

CAPTAIN OF BLUE AND WHITE QUINT WRENCHES ANKLE

Howard Vandiver Unable to Practice — Indiana Team Real Contender for Big Ten Title.

Howard Vandiver, captain and guard on Creighton's basketball team, was unable to practice last night with the Blue and White quintet because of a wrenched ankle.

Vandiver injured his ankle Friday night in practice. Little attention was given the injury until it was known yesterday that he was unable to "play around" on it. Whether he will be able to play against Indiana is uncertain.

Every other man on the Creighton squad practiced from school time yesterday afternoon till long after dark, in preparation for the game with Indiana Wednesday night.

The Indiana quintet, entered by "Timber" Stirling, former Creighton coach, is recognized as one of the three real contenders for the Western Conference championship.

Indiana and Creighton, the other two, rank first and second, respectively, in the "Big Ten" race. Indiana is third.

The Hoosiers have lost but one game this season. That defeat was at the hands of Purdue, which stands eighth in the race.

The Indiana's main strength is in their starting defense, comments the Chicago Herald-Examiner.

And the individual playing of Scumler is one of the outstanding features of conference play this year.

Complaints Are Served Against B. Ban Johnson, Connie Mack and Others

New York, Feb. 2.—Complaints in a $800,000 damage suit were served Monday by the New York American league base ball club against B. Ban Johnson, president of the American league.

Complaints were also served on Connie Mack, Philadelphia; Clark Griffith, Washington; Frank Navin, Detroit; Philip Ball, St. Louis; and James Dunn, Cleveland, in one of three suits brought against Johnson.

The New York club demands damages of $800,000 personally from Johnson on the ground that he "convinced the idea of forcing the New York club out of base ball."

The New York club prays for a judgment restraining Johnson from acting to himself or receiving out of the funds of the American league any salary and requiring him to account for and restore with interest all sums which he may have taken as salary since the annual meeting of the league in December, 1919.

It also asks Johnson and his five "loyal" club owners be restrained from "doing any further acts in aid of what is said to be the purpose and plan of the defendant, Johnson, to remove the New York club and to force it out of base ball."

This complaint also asks for the appointment of a receiver and for an injunction during the pendency of this action.

The

NOKOL

Automatic burner fits any house heating system and burns oil which is always plentiful

Nokol can be installed in any good heating plant—steam, hot water, or hot air—by merely taking out the coal grates and putting Nokol in.

A half day's job, yet it assures dependable, even heat all winter—and every winter.

Look at this picture; it shows Nokol's simplicity and compactness; and how your plant looks with Nokol applied.

Sprayed fuel safest

Note this tiny motor driven Nokol fan. It blows the oil into a fine, cool spray within the burner. It stays cool till it's changed to flame.

Engineers call this atomizing—the safe way for homes.

Industry has employed oil heating for years; atomizing, and the automatic control feature of Nokol, assure it for the dwelling.

No ashes, soot or hard work

Here is the labor saving Nokol flame—white hot, yet safe.

Utilizing all the fuel—getting complete combustion out of every ounce, it leaves none of the residues that made coal a nuisance.

Basement drudgery ends; there are no ashes and clinkers to make hard work; no smoke, soot or grime to dirty the whole house, soil costly drapes, etc.

The Nokol flame is all flame—and 90% of its heat goes to the task at hand.

Clean basement—and leisure

In such a neat, clean, compact tank as this, Nokol's fuel is stored.

Fill it once in a while—and your one job is done.

Oil for fuel and Nokol mean a spotless basement and immaculate house. Oil makes no dirt. Coal could and did.

Nokol frees your leisure from the "clean-up jobs."

The self-tending heater

With Nokol installed you may leave your heater for a week. Still the house heat will be maintained while you're away.

Just leave your orders with this little thermostat in the living room.

It automatically regulates the temperature of the home—any range any hour, or fixed at all hours.

Automatically, too, it saves you money; shuts the burner off when heat isn't needed; starts it going when it is.
