president has defined it beyond cavil."

The host of democrats on hand for the dinner had swamped the available accommodations of any one hotel in town and the party was divided into two dinners at two separate hotels a block apart.

authority and national action. He was so indomitable in his purpose to give reality to the principles of the government, that this is a very fortunate time to recall his career and to renew our vows of faithfulness to the principles and the pure practices of democracy. I rejoice to join you in this renewal of faith and purpose. I hope that the whole evening may be of the happiest results as regards the fortunes of our party and the nation."

Former Secretary McAdoo's telegram and President Wilson's message were read to each.

Everybody at both places was buzzing with suppressed excitement to know what President Wilson and Mr. Bryan were going to say. There were rumors of a split in sentiment between the president and his former secretary of state over the peace treaty question and the air seemed to be full of electricity.

When Chairman Cummings in his opening speech declared "tonight we invoke the militant spirit of Andrew Jackson," there was a roar of applause and cheers, and another when he declared the democrats looked forward "to the campaign of 1920 with the utmost confidence."

The former secretary of state, three times a candidate for the presidency and a power in his party, declared the democrats could not go before the country on the issue and that they must accept such compromises as may be possible.

"Our plan has been rejected and we must face the situation as it is. We must either secure such compromises as may be possible or present the issue to the country. They were: "A national system of roads, extending in every state, to be known as 'A National Peaceway,' both as a utilitarian project for binding the states together in commerce and intercourse, but as a memorial as well to the soldier dead.

A national bullet-in—not a newspaper, Mr. Bryan declared—to present national issues under bipartisan control.

The initiative and referendum, which he declared the democratic party might adopt as its "next great reform."

War Still Living Fact

"The great war is still a living fact," he said. "The hopes of the world for peace has been blasted by the jealousies of men who hold their political fortunes above the world's need."

Too much evidence as to America's part in the war has been submitted, Attorney General Palmer said, for the republicans to be withdrawn from the jury now.

At the other banquet hall, Vice Chairman Kremer's first mention of President Wilson's name brought the diners to their feet. Cheering and the reading of the president's message frequently was interrupted by cheering and rebel yells.

criticize our methods, belittle our achievements."

Senator Hitchcock, first of the Favorite Sons to speak, declared the republican party would not attempt to repeal democratic laws.

When Senator Hitchcock declared that "if the republicans throw this treaty into the next campaign, we are ready to take up the gauntlet," the diners shouted approval.

Hope for Women's Aid. Declaring the women voters eventually would give the democratic party credit for securing woman suffrage, Mrs. Olesen said suffrage had asked the republicans for the ballot ever since the civil war, but could not get it until the democrats came into power.

Governor Cornwell brought a laugh at the outset of his address by remarking: "I have no desire in the regrettable absence of our president to sound a keynote or seize a party organization, and I hope this will relieve some of the other democrats here tonight."

The governor said he was satisfied that "passage of the Adamson eight-hour law was an unfortunate event."

"I have stood for the basis eight-hour law," he said, "but I feel it is wrong for congress to legislate wages and hours of labor."

Governor Cox Greeted. During the cheering of Governor Cornwell word spread that Mr. Bryan was coming, and there was a general craning of necks, but Chairman Cummings introduced Governor Cox of Ohio, a favorite son, and cheering broke out anew.

At the conclusion of Governor Cox's address Attorney General Palmer entered the hall from the other banquet room and was greeted with applause, which was renewed when Chairman Cummings announced he would read a telegram from William G. McAdoo.

At the other banquet room former Ambassador Gerard was speaking. He said the world was crying for peace and that if no reservations to the peace treaty could be agreed upon "we should adopt the peace treaties of William Jennings Bryan."

Senator Underwood, who announced today that he was not a candidate for president, said it was wise to remember that the democratic party, through its long history, had never entered a campaign for the mere purpose of victory or for winning the spoils of office. It lived because it stood for certain fundamental principles, he added.

"There is one issue that the democratic party will carry to the country this year," he declared. "The president has defined it beyond cavil. The democrats stand for reservations that do not destroy the covenant. There is but one course—to take the issue to the country for another congress to determine."

Owen Predicts Agreement. Senator Owen predicted that an agreement on the treaty would be reached in the senate with reservations that would not "do serious harm to the treaty."

He said he sympathized with President Wilson, his position, for in view of the chief executive's pledge to the allies he could not very well recommend changes in the document.

Secretary Daniels said the issue of the campaign was to be in one word—Americanism.

"The party to which we belong," he said, "can have no touch with hyphenism."

Daniels Credits Bryan. William J. Bryan was given credit by Secretary Daniels for laying the foundations of the league of nations covenant through the arbitration treaties negotiated by him as secretary of state.

In view of published reports that the three times nominee of the democrats for the presidency again aspired to lead the party in a campaign, Mr. Daniels's statement created one of the most interesting moments of the dinner.

"The declaration (of independence) and the covenant (of the league of nations)," the secretary said, "are the two living light fountains of liberty and peace. It is the glory of the democratic party that through Jefferson and Wilson we have given these safe charts for all time for safe navigation upon all seas."

Former Speaker Clark reviewed the accomplishments of the democratic administration, saying it had put more constructive legislation on the statute books in six years than the republicans had in the quarter of a century preceding.

Introduced as the law and order governor of West Virginia, Governor Cornwell in delivering his address at the other banquet hall was given a second ovation.

"You've been friendly to labor, but be fair to the American people who are not organized," he said amid prolonged cheering.
