By NEW YORK TIMES. New York, March 4. - Without showing preliminary indications, the foreign exchange and cotton markets suddenly advanced this afternoon and maintained their strength to the close of business. The pivot of the swing forward was sterling exchange, which, at the maximum quotation, recorded a rise of 14 cents to the pound, as compared with the final quotation the day before. Clearly, so extensive an improvement in a single session of dealings indicated the presence of new influences in the exchange market. Bankers in position to know intimately the financial attitude of British and French leaders were non-committal in discussing underlying factors at work in the exchanges, but the street was convinced that a movement of gold from Europe to the United States was at least under.

Owing to the interrupted cable service these rumors were neither denied nor confirmed, and there were no official quotations from the Brazilian markets, but it was reported that some of the local houses had received bullish advices from Brazil by way of London. The market opened at an advance of 15 to 19 points, with active months seiling 37 to 42 points net higher during the early afternoon. This carries May up to 15.20c, or more than a cent above the low level of last Saturday, and attracted enough realizing to cause reactions of a few points, although seiling otherwise was held in check by the bullish spot talk and advance in sterling exchange.
