PROFITS ON LAND BRINGING UP FATHER-SALES SUBJECT

Internal Revenue Department Operatives Will Be Stationed at Every County Seat to Report.

Profits obtained from land sales must be included in the income tax returns, according to John J. Gillin, In charge of the internal revenue department in the federal building. The 40 accountants working out of the Omaha office will investigate all fand contracts and anyone found making a false report in their returns will be subject to penalty and punish-

According to Mr. Gillin a number of Omahans are under the impression that these profits do not need to be included in their income tax return. All land contracts in the register of deeds office in the court house will be investigated, Mr. Gillin says, in order to obtain information concerning the different land deals.

An operative of the internal rev enue department will be stationed in every county seat in the state, and several will be located here to assist the tax pavers in making out their income returns. The returns must be in the internal revenue of fice not later than March 1.

Morris & Co. Employes . Receive Big Sum by

Sharing in Profits

General Manager Lyle Hersey of the local plant of Morris & Co., received a telegram Monday from the main office of the company that the organization on that day had distributed $250,000 among its employes throughout the country, who have entered the profit-sharing plan. It was announced by Edward Morris, president of the company, that though the net earnings of the company for 1919 were not sufficient to pay the 10 per cent guaranteed the participants, the company has taken from its surplus funds to make good its promises, and the profit-sharing plan will remain a permanent thing.

"I don't believe I was ever so comfortable in my life," I returned. "But did you ever see anything equal to the energy of our relatives? If I could feel fatigued in this bracing, salty air I think the spectacle of Marion and my father would induce the feeling."

Lillian laughed lightly, but there was a tender note in her voice which always comes at any mention of the child she idolizes. "Marion and your father are having the time of their young lives," she said, "and it would take a Philadelphia lawyer to determine which days until you pull yourself to-is the older if he judged by their ac-gether. Your father will be a regutions alone. It certainly was a lucky thing for Marion that you decided to have your father come with us." "I think it was a lucky thing for father," I smiled, pointing lazily to my respected parent, the picture of content, who was dodging showers of sand from Marion. The child was adorably pretty in the bathing suit in which she had practically lived since our arrival, and she evi dently was riotously happy wit her elderly playmate. Do you fully realize our blessing in having the place practically to ourselves?" continued Lillian a few moments later. "I never have been able to understand the mental quirks of the average summer resorter who flies back to the city on Labor day no matter how wonderful the weather he leaves behind him. September is the best month of all at the seashore to my thinking, and while I deplore the judgment of the people who have left I also tender them my sincere thanks, for they certainly have left the wilderness to thee
