

WAKE ROLL CALL IN CAMPAIGN TO COUNT THEM ALL

Chamber of Commerce and Census Supervisor Expect Stragglers to Give Omaha 200,000 Population.

Thousands of Omahans were missed by federal census enumerators, according to the Chamber of Commerce bureau of publicity, which is carrying on a "count them all" campaign in cooperation with John H. Hopkins, supervisor of the census in this district.

As a result of circular letters to all large concerns of the city, and the work of a force of girls who are calling every telephone in the city, it was found that nearly 1,500 people had been missed by enumerators. Reports from industrial concerns are now pouring in, and indicate that this number will be greatly increased.

Twenty-five at One Place.
Through telephoning alone it was found that 1182 persons had been missed, a proportion of these being people of prominence. At the home of Mrs. Cora Blunk, 413 North Twenty-fifth street, it was found that 25 people had not been recorded by enumerators.

The Douglas Motor Co., reported yesterday that the families of six of its employees had been missed. Ten employees of the Corey-McKenzie Co. were missed; 19 at the Icen Biscuit Co. and 19 at the McGraw Co.

Among the citizens of prominence, or people with large families who were missed are:
Joseph Boyd, Fifth and Avenue J, east Omaha, five people; C. J. Baird, 376 North Forty-first street, five people; Theresa Blomberg, 3017 Pratt street, nine people; Max Burk-road, 206 North Nineteenth street, five people; "Farmer" Martin Burns, 121 Lincoln boulevard, six people; L. F. Crofoot, 132 South Twenty-ninth street, five people; Charles Byers, 554 South Thirty-fourth street, 10 people; W. B. Brand, 3522 Jackson street, five people; N. C. Anderson, 316 North Twenty-third street, 12 people; Edgar Ray Allen, 506 South Thirty-fourth street; five people; Fred Anheuser, 3204 Cumings street, five people; Louis Adams, 2919 Seward street, three people, and Mrs. Clint Ames, 3323 North Twenty-eighth street, eight people.

Believe 5,000 Missed.
A large colony of Omahans living at the Carter Lake club was also unrecorded, as the club is located on Iowa soil.

"We expect to find at least 5,000 people who were missed," declared Harvey Milliken, chairman of the bureau of publicity. "We will turn their names over to Mr. Hopkins. We do not blame Mr. Hopkins for missing these people. Other cities are experiencing the same difficulties. We still contend, however, that if everyone in greater Omaha is recorded the population will reach 200,000."

A roll call was held in all public school Friday and children were instructed to tell their parents to call the chamber if they had not been recorded by enumerators.

Youthful War Hero Comes To Omaha for Amputation

Willing to Sacrifice Arm In Exchange for Experiences In Flanders—Ran Away From Home In Sioux City, Ia., to Join Canadian Army—Wounded at Vimy Ridge.

"I would rather lose my arm than the experience I gained in France," declared Pvt. Fred G. Atkins, youthful war veteran, who arrived in Omaha yesterday to have his left arm amputated. "They may take my arm, but they can never separate me from the memories of those days when men fought together like brothers and died like brothers on the battlefields."

Pvt. Atkins served with the 20th battalion, Canadian infantry, in the trenches of Flanders, he says, for two and a half years, during which time he says he suffered a shrapnel wound and a wound from a high explosive shell in his left arm.

"I ran away from my home in Sioux City, Ia., and joined the Canadian army at the age of 17," he said. "I lied about my age to enlist. After spending a short time in England we were sent to the trenches. I got my first wound at Vimy Ridge in August of 1916, but came back strong in a short time, only to get it again eight months later. Both times my left arm was cut up the worst."

"They took me to a hospital at Kent, England, and finally sent me back to America, after giving me the best medical treatment possible. I arrived in this country on December 2, 1919. My arm kept getting worse, and doctors in Omaha tell me it will have to be amputated."

"I'm going to have it cut off in a day or so and get it over with."

Pvt. Atkins came to Omaha to visit his sister, Miss Eva Atkins, 540 South Twenty-fifth street, and to receive medical treatment. He carries his arm in a sling and declares that it is entirely numb from the elbow down. He is wearing the uniform in which he served, bearing the stripes indicating his length of service.

Continues to Improve
"Continued improvement" was the report received yesterday on the condition of Mrs. N. B. Updike, who has been in a hospital for more than a week.

TEACHERS HEAR METHODS USED BY LOAN BODIES

T. J. Fitzmorris Describes Activities of Savings And Loan Associations In State.

T. J. Fitzmorris of the Nebraska Savings and Loan association, discussed building methods of savings and loan associations in Omaha and in Nebraska, before the teachers' forum, which met yesterday in the Chamber of Commerce.

The amount of business done by savings and loan associations has increased from $2,000,000 of 25 years ago to $47,000,000 in 1919, he said. Although there are only nine associations in Omaha and a total of 74 associations in the state, Omaha associations are doing at least two-thirds of the business, Mr. Fitzmorris continued.

In the state of Nebraska associations have increased business from $4,000,000 of 25 years ago to $67,000,000 in 1919, he declared. "This great gain is due to wise constructive laws in force in the state, careful and capable business management and the devotion of energies towards saving and home getting."

City Commissioner Falconer spoke on recreation and park improvement activities.

Miss Martha W. Christianity advocated higher salaries for teachers, declaring that a wage increase was necessary that teachers of the city may live as their positions demand. Teachers believe that the public will support them in their efforts to secure higher salaries, she said.

William L. Randall Elected President Of Barristers' Club

Will L. Randall

William L. Randall, 437 Omaha National Bank building, was elected president of the Barristers' club at a meeting in the Chamber of Commerce yesterday. Mr. Randall was vice president of the club last year, and is one of the most active members of the lawyers' organization.

Edward R. Burke was elected vice president, and C. F. Connolly, secretary and treasurer of the club for the ensuing year.

Thomas E. Bartworth of Jackson, Mich., an authority on constitutional law, addressed members of the club on the "Evolution and Revolution of Constitutions."

He compared the system of amending the constitution of Great Britain with that of the United States.

"The case with which the British Parliament amends its constitution is a great aid to the country in combating social unrest," he said.

"If a constitution is not sufficiently broad or well adapted to the conditions of the time, it should be amended—not by revolution, but by evolution. Activities of the Non-partisan league and reds are creating a grave danger to our national constitution. Where labor is led by unscrupulous men there is also danger for our national institutions."

Members of the Barristers' club all reported that they had drawn up one or more wills on the recent "Make Your Will Day."

Salvation Army Makes Fight Against Bolshevism

Adjutant Sydney L. Cooke states that the Salvation army, in all cities of the United States, is a great factor in quieting the possible uprising of the bolshevik menace over the entire country. Its officers are dealing with the poorer classes and know the existing conditions as do few other organizations, and its methods of help, consolidation, relief and preaching to the classes are doing much to ease the high cost of living, much suffering and untidiness and unrest, and officers of the Salvation, constantly visiting among, and poor, doing much to bring happiness into their minds and ease their anxiety.

Omaha Census Chief Issues Appeal to Persons Missed

Many People Unsolicited by Enumerators—Are Requested to Fill Out "Individual Census Slip" Attached Below and Mail to Supervisor—No Postage Required.

John H. Hopkins, supervisor of the 14th federal census for this district, is co-operating with the Chamber of Commerce in an effort to obtain a complete enumeration of the residents of Omaha.

Omaha is entitled to have every person living within the corporate limits of the city enumerated in this census and it is desired that those who have been missed shall be recorded. The work of the house-to-house enumeration has been completed. Some Omahans have returned to the city since the enumeration was made and others were missed on account of various reasons.

"Help Omaha to get in the 200,000 class where it rightly belongs and to get more than 200,000 population in the federal census," is the appeal of those who are promoting the 11th-hour round-up of persons who have not been enumerated.

"Omahans who have not been enumerated are requested to fill out the following form and mail it promptly to Supervisor of Census, Omaha," postage not being required.
