

Don't gamble on getting coal

The

NO NOKOL

Automatic burner fits any house heating system and burns oil which is always plentiful

Nokol can be installed in any good heating plant—steam, hot water, or hot air—by merely taking out the coal grates and putting Nokol in.

A half day's job, yet it assures dependable, even heat all winter—and every winter.

Look at this picture; it shows Nokol's simplicity and compactness; and how your plant looks with Nokol applied.

Sprayed fuel safest

Note this tiny motor driven Nokol fan. It blows the oil into a fine, cool spray within the burner. It stays cool till it's changed to flame.

Engineers call this atomizing—the safe way for homes.

Industry has employed oil heating for years; atomizing, and the automatic control feature of Nokol, assure it for the dwelling.

No ashes, soot or hard work

Here is the labor saving Nokol flame—white hot, yet safe.

Utilizing all the fuel—getting complete combustion out of every ounce, it leaves none of the residues that made coal a nuisance.

Basement drudgery ends; there are no ashes and clinkers to make hard work; no smoke, soot or grime to dirty the whole house, soil costly drapes, etc.

The Nokol flame is all flame—and 90% of its heat goes to the task at hand.

Clean basement—and leisure

In such a neat, clean, compact tank as this, Nokol's fuel is stored.

Fill it once in a while—and your one job is done.

Oil for fuel and Nokol mean a spotless basement and immaculate house. Oil makes no dirt. Coal could and did.

Nokol frees your leisure from the "clean-up jobs."

The self-tending heater

With Nokol installed you may leave your heater for a week. Still the house heat will be maintained while you're away.

Just leave your orders with this little thermostat in the living room.

It automatically regulates the temperature of the home—any range any hour, or fixed at all hours.

Automatically, too, it saves you money; shuts the burner off when heat isn't needed; starts it going when it is.

My HEART and My HUSBAND

Adele Garrison's New Phase of Revelations of a Wife

Why Madge Spoke of Her Heart to Lillian.

It was distinctly worth the false promise to see Lillian's eyes lose their usual, strained look at my words. "Well, do you mean that?" she asked, and then addressed contritely, "You course, you do. Pardon, please, but it is only your own."

She stopped, and a little shiver ran through her frame. Then she turned to me, her hands outspread, her face, usually so full of calm, thoroughly convulsively.

"I know better than to speak to her or to touch her. If she had wanted me she would have come into my arms. It was characteristic of her, this silent, tearless, sobbing, spring from her only in the most poignant anguish, and which I knew would be very soon, quenched."

That her wild protest was only a transient thing, dragged from her involuntarily because of the shock she had received, I was certain. I knew her own will, the rest she made of duty, and was certain that if she believed Harry Underwood needed her she would take him back, stipulating only that she should not interfere with her care for Marion.

"Please forget this disgusting exhibition, Madge," she said, her tones full of self-control. "I know only too well how severely she was flagellating her spirit for its weakness. I haven't been quite sane for the last few minutes, I think, but I shall not attend in this particular manner again."

"One of the unwritten rules of our friendship has been that neither you nor I advise to the other. But with the remembrance of Harry Underwood, reckless, sneering, devil-may-care as ever fresh in my mind, with the mental vision of Robert Savarin eating his heart out in his lonely mountain home, before my eyes, I threw discretion to the winds."

"I suppose that means," I said hotly, "that whenever your precious scapegrace of a husband does come back, you'll crush everything else under your feet, your heart included, and try to do what you consider your duty by him. I tell you, Lillian, that if you do you'll be doing the bitterest of all wrongs to three of the salt of the earth for the sake of the most good-for-nothing rascal in the country."

The color flashed into her face, and I knew that she resented my speaking as I did, but she spoke only one word, interrogatively: "Hence?"

"Yourself, Marion and Robert Savarin," I said pitilessly, although I knew the mention of the last name was like turning a knife in an open wound.

Her fingers twisted together convulsively, and the color fled from her face, but she said nothing more for a little, only stood still, looking at me.

"I wonder," she said at last, half to herself, then she threw up her hand with the old decision.

"There can be no compromise with truth and one's conscience, Madge," she said slowly. "I must live my own weird, dear."

She walked away with an air of finality that forbade any further speech on my part. But I, too, "vowed me a vow" in this moment, that if I could prevent it, Harry Underwood should never ask that supreme sacrifice of the woman he had called wife.

Roy Kelly Rearrested After Fine; Will Be Returned to Kearney

No sooner was Roy Kelly, 1606 Land street, fined $12.50 and costs in Central police court yesterday for violation of the rules of the road in driving an automobile, than he was again placed under arrest by Juvenile Officer A. H. Voshburg in the court room on a charge of violating his parole from the state institution for boys at Kearney, Neb.

The juvenile officer declared Kelly will have to return to Kearney and remain there until he is 21 years old to finish a term given him in 1917. The juvenile report on Kelly is that "he is not amenable to parental control." Kelly is now 19 years old. He was released on parole late in 1917, and since then has figured in driving, operating, and carrying members and heads of the police department, police records show.

Juvenile Officer Voshburg said he has been looking for Kelly for a year.

MUST PAY BILLS BY TENTH, SAY CREDIT EXPERTS

Members of Associated Retailers Consider Resolution to End Bad Accounts.

The bi-monthly meeting of the Associated Retailers' credit department, held at the Hotel Royal last night, proved to be the best attended and most enthusiastic held in the history of the organization. More than 100 were in attendance. A. J. Havens of the Havens Coal Co., president. Speeches by John I. Kennedy, president of the United States National Bank, and E. J. Klosser, manager of the wholesale credit bureau of Omaha, followed. A dinner in the grill room, Mr. Kennedy spoke on "Finances," Mr. Klosser on "Retailing."

A resolution on credit systems, providing that whenever anyone applies for credit, the understanding shall be that all bills contracted shall be paid the month following the month of the purchase, and that unless otherwise agreed upon the accounts shall be paid each and every month between the first and fifth.

Mr. Klosser, in his resolution, proposed that the bills on the month be known among all retailers as "pay your bills day," and that all accounts not paid upon that day be classified as overdue.

This is in line with the purpose of the recent thirty week campaign. W. W. Miller said "The committee in charge of that work designated a special day upon which all people would be expected to pay up all due and past due accounts. This good work should be carried on."
