THE OMAHA SUNDAY BEE: MARCH 7, 1920.

HIS is a crucial age, this reconstruction era, a time of great changes, a live, awakened, alert age, an age of great progress, of great initiative, an age of interests that are world wide. Momentous social, political, industrial and economic changes are affecting the welfare of this nation and every country in the world. Americans today are not only interested in the government and the affairs of their own city, state and country, but have become deeply concerned in the people and the political and social conditions of many nations throughout the world. Where can people find correct, authoritative and comprehensive information on the many subjects in which they are interested as a consequence of this awakening? They naturally turn to the wonderful storehouse of knowledge-the world's greatest guide to correct and authoritative information-the Encyclopaedia Britannica. The Britannica will give a foundation for study of subjects which will be uppermost in our minds for years to come. The Britannica is a great work of useful information. It is a book for Americans today who are waking up to new thoughts, new work and new interests.

What of Today's Problems? We Are Offering All Sets in the Handy

Now as Never Before You Need the Britannica

During the past few years the business of this nation has greatly expanded. So terrific has been the pressure to produce tremendous quan tities of materials in the shortest length of time that out of necessity efficiency has been the watchword of the day. Great progress has been made in shop management-there have been many inventions, many short cuts have been found for better and quicker production of material Today marks the period of the country's greatest industrial development In many industries peace has meant a far greater speeding up than even luring the war, and competition has become smarter. All of these are igns of the times and demand for greater aggressiveness, knowledge ind capacity on the part of the employer and employe.

Under these conditions men are required to have the best means of mowledge, the best tools with which they can keep abreast of the times and fulfill the stricter requirements of our awakened industrial world The young man returning from war must capitalize his vigor and deter nination in order to make his mark in the world. The big army of workers who are fearful of falling back into the ruts of pre-war days must nave knowledge and equipment in order to build upon the progress made luring the war.

A Marvelous Library of Knowledge

This great work, with its 41,000 separate articles, is marvelously con plete. The Britannica is a great library of knowledge on every subject known to the human mind, discusses in a way that you can understand every branch of science, industry, literature, art, religion, invention and engineering; history and race development; wars and peace, architecture, astronomy, chemistry, sociology, education, steam, electricity, geology, geography, law, physics. You and your family will find the Britannica a liberal education. In answer to the hundred and one questions which every day come to your mind-and to your wife's and children's mindsquestions which arise in discussion at your club or in your business-it will tell you more about everything than you can get from any other source.

Do you understand the highly serious problems of our industrial life? Why are the prices of commodities high? Will wages go still higher or will they fall? What are the economic causes of the high cost of living? Is there likely to be some great economic disturbance that will cause a precipitate fall in wages and prices? Is the Soviet government in Russia likely to persist and spread to other countries or has it already about spent its force? The Encyclopaedia Britannica sets forth in its great articles the economic laws by which the world is governed. We must consider the problems of today in the light of past experience. Has the Soviet in Russia anything in common with the French Revolution?

This wonderful book - the new Encyclopaedia Britannica - literally spreads before the reader the knowledge of the whole world. It tells about foreign countries, characteristics of the people, their resources, exports and imports, trade possibilities, their history and progress. An hour a day with the Britannica will give you as clear and comprehensive an idea of the rest of the world as we Americans now have of the states of the Union.

The Woman of Today Needs the Britannica

Woman's position politically, industrially and economically has changed adically in the past five years. Woman has become a power in politics, for her vote is respected and valued. She has taken a more important place in the industrial world. The sensible and up to date woman is studying the cost of foods, food markets and food values. The Britannica is invaluable to woman with its splendid articles on politics, on industries, on domestic science, on foods and on everything pertaining to the home. To the mother with children to educate, the Britannica is indispensable, and it will give her the information to teach her children wisely and correctly.
