Auto Show Notes

"You little red devil! I'm going to take you home with me!" a young Kearney visitor at the show declared yesterday after several minutes of admiring contemplation of the Kissel custom-built speedster, on exhibition at the show for the first time. Whether this car, a graceful creation, that seats two inside and one on each rear fender on disappearing seats, will have a home in Kearney or will remain in Omaha is a problem, for several local buyers have spoken for it, also. The car is part of the exhibit of the C. J. Dutton Automotive company, which also includes a Kissel sedan and a Moon touring car. The brown Spanish leather upholstery that has characterized all Moons, is continued in the present models.

Three models of Westcott cars are shown in the space occupied by the Standard Motor Car company, in the main hall. One of the few two-tone finished cars at the show is a touring model here, built on the Westcott Larger "60" chassis. A coupe and a sedan complete the showing. The demand for closed Westcotts has proven a surprise to all in attendance at the booth. It is predicted there that next year will see an enormous increase in the production of enclosed cars.

Fred Kohler, factory representative of the National Motor Car company of Indianapolis, Ind., was begging members of the National Car Sales company of Omaha to go easy yesterday, as just so many cars can be allotted to this city. The National six-cylinder, the new six-cylinder model of that car, has drawn a host of friends. A touring car, sedan and coupe make up the exhibit.

A lone Cadillac, of the new series "59," occupies the space allotted to the C. J. Hanse Cadillac company. Much comment has been heard around the show on the dignity and simple impressiveness of the Cadillac booth. According to representatives of the company, this year's Cadillacs include many refinements not found on previous models, all of which tend toward better engine efficiency and greater riding comfort.

From the number of new dealers seeking affiliation the Peterson Motors company, distributors of Jordan and Columbia cars, is certain that both will prove immensely popular in the Omaha district. A Jordan sedan, beautifully finished and completely appointed, is part of the exhibit. A Jordan touring model and a Columbia roadster, equipped with disc wheels, are also shown.

A coupe model of the Winton, built on the new lines adopted by that factory, is on exhibition at the Keystone Motors corporation booth. This is one of the largest coupes built. Two examples of the standard "8" are also shown. A sedan finished in blue and a touring model painted red have received much of the attention given cars on the stage.

Those connected with the Mid-City Motor and Supply company are convinced that selling the first car of the show was their lucky omen, for demands for demonstrations of the Stevens Salient Six and inquiries from dealers have flooded their booth. Several models of the Stevens, including a handsome roadster finished in brown, are included.
