

SHIP BUILDERS AT BALTIMORE GO OUT ON STRIKE

2,000 Cranemen Quit In an Attempt to Force Closed Shop Issue, Says Company.

Baltimore, Md., Feb. 28.—All the cranes and steam power men employed by the Baltimore Dry Docks & Ship Building company went out today making altogether about 2,000 labor unionists there who have struck on what the company says is the open shop issue.

An official of the company said today's developments forced the discontinuance of all new construction and necessitated the laying off of 2,000 additional workmen. The company is now able to do only emergency repair work.

Holden A. Evans, president of the company, today reiterated his previous statement that his company was not unfriendly to organized labor, but he said it was determined "that our plant shall never become a closed shop, even if it never builds a ship or turns a wheel."

Seven large oil tankers are under construction at the company's yards and about 15 vessels are undergoing repairs.

Omaha Auto Show Is Ready for Opening

p. m. Monday until 10:30 p. m. next Saturday. The hours following Monday opening will be from 9:30 a. m. to 10:30 p. m.

The big show arena at the Auditorium and the Annex, south of the Auditorium building, are expected to be crowded daily during those hours by Omaha throngs and visitors flocking here from over all of the Nebraska and the western Iowa territory served by the big Omaha distributors.

For these visitors the Auditorium, under supervision of the best of interior decorative talent, has been converted into a representation of the Italian renaissance period, as interpreted by Vittore Carpaccio. The color scheme will be green, orange and black, on a white background.

Japanese Wistaria Garden. Over at the annex, Olaf Gettschall, master painter, has arranged a decorative effect representing Japanese summer time, with cherry blossoms and wistaria brightening and heightening Japanese tapestry effects.

Contrasting with these European and Oriental effects will be the 100 per cent American exhibits on display in the Auditorium basement where flags and red, white and blue bunting will wave over cars that also will represent the sturdiest Americanism.

Decorative effects throughout the show will be enhanced by an electrical display which will throw a brilliant flood of light over the polished surfaces of America's finest cars.

"Music All the Time." Show plans include concerts each afternoon and evening by the original Oleson orchestra, which will offer for the most pretentious musical program ever attempted at an Omaha motor car show. Tuesday night will be "Musical Night" at the show and the big society event of the week.

In harmony with auto show festivities it will be a gala week along "automobile row" with a continuous round of entertainment for car owners, prospects and visiting dealers. Heads of Omaha distributing agencies have arranged a series of dances and other entertainment features that will keep visitors from ennui at any period of the day.

To Smash Sales Records. They expect, however, to combine business with pleasure and are looking forward to smashing previous sales records for show week.

"For," they say, "we're offering better cars and trucks this year than the public ever before has been asked to buy. Early orders indicate the supply of cars this year, just as in 1919, is going to fall far behind the enormous demand. The people of this rich section have the money to buy and they want cars."

Show spectators this year will be particularly impressed with numerous improvements in design and mechanical construction in all of the new models shown.

Engineers and designers during the last year, content with the proven worth of cars of previous years, have made no radical departures in basic principles of construction, but have centered their attention on providing increased comfort for the motorist, improving the general appearance of cars and perfecting details of mechanical construction.

All-the-Year Cars. There will be noticeable a steady growing tendency toward standardization of parts and simplification of construction and additional steps toward lighter building, as an economy measure for cutting the cost of car operation.

The rapidly growing popularity of the all-the-year closed car will be evidenced by a more complete display than ever before offered of coupe, sedan and limousine models. In these models particular attention has been paid to upholstering, interior finish and details affording additional comfort for the motorist.

New Ideas in Trucks. There will be a noticeable absence of new makes of cars. The only exhibiting approximating an entirely new offering is the R. & V., which is the Moline-Knight of last year with numerous changes. Some radical shifting of body designs, however, will give show visitors plenty of surprises as they look for their favorite makes of cars.

There are a number of new ideas represented, too, for those interested in progress of motor truck and tractor building, among them the Parke tractor now being turned out from an Omaha factory.

Passenger cars on exhibition will vary in price from $11,000 to $38,700. Trucks will range in price from $600 to $7,500.

College Students Repeat Special Prayer Sunday

More than 200,000 students of American colleges affiliated with the Interchurch World movement will repeat tomorrow as a feature of Life Enlistment day a special prayer for colleges prepared by the Interchurch Spiritual Resources department. This prayer, which will be used in college churches and chapels generally throughout the country, was prepared in recognition of the prominent part which the institutions of higher education in the United States will play in the Interchurch World movement.

Tentative budget estimates have allotted to the American Educational Commission of the Interchurch one-third of the hundreds of millions which will be required to finance the program of co-operation among evangelical denominational bodies.

On their part the colleges and universities are seeking to impose upon all the activities of their students and to increase the number of recruits to the ranks of religious leaders, professional and lay. These points are emphasized in the prayer, which follows:

"The only Wise God, Who art the source of knowledge and wisdom: Illuminate, we pray Thee, all schools, colleges and universities with the light that cometh from above. Make their officers and teachers ever mindful of their Christian stewardship over lives entrusted to their care. Win students everywhere to commit themselves to Thee and to accept in prayer and gladness Thine own plan of life for them. Lift up their eyes to see the fields already white unto the harvest, and send forth laborers adequate to gather in Thy ripening grain. Enlarge the hearts of people everywhere—we beseech Thee—to support these institutions and to join with Thee in keeping clear to all the world that 'the fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom' and that 'except the Lord build the house they labor in vain that build it' in Jesus' name. Amen."

Will Appeal to Alumni. In addition to this direct appeal to the undergraduates of the country a comprehensive effort has been made to reach the alumni. Interchurch leaders have devised a plan by which every pastor in the United States has been asked to present the enlarged program of the churches to all college and university graduates in his parish.

Thousands of workers are sought for some distinctive form of Christian service as a life work, both at home and abroad. It is explained that while in many thousands of cases special preparation is required there are other thousands where positions may be filled by earnest Christian college and university graduates.

His wife is dead and he is seriously burned. Farr thought that by warming the gasoline he could make his gold engine work. The gas caught fire and he seized the vessel in which it was burning and rushed to the door. There he collided with his wife and the burning liquid was splashed all over her. She ran, fanning the flames, and was so badly burned that she died some hours later. Mr. Farr's recovery is uncertain.

Six young children are motherless by Mrs. Farr's death.
