

FROM ALLURING GOWNS TO OSTRICH EGGS BY WAY OF BABY LEOPARDS AND OTHER VERY EXCITING PICTURES

Photographs Copyrighted by Underwood and Underwood and International

This alluring décolleté evening gown of white panne velvet with silver motifs is one of the most advanced designs of the season. Note the very charming lines of the gown.

We all have our hobbies, and Miss Hansen (shown above) has hers. She feels at home among the ferocious jungle animals and it is through them that she has won a reputation for fearlessness. Miss Hansen is a serial movie queen. She has here "Tiny," her baby leopard pet. Tiny is being raised on a bottle.

Looking at this photograph one is inclined to calculate, firstly, just how valuable these eggs are, with the common, ordinary garden variety of henfruit selling for $1.20 a dozen. Then we reckon how many people could feast on them. The epicure conjectures on the possibility and result of scrambling the ostrich eggs, musing to find a bowl or tub big enough to prepare the dish.

One wouldn't mind the high prices of eggs if all were as large as this ostrich egg which Miss Colleen Moore, noted film star, is about to fry. It is sufficient for eight people and eggs like it from the Cawston ostrich farm near Los Angeles, weigh from three to five pounds.

Mrs. Lee Thomas, formerly the wife of Edward R. Thomas of New York City, has been married to Cole Porter, also of New York, according to a report received here from Paris. Mr. Porter is known as a writer of music and lyrics for musical plays. Mrs. Thomas was Miss Linda Lee, daughter of William P. Lee, a banker of Louisville, Ky. She is considered a great beauty of the blond type. (Photograph by Baron de Meyer, from Underwood and Underwood)

One of the early holiday season's most charming affairs was held in the Rose Room of the Hotel Plaza, New York City. Prominent society maids and matrons lent helping hands to swell the proceeds of the Russian Bazaar. This photograph shows Miss Cornelia Vanderbilt, one of the most delightful and prominent of those present.

Photograph taken on board the S. S. Rotterdam, which arrived from abroad recently, showing Lady Hadfield, one of the notables on the passenger list.

Miss Nancy Lane, daughter of the Secretary of the Interior, who was introduced at a brilliant reception in Washington. A large representation of official diplomatic and resident society attended the reception. This photograph of Miss Lane, who is the only Cabinet debutante, was made at the Walter Reed Hospital, where she did much good work among the injured soldiers.