It's not in crown'd
With immortality who fears to follow
Where airy voices lead.
—Keats.

She stood breast-high among the corn
Class'd by the golden light of morn,
Like the sweetest of the sun,
Who many a glowing kiss had won.

Heart Beats

He gave a few
Mean dollars
Because he had
Too much.
And too
He hoped
That the world
Would hear
And call him
Philanthropist.
But those who knew
Told a different tale—
How he ground
His helpers—
The underpaid—
And he tyrannized
Over lesser lights.
This boastful man
Had no religion—
Misunderstood
Brotherly love—
He weighed each one
By their worth in gold—
Till his poor
Warped soul
Was a green persimmon.
He made no friends—
Just "toadies"
Who laughed
When his back
Was turned.
None was made happy—
No one was glad—
Except to spend
His money.
But a poor man with heavy
Burdens of Life—
Was kind at heart
And generous.
Sunshine radiated
From his soul—
As he boosted
And helped
His fellowmen.
He adopted an orphan—
This father of six—
Kind words he had
Ever on tap.
The humble cot—
Had an open door—
He divided possessions
With rich and poor.
There was something
Of Heaven
In his gifts—
But an air Satanic
To the braggart's gold.
The charm of the deed
Is the doing
We know—
And there is such an art
In being kind! —SELAH.

How to Make Up The Dolly Sisters

Frame Your Face Becomingly With Hair.
No matter how pretty the picture is you can just about ruin it by not framing it correctly. It is the same with a pretty face.
Some women are fortunate enough to have hair that curls naturally. Then it's easy to coax the curls into pretty places. But more women have hair that is as straight as wire, and they are the ones who should pay special heed to the framing of their faces if they would be lovely.
If your forehead is high, we ask you in the name of all things beautiful, not to comb your hair straight back so that you look as if you were about to be skinned.
Take a comb with long teeth (short teeth if the hair is thin) and setting the comb firmly in the tresses, jerk it gently forward without removing it from the hair. Do this several times at the place where you want the hair brought forward. This movement brings every hair clear through to the scalp, into the place you would have it. Remove the comb carefully so that straggling hairs will not be removed with it, from the even puff or dip you have made.
If stray hairs do not bother you rest assured they bother other people who look at you—and they won't look any longer than necessary.
If you want to make a wave or curl that will come low over the forehead use a large curling iron, not one of the tiny, frizzy ones. When the iron has hold of the hair, move it forward, slowly, opening and closing it with a jerky movement but keeping it on the same line so that the wave will be continuous like the ones we wear in this picture. That is the result of a large curling iron, drawn slowly forward, being opened and shut continually.
If you are not an expert at adjusting nets you had better let your hair curl and fluff about your face and not take chances with that tight, compressed look produced by the flat, tight hair net, improperly adjusted.

Lovelorn

BY BEATRICE FAIRFAX

May and December.
Dear Miss Fairfax, Omaha Bee: We are two girl chums and would like your advice on two very serious questions.

One of us is 20 years old and loves a man of 35 years and he loves me. He is very wealthy and very nice looking. He wants to marry me and my folks do not object, but all my friends oppose it.
The other one of us is 18 and the man she goes with is 20, also wealthy and good looking. He wishes matrimony and would like your advice as to whether I am too young. My parents do not object.
Yours,
PALS.

Your friends do not have to live with your husband. However, 19 years difference in ages is too much, in my opinion. Right now you may not notice it, but when you are 40, and in your prime, the man will be 60. Think about this, and if you love him enough to sacrifice many of your best years in later life, then marry him.

Who is She?
Dear Miss Fairfax, Omaha Bee: We are so anxious to know how you look. Could you not publish a picture of yourself? You must be very good-natured with crinkly lines about your eyes.
How old are you and did you ever have a beau?
Please tell us something about yourself, as we feel you to be a dear and near friend.

LOVELORN READERS.
I couldn't possibly publish my picture. You might recognize me. And I shouldn't tell you my age or how many beaux I have had. That would be giving away secrets. And so—the plot "sickens."

Silly Girl.
Dear Miss Fairfax, Omaha Bee: This is the first time I have written for your advice. I am a girl of 19 years. I am very popular among my young friends, but have no steady gentleman friend. I go with many respectable boys. Please tell me how to make love.
Now I will close, hoping to see my letter in print the first of the week. I remain,
PEGGY.
Making love is a matter of temperament and there is no recipe. When you are in love you will not need my advice or any other person.

Mrs. J. O.—Your friend can receive financial aid through the mother's pension law. If her husband could be found he should be compelled to contribute toward the support of his family. A reliable lawyer could probably help her.

A. J.—Richard Barthelme may be addressed at 130 West Fifty-seventh street, New York City. I have no address for Margaret Cullen Landis.

Boys and girls should not exchange rings.
Twenty—Letters must be registered through the postoffice registry department. Why send secret letters? Be frank and open in what you write. Only those who are doing wrong need conceal their actions. For your sewing machine repair, I suggest you write to the company handling your make of machine. The Singer, White and Mickel Bros. Sewing Machine companies are listed in the telephone directory. Your writing is good. I hope you may go to school again. I would have to know more about you than I do before advising any certain course.

Peggy—I suggest that you consult Adelaide Fogg. She will, doubtless, be able to give you the information you seek.

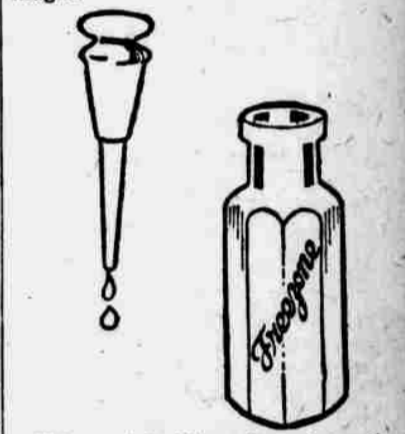

Card Party.
The members of the Altar society of St. Michael's church will entertain at a card party at the hall at Fourteenth and Ogden streets, Friday evening.

LIFT OFF CORNS, MAGIC! NO PAIN

Drop Freezone on a touchy corn then lift off with fingers.

Drop a little Freezone on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then you lift it right out. It doesn't hurt one bit. Yes, magic!

Why wait? Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of Freezone for a few cents, sufficient to rid your feet of every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and calluses, without soreness or irritation. Freezone is the much talked of ether discovery of a Cincinnati genius.
